Area feels Old Man Winter's bite

The Northwest suburbs faced the coldest weather of the winter season Wednesday as temperatures dropped below zero and the "bitter" cold is expected to continue through Saturday with low temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees below zero in the suburbs, the National Weather Service predicted.

"Bundle up," a spokesman for the weather service said late Wednesday. "It will be zero to five (degrees) above" Thursday.

"That sounds like a low, not a high," the spokesman added.

Despite the low temperature predictions, the mercury level will not drop to a record. In 1875, the Chicago-area temperature bottomed at 20 degrees below zero, the spokesman said.

THE COLD temperatures are part of a cold air mass that moved south-east from Canada and dumped snow throughout the Midwest.

Snow between one and two inches was reported in the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning. Heavier snowfall of up to five inches hampered morning rush hour drivers in south Cook County and northern Indiana.

The cold temperatures, which prevented melting of Wednesday's snowfall, and gusty winds contributed to traffic problems and dozens of minor auto accidents were reported throughout the suburbs.

The Chicago Motor Club offered five tips to motorists who attempt to start cars during the cold spell:

- Turn off all accessories, lights, radio, heater and windshield wipers, before attempting to start the car.
- Depress the gas pedal to the floor and let it halfway up while turning the ignition key. Hold the key in starting position for 30 seconds.
- Don't flood the engine if the car fails to start immediately. Shut off the ignition, wait 30 seconds and try again.
- If the engine floods, shut off the ignition and press the gas pedal for 40 seconds.

Capacity to increase by one-third

Expansion urged at seniors' home

Plans to expand the capacity of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged by more than one third were approved unanimously by the village plan commission Wednesday.

The plans are the second step of the home's long-range development plan originally approved by the village in 1971.

Two wings are planned as additions to the main building, 800 W. Oakton St. The additions will have a total of 126 beds. The existing building has 353 beds.

The additions will be along the east and south sides of the buildings with a landscaped courtyard in the center. The courtyard will have access for fire trucks and other emergency vehicles.

THE NEW BUILDINGS each will be four stories tall. However, they will be no taller than the present three-story buildings because the first level of the new wings will be below ground level.

The new wings will allow for enlarging existing physical therapy, social service and kitchen areas.

The beds in the new wings will be devoted to "skilled nursing care" patients.

Clarence K. Graves, attorney representing the home, said without the additional space for residents who need special medical attention, those patients would have to face a five-to-ten year wait for admission.

Graves said the waiting list of persons seeking admission to the home has already reached 300 names, with new names added daily.

The new wings will meet all fire and safety codes. Doors that close automatically in case of fire or in the presence of smoke are part of the plans, according to the home operators.

A 150-SPACE parking lot is proposed along the Oakton Street side of the property. Visitors will be assigned 80 of the spaces, staff members would have 74 and two would be assigned to physicians.

Graves said the new wings complete the planned development of the central building area. Long-range plans, however, call for construction of 350 cottages on the rear of the property.

Although the cottages were not discussed Wednesday, the Lutheran Home has said the cottages, built on one floor, would be clustered in groups of six or eight units.

The cottages would be used by retired persons not wanting to maintain a private home, but not yet in need of special geriatric care.

Overdue ski gala bills jeopardize trade show

The Mid-America Trade Show will not be allowed to open Friday at Arlington Park unless the village receives the overdue exhibition fee from a ski show presented there in October.

A spokesman for the Harry A. Leonard Co., New York, operators of the ski show, said a check for more than $2,100 has been mailed. Officials say the village has not yet received it.

"The people in New York have told me they are going to pay us, but I haven't seen the money yet," Village Building Cmr. Martin Munsen said Wednesday. "Until we get the money, we won't let the trade show open."

The village placed the ban on future exhibitions at Arlington Park in December because Leonard had not paid the village's exhibition fee of 3 per cent of the gross receipts from the ski show presented Oct. 23-26. The trade show is the first show to be scheduled since the village's ultimatum.

Leonard originally refused to pay the 3 per cent fee saying the ski show was "educational, not entertainment."

The $2,100 fee is the largest ever collected by the village. In previous years, only a $17 per day fee was charged.

Miller set as head of vandal panel

by JOE SWICKARD

Village Trustee Robert H. Miller will head a special committee to study vandalism problems in Arlington Heights.

Miller, who was selected by Village Pres. James T. Ryan, said he is considering the make-up of the committee, which he expects will have between 8 and 10 members.

"We don't want to get too heavy with officials," he said. "We'd like to get the average-type citizens and perhaps some parents who might be experiencing some of these problems."

ALSO UNDER consideration for the committee are representatives from the police department, the Arlington Heights Park District and local churches.

"We need people from a broad area. Even if we do not have them on the committee itself, at least they can have some input with us," he said.

The life of the committee is expected to be "four months at least," Miller said.

"I'd like to get rolling right away because this is going to take a lot of time. It's going to take some time for the investigation and coming up with recommendations," he said.

He said the committee could be ready with its findings by spring.

"Spring is when things start happening again. By summer there can be a lot of problems," he said.

HE SAID THE committee should be able to come up with actions the citizens can take to protect their property and possible legal remedies.

"There may be some recommendations to the police department and the (village) administration. Maybe there are some things the park district could be doing that they aren't now," he said.

"Even if we can't come up with the answers to these problems at least we can get some facts," he said.

Miller and Ryan had called for such a committee after two area schools sustained more than $100,000 in damages from a vandalism spree during the Christmas vacation.

Three juveniles were charged in connection with the attacks and are awaiting court action.

Following the attacks, Ryan issued a warning saying future incidents will not be tolerated and urged adult penalties for juveniles convicted of such crimes.

Dist. 59 taxes to go up to pay off deficit loan

Residents in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will have tax rate increases ranging from 6 to 10.1 cents per $100 assessed valuation each year for the next four years to repay $1,575,000 borrowed by the district this year.

The Dist. 59 board approved borrowing up to $1.75 million this year because of an anticipated $1.4 million deficit in the education and building funds. The board approved issuing teachers' orders in September, which is a method of borrowing money through the bond and interest fund to pay teachers' salaries.

The bonds sold to pay for the teachers' orders will be paid back during a four-year period beginning December 1976.

THE TAX RATE increase will cost the average homeowner with property assessed at $10,000, $6 the first year, $8 the second year, $10.10 the third year and $8.70 the fourth year.

Taxpayers will see the increase in the tax rate in the fall of 1977, said Arthur Perry, Dist. 59 financial analyst and consultant. He said residents will have a tax rate increase of about 6 cents per $100 assessed valuation in 1977 and an increase of about 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation the following year.

The last two years of the bond payoff, residents can expect tax increases of about 10.1 cents and 8.7 cents per $100 assessed valuation, he said.

Racquetball, handball courts topic

The Arlington Heights Park District will hold a special meeting tonight to discuss the possible addition of racquetball and handball courts to the Forest View Tennis Club.

The district is considering eight additional courts that can double for either racquetball or handball play at the tennis facility, 800 E. Falcon Dr. The additional courts, if approved, will be built to the east of the present building.

Thomas Thornton, park district director, said the cost of the additions has been estimated at about $400,000.

Thornton said the cost would be met through a 10-year loan. The revenue bonding ordinance, which paid for the original club, was written in such a manner that the loan method "is the only way" to finance the new courts, he said.

ATTENDING THE special meeting will be Thomas Flatland of Wauterlek and Brown, financial consultants, and Forrest Wendt of Wendt, Cedarholm and Tappens, Inc., architects.

Thornton said preliminary reports indicate the racquetball-handball facilities "will pay for themselves and more so." He said the loans could be paid off before the note's 10-year life expires. Excess funds would go into the district's general fund, he said.

Thornton said racquetball is generating a lot of interest and enthusiasm. He said much of the interest in the sport was the product of present members of the tennis club.

The other courts had been discussed while the tennis club plans were being drawn, but no specific action was taken upon them at the time.

The meeting, open to the public, will be at 8 p.m. at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

Judge won't cut Barrett's sentence

A federal judge refused Wednesday to reduce from three years to probation the sentence of ailing former Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett. Barrett, 75, was convicted March 7, 1973, on six counts of bribery, six counts of mail fraud and four counts of income tax evasion for accepting $180,000 in bribes from the Shoup Voting Machine Corp. of Pennsylvania. Senior U. S. District Court Judge Richard B. Austin heard defense attorney Thomas A. Foran and Assistant U. S. Atty. Dan K. Webb agree to probation. A government appointed physician, Dr. Kenneth G. Eggen, then said Barrett was "totally and permanently disabled" and his life could be in jeopardy if he left his home. Austin said he would "never consider" granting probation to a defendant convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud.

Freight train blocks crossings

A Chicago and North Western Ry. freight train blocked three crossings in Des Plaines for about 20 minutes Wednesday night after the bitter cold apparently froze the engine in the locomotive. Railroad workmen worked to clear the cars from crossings at Thacker Street, Oakton Street and Algonquin Road. The 108-car, north-bound train broke down about 8:15 p.m. Railroad officials rushed mechanics from the Proviso Township yards to repair the disabled engine.

$30,000 damage in home fire

About $30,000 in damage was reported Wednesday night after a basement fire in the Barnett Sidell home, 1811 N. Wilshire Ave., Arlington Heights. Fire Chief John Hayden said the blaze started in the basement about 7:30 p.m. and spread to the walls and first floor of the b-level home. He said the cause of the fire was under investigation. Firefighters battled the fire for about 15 minutes. Hayden said Mrs. Sidell detected the blaze when she saw a mattress burning in the basement.

Power outage in Elk Grove

A power outage left the entire portion of Elk Grove Village north of Landmeier Road and a large section on the other side of town without electricity early today. Police said electricity went out in the village around midnight. Police were attempting to contact Commonwealth Edison Co. to determine the cause of the outage at 12:15 a.m.

'Pay up or show won't open'

Arlington Heights officials say a trade show scheduled to start at Arlington Park Friday will not be allowed to open unless an exhibition fee from an earlier show is paid. Village officials say operators of a ski show presented in October owe the village $2,100, but a spokesman for the ski show said the fee has already been mailed from New York to the village. "I haven't seen the money yet," Martin Munson, village building commissioner, said Wednesday. "Until we get the money, we won't let the trade show open." The exhibition scheduled to open Friday is the Mid-America Trade Show.

Mikva price survey shows 24% hike for meat in '75

The year-end results of a food price survey conducted by U. S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, shows meat prices in the area rose more than 24 per cent in 1975.

The survey, which was prepared by Mikva's staff, examined prices in grocery stores throughout the 10th Congressional District, which includes Des Plaines and Maine Township.

Mikva noted that prices on other grocery items increased only 1.5 per cent during the year. He also reported the meat price increase was above the 18.8 per cent national price increase for urban areas reported by the U. S. Department of Labor.

Mikva's meat price survey is based on the cost of a variety of meats, including expensive cuts and more moderately-priced meat items.

Government officials attributed the price increases to poor grain harvests in 1974 that caused beef and pork producers to pay more for feed.

Mikva noted the increase in meat prices has offset potential savings for shoppers in other grocery items.

Horse betting up 6% to $788 million

A total of $787.7 million was bet on horse races in Illinois last year, up 6 per cent over 1974, the Illinois Racing Board announced Wednesday.

Board Chairman Anthony Scariano said the total was higher than any in Illinois' 50 years of horse racing. Some $418.5 million was wagered at harness tracks and $371.2 million on thoroughbred horses.

Scariano said the total increase over 1974 was $41.7 million. The increase was partly due to more racing at the harness tracks, he said.

750,000 toys for tots

A record 750,000 toys were collected and distributed to needy children in metropolitan Chicago this Christmas by the U. S. Marine Reserve's "Toys for Tots."

More than 180 7-Eleven food stores acted as deposit and pick up stations in December for the toys which were distributed through 180 child-help agencies in the area.

Correction

A typographical error in Wednesday's business section story on solar energy incorrectly stated the cost of the solar heating systems being installed at four new townhomes at New Century Town, Vernon Hills. The cost is $12,000, not $21,000 as reported.

Financing by Life Magazine denied

Reveal '63 Cuban raid backed by CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA agents and a reputed Mafia contact man sneaked a raiding party into Cuba in 1963 in a futile effort to bring out two Russian missile technicians, a journalist who was aboard the raiding boat said Wednesday.

Richard Billings, former Miami bureau chief for Life Magazine, confirmed most of the details published Wednesday in a West Coast magazine report but stressed that — contrary to what that magazine said — Life did not finance any part of the CIA-Cuban exile operation.

"There was such a mission," Billings said in a telephone interview. "It was not reported in Life at the time due to our agreement that, to be able to go on and cover such a mission, we would not publish if it were unsuccessful.

"This was an agreement to protect the people involved."

"The mission was not successful to my knowledge," Billings said. "I heard that the Cubans we landed were either captured or killed."

"No missile technicians were ever brought out."

Billings, who now works for U.S. News & World Report in Washington, was commenting on a story co-authored by journalist Warren Hinckle and former FBI agent William Turner in City Magazine, San Francisco publication.

In their copyrighted story, Hinckle and Turner said the raiding party of Cuban-Americans was dropped off the Cuban coast in a small boat on June 8, 1963, from a yacht piloted by William Pawley, former ambassador to Brazil and Peru.

They said, and Billings confirmed, the objective was to prove the Soviet Union still had missiles in Cuba one year after the missile crisis by bringing out two Russian technicians reportedly ready to defect.

Billings confirmed the City Magazine report that CIA agents and a man named John Martino, reportedly a Mafia figure, accompanied the raiding party as advisers and organizers but did not go ashore with the group — which was never heard from again.

But Billings denied Hinckle and Turner's claim that Life financed the $15,000 operation in order to get exclusive pictures and news coverage of the defecting Russians.

"There was no money paid by Life magazine," Billings said. "I, as Life's Miami bureau chief at that time, went with the party at the request of the Cubans to cover the defection of the Russian technicians. As it turned out, they never defected."

In New York, a spokesman for Time Inc., which owned the now defunct weekly newspaper magazine, also said, "With absolute certainty, we did not finance that raiding party."

In response to questions, Billings confirmed various details of the operation.

"Yes, there were CIA agents involved," he said.

"One thing you should understand: This seems like a big thing now, but in those days, in Miami, this was not a very big deal. In those days, these things were going all the time down there."

For that reason, he said, he doubted President John F. Kennedy knew of this particular raid. "I don't think Kennedy was informed every time a CIA boat went across to Cuba," he said. "The traffic was very heavy."

He said that in this case, "only the Cubans went ashore" from Pawley's yacht, the Flying Tiger II.

"They were taken to within a small distance of the coast and went in by small boat. I believe there were 12 or 14, but I'm not really sure of the number. They had small arms and rifles.

"We wasted a week waiting for the party to return."

Where did they wait? "On a small, uninhabited Bahaman island," Billings said.

Asked whether Martino, the reputed Mafia member, was along, Billings said:

"Yes, it's true. He was a Cuban contact. He'd spent a lot of time in Cuba. I think he had helped arrange the getting together of the various people for this operation."

"He was a manipulator. But other than that, I don't know much about him."

Expect $395 billion budget to bring protest 'screams'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will send Congress a federal budget below his $395 billion ceiling figure, and budget director James Lynn predicts it will cause "screams" by special interest groups, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Wednesday.

Ford told the first Cabinet meeting of 1976 that an "almost impossible job" had been done in not only holding the fiscal 1977 budget to $395 billion but in going below it, Nessen said.

When the current budget was released last year, the administration projected federal spending would be about $423 billion for the forthcoming fiscal year. Ford later proposed slowing the growth of the budget by $28 billion — down to $395 billion which still would be an increase over current spending of about $367 billion.

Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said Ford conferred 100 hours with aides in arriving at the spending figure, and told the Cabinet, "There are decisions that will bring screams of protest from various special interest groups."

When asked which special interests Lynn referred to, Nessen told reporters: "Probably all of them."

The White House did not disclose where Ford did the chopping. Nessen said details will be made public Jan. 21 when Ford submits to Congress the budget for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1.

Nessen said Lynn told the Cabinet: "It isn't going to be easy to get a Democratic Congress to agree to this but I believe they will."

Federal spending in the current year will total about $387 billion, Nessen said. He said if current programs and legislation were left untouched, the 1977 budget would have to be at least $423 billion.

Nessen said the process of chopping the figure from $423 billion to below $395 billion was all but complete. He indicated that now only relatively minor changes would be made, if at all.

According to Nessen, the $395 billion budget will mean a federal deficit of $40 billion to $44 billion and, if Ford's plans succeed, Washington should produce a budget surplus in 1978.

Ford told the Cabinet that if Congress balks at Ford's cuts and goes its own way, it could mean a deficit of $70 billion to $75 billion.

Nixon not entitled to documents: court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A three-judge federal court Wednesday ruled Richard M. Nixon is not legally entitled to have the tapes and documents from his years in the White House, partly because he might "distort or destroy" them to hide possible misconduct in office.

Nixon's lawyers said the former president immediately ordered them to take an appeal of the panel's decision to the Supreme Court. They would not say what Nixon told them when informed of the ruling, but one said, "It was printable language. He was disappointed as anyone is when they lose a court case."

The three judges unanimously rejected Nixon's claim the 1974 law giving custody of the papers to the General Services Administration violated his constitutional rights to privacy and free speech and was a congressional infringement on presidential powers.

But the court, noting "sensitivity to constitutional protections," barred the GSA from transferring or making public any Nixon material until after the Supreme Court rules on the appeal. It also allowed Nixon or his agents to photocopy the documents for use in the memoirs the former president is writing.

One of Nixon's lawyers, R. Stan Mortenson, expressed confidence the Supreme Court would reverse the decision and find that "the country has gotten along pretty well for 200 years without this type of statute and although Nixon resigned under different circumstances, to change the rules now might have so many dire implications."

Circuit Judge Carl McGowan, who wrote the decision, said any president might be tempted to distort his record in office through papers that would eventually be examined by historians.

But McGowan added, "That risk might rationally be thought by Congress to be considerably magnified by reference to the circumstances surrounding Mr. Nixon's departure from office."

He said Watergate investigations that "suggest that there was misconduct on the part of Mr. Nixon and his close associates are too familiar and too well recorded elsewhere to merit elaboration by us."

"The temptation to distort or destroy the historical record might be thought by Congress to be less resistable in the event that the materials provided some foundation for allegations that misconduct took place..."

Under the 1974 law, GSA archivists will examine the presidential materials. McGowan said Nixon could contest specific rulings by the GSA over what materials should be made public and those so private and personal they belong only to Nixon.

Hundreds evacuated following Elkhart plant explosion

ELKHART, Ind. (UPI) — Explosions and fire ripped through an aerosol can factory Wednesday, injuring more than 30 persons and forcing evacuation of hundreds of nearby residents because of the danger of further blasts in tanks of deadly gas. Two plant employees were reported missing.

Officials said 12 persons were hospitalized, six of them with severe burns. Twenty-four others, mostly police and firemen, reported to hospitals for treatment of minor injuries, smoke inhalation or safety checks by doctors concerned about possible effects of toxic gases in the air during the fire-fighting operation at the Accra Pac Co. factory. All 24 were later released.

The two persons unaccounted for were identified by John H. Tallmadge, president of the hospital, as Gerald Shoemaker, a custodian at the plant, and Gail Pernel.

The most seriously injured victims were transferred to a burn unit at a hospital in Fort Wayne, south of this city near the Indiana-Michigan line.

"It was one helluva blaze," said a law enforcement officer. "Thank God it wasn't worse than it was. There has been all kinds of confusion."

The mid-day fire roared out of control for several hours. Firefighters battled "blinding sheets of flame" and at least four explosions were reported.

Homes and offices in the area were evacuated until four hours after the first explosion, when state health officials decided the gas danger had lifted. At least 10 tanks, some underground, were near the fire. They contained such gases as propane, naphtha and phosgene, which when set ablaze is similar to the deadly mustard gas used in chemical warfare.

The fire also caused damage to the nearby Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Co. plant, where employees were evacuated.

Authorities said the Accra Pac company employs about 80 persons, but that some of them were away on lunch breaks when the explosions rocked the building shortly before noon.

S. Africa prepared to pull Angola troops

South Africa has informed the Ford administration it is prepared to pull its troops out of Angola in the next 48 hours, authoritative administration sources disclosed Wednesday night. The sources said a major remaining problem, however, would be how to pressure Cuba to withdraw the 7,500 troops it has committed to the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola. The development, some administration officials said, is a key element in the U.S. diplomacy aimed at resolving the current Angolan crisis.

Head of bouncing 'check factory' hunted

Police began a nationwide search Wednesday for Thomas J. Redican, president of a computer "check factory" that mysteriously closed down last week leaving thousands of bad paychecks bouncing around the state of Michigan. The Computer Payroll & Accounting Service handled payrolls for some 600 Michigan businesses. Losses to the firms reportedly could "run into the millions of dollars." Redican, 42, president and founder of the firm, dropped out of sight last week after checks issued by his company totalling more than $1 million began to bounce.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon held a strategy session Wednesday on next week's U.N. Middle East debate but acknowledged afterwards they will still need another meeting to coordinate U.S. and Israeli policy.

Aldo Moro's government quits in Italy

Stripped of Socialist support, Premier Aldo Moro's minority government resigned Wednesday, plunging the country into a political crisis that may strengthen Communist power in Italy. Moro decided to step down after the Socialist party withdrew its support from his Christian Democrat-Republican coalition, leaving the 13-month-old government 16 votes shy of a majority in the lower house of parliament.

Angola fighter doesn't want U.S. troops

The leader of one of the anti-Communist armies in Angola's civil war said Wednesday he does not want U.S. troops or mercenaries to help combat a new offensive by Soviet-backed forces. But senior military officers of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola said the pro-Western forces desperately need American weapons. The bearded guerrilla leader said, "The people of the United States are still too sensitive to this kind of issue after the events of Vietnam."

Report Nazis tracked down in U.S.

Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal said in Vienna Wednesday he has tracked down scores of war criminals hiding out in the United States, and wants the U.S. to strip the suspects of their American citizenship and extradite them to the Soviet Union for war crimes trials. The suspects were not named.

Graveside ceremony honors Millard Fillmore birthday

The nation's only annual ceremony honoring the birthday of Millard Fillmore, 13th President of the United States was held at Forest Lawn Cemetery in N.Y. Wednesday. Thirty persons attended. "I believe we are the only graveside ceremony," said John Thurston of the State University of New York at Buffalo. He said the school began its annual observance in 1960 because Fillmore was the first chancellor of the university. Fillmore, President from 1850 to 1853 is best remembered, at least by historians, for the Compromise of 1850, which some say may have postponed the Civil War for 10 years. He was also respon-

Junior deputies face budget cut

by JOE SWICKARD

First it was the CIA, and then the FBI came under close scrutiny and fire. Is anything sacred?

It's hard to say, but the next agency to be put on the chopping block could be the Junior Deputies of the Cook County Sheriff.

The program, dating back to when Richard Ogilvie was sheriff, is being studied with an eye toward possible elimination because of a tight county budget next year.

According to reports, County Board Pres. George W. Dunne has asked Sheriff Richard J. Elrod not to request funds for the program, which costs about $5,000 annually.

THE JUNIOR Deputies are actually school children from around the county who have listened to law enforcement and personal safety lectures by members of the sheriff's community relations divisions at schools.

Following the lectures the children can become Junior Deputies, complete with gold badge, by signing a pledge to respect their parents, obey teachers and keep an eye out for the bad guys. In addition to the badge, the Junior Deputies get an official membership card with a copy of the "oath of office" on the back.

A spokesman in the sheriff's office said the program was authorized by state statute and has become a "valuable" aid in fostering an understanding of law enforcement and personal safety.

"We feel the cost is minimal for the benefits of the Junior Deputies," the spokesman said.

ALTHOUGH THE state law covers school children up to age 16, the spokesman said that by the time the children reach the sixth grade the appeal of joining the Junior Deputies is slackening. But the response with the younger ones is always good, producing between 12,000 and 18,000 deputies yearly, the spokesman said.

The Junior Deputies have kept abreast with changing social concerns. Their oath now includes a vow to help defend and protect the environment in addition to their other "duties."

But the time may have come, just like in the western movies, for the sheriff to disband the posse and say, "Adios, pardners."

The local scene

Blood unit coming here

The mobile blood unit will be in Arlington Heights twice in February.

An Arlington Heights resident will join the "Up With People" touring song-and-dance group this summer.

Ken Koser, 21, will be taking a leave of absence from his studies at the University of Arizona to join the group in August for a year.

Koser, of 710 N. Douglas Ave., is a 1972 graduate of St. Viator High School.

"Up With People" has performed before more than 2.5 million persons in the past 10 years. The group will appear in the half-time program of the Super Bowl professional football championship Jan. 18.

Village artifacts display

A Bicentennial salute to area pioneers will begin Jan. 15 at Randhurst Community Center. # Dist. 214 adult ed signups under way

Registration is under way for spring semester classes in High School Dist. 214's continuing education program.

Classes open to all district residents begin the week of Jan. 26 in the district's high school buildings. Brochures describing the spring course offerings are being sent to Dist. 214 residents this week.

Registration may be completed by mail or in person at the Dist. 214 continuing education office in the administration center, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect. Registrations are accepted daily from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until Jan. 24, from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. Jan. 19-23 and Saturday Jan. 19, 17 and 24 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Students who wish to register after Jan. 24 should contact the continuing education office to find out whether the course is still available.

Several new classes as well as the usual courses, are being offered this spring.

For the person who enjoys handwork, Creative Stitchery will be offered. A course in sewing alterations can save the smart shopper the expense of a professional tailor.

Commodities: Advanced Analysis, will be offered for those with some background in the subject, and advanced Dictation and Transcription class will be offered for those who wish to sharpen their business skills.

Communication II is designed to help people in personal relationships with others. Transactional Analysis II will cover principles of trusting self, personal abilities, and personal capabilities.

And, for those who believe in preservation, a course in antiques and one in home maintenance and repair will be offered.

For further information about continuing education classes, call the district office, 253-1700.

Pay talks bid turned down by Dist. 59

A request by teachers to reopen their contract with Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 for salary negotiations has been rejected by the board of education.

The board in a statement Monday said the request, sought by 50 of the district's 500 teachers during a board meeting last month, "is not in keeping with the terms of our agreement."

The board statement quoted a section in the contract that board members said does not provide for reopening of contract talks.

The board said the contract section states, "for the life of this agreement, each voluntarily and unqualifiedly waives the right, and each agrees that the other shall not be obligated to bargain collectively with respect to any subject during the term of this agreement."

Teachers during last month's meeting also protested that administrators received annual salary increases averaging 11 per cent this year while teachers received an 8 per cent salary hike in September. The teachers pay hike included a 4 per cent raise for an additional year of experience.

THE ADMINISTRATION presented a report to the board Monday that showed the average administrators' salary increase is 5 per cent if salary increases are computed on a daily basis.

The report showed that several of the administrators receiving high salary increases also are working more days each year which results in a lower increase on a daily basis.

The report showed, as an example, that Robert Brower received a 3 per cent salary increase if the raise was figured on a daily basis. Brower was promoted from Friendship Junior High School principal to associate superintendent. As a central office administrator, he will work 262 days compared to 211 as a principal.

His annual salary increased by 28 per cent, from $23,410 to $30,000. The report showed his daily increase was from $110.95 to $144.50.

Teachers generally earn between $83 and $110 daily.

Panel to consider boundary change

A proposed boundary agreement between Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights will be reviewed tonight by the village board's public health and safety committee.

The boundary agreement, if approved, will establish Douglas Avenue as the eventual dividing line between the two villages south of Central Road and north of Golf Road.

The agreement, however, will not include the 42-acre Magnus Farm property on Central Road. Officials from both villages have agreed that he property owner should be free to go to either village when he decides to develop the property.

Special arrangements also are being made for the possible disannexation of St. Cecilia's Church from Arlington Heights, so it can be annexed to Mount Prospect.

The committee is also scheduled to hear a presentation on low- and moderate-income housing. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 10 S. Emerson St.

Pizza Hut cuts size of sign to conform

The Pizza Hut Restaurant on New Wilke Road in Rolling Meadows is the latest business to conform to the unofficial 20-foot sign height limit in the Wilke-Algonquin roads area.

The newly opened restaurant had a 87-square-foot sign standing 27 feet tall, and residents in the area were fearful a "sign war" would erupt.

Tim Bishop, facilities control manager for Pizza Hut, Inc., said the chain agreed to erect a smaller sign to match other restaurants and businesses in the area. The new sign, which will go up in about three weeks, will be between 20 and 22 feet in height, he said.

"We try to work with the community to maintain the aesthetics of the area," Bishop said. "They are our customers and we try to do what they prefer."

He said the Rolling Meadows restaurant was the first in the state to decrease the size of their sign.

Other businesses in the area to decrease their sign sizes were McDonald's and The Treasury, both on Algonquin Road near Wilke Road.

Bishop and the Pizza Hut agreed to the size reduction after a series of meetings and discussions with the Surrey Ridge West Homeowners Assn. of Arlington Heights.

Area pop shop keeps alive an old family tradition

by DIANE MERNIGAS

Harvey Lutz has been a bartender, cab driver and trucker in his long career. The Des Plaines native never dreamed that he'd end up bottling soda pop in the suburbs.

Since 1960 he's worked hard to keep the fizz in the ginger ale, the tartness in the lime soda and F. W. Muller's secret formula in all the pop at the Arlington Beverage Co., 1326 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. It's been that way since 1872 when the Muller company opened for business.

There hasn't been a Muller at the helm of the firm since 1945, when the family decided to sell it. The company changed hands four times during the next 15 years before Lutz decided he could make a go of it.

"ALL I DID WAS drink pop when I first bought this company. I had no idea how to make it. The people who had worked here for years under Muller had to teach me what I know today," Lutz says in a slight German accent.

At that time the various Arlington Club beverages were being produced in a building at 110 W. Fremont St., Arlington Heights, on the old Muller family property. The same building now houses the Arlington Heights Historical Society Museum.

The museum includes a collection of printed history on the old beverage company and time-worn photographs depicting Muller in a horse and buggy on his way to deliver his thirst-quenching product.

"We always have had older people come into our store here, telling us about the days when they were children and worked for Muller. They used to help him lift bottles off of train cars and then get all the pop they could drink for free," said Marion Lutz, who has been as much a part of the beverage business as her husband.

A SIMPLE CONVEYOR system carries the 7-, 10- and 32-ounce bottles through sterilization, filling, inspection, capping and mixing processes that enable the Lutzes to fill an average 600 cases of bottles daily in 20 different flavors.

It is the same procedure that Muller used more than a hundred years ago when he was making many of the same beverages, and a few others that have disappeared with their recipes.

"People sometimes come in and ask for the Klondike Fizz or Sidra, which is like an apple drink," Mrs. Lutz said. "But we've looked and we just can't find the right extract for those drinks. We can't make them, but the people said they drank them years ago when Muller owned the company."

Those were the days when Muller marked his stocky, milk-glass bottles with his initials embossed in the center of a star.

HUNDREDS OF THE company's old bottles are unearthed each year in backyards, cellars, walls of old taverns and the dusty boxes of ancient attics. Some of the now-collector's items are on display in a glass case at the beverage company store.

The re-usable glass bottles of today somewhat resemble their predecessors: They are shapely and slender, crowned with old fashioned caps and slapped with labels that bear the company insignia. A cup was selected as the official company emblem by Muller just before he gave up the pop shop.

The pop beverages are favorites among long-time suburban residents who were raised in homes where the Arlington Beverage Co. was like a friend of the family.

Devoted patrons and regular orders from large churches, factories and public halls account for more than 4,000 cases of soda pop the company sells each month.

THE COMPANY continues to thrive despite the unmatched competition of name brand sodas which are carried in major food stores, Lutz said.

The beverages are "really sold mouth-to-mouth," Lutz said. "People tell people about our pop, and they try it."

"I put out the best pop I can: I put everything I have into the business," he said.

"We can say we've done a pretty good job at restoring a beverage company that's been here almost as long as some towns. It was and still is a family business," Lutz said.

WATCHING BOTTLES pass through the production line is Harvey Lutz, owner of the Arlington Beverage Co., Mount Prospect. Lutz oversees the daily production of 20 different flavors of pop. The firm has bottled drinks since 1872.

Park chiefs ducking feeding sign issue?

by DANN GIRE

A Kwak in the Illinois Dept. of Conservation and Village Health Director James Demos are ruffling a few feathers in the Hoffman Estates Park District.

Demos, in a letter to Park Director Allen Binder, has recommended that "duck crossing" and "do not feed the ducks" signs be placed along Hassell Road near the district's Twin Lakes to warn residents about the meandering mallards.

Demos said he has received inquiries regarding "the exploded duck population at Twin Lakes" in the High Point subdivision. The letter also said biologist Thomas Kwak — really — with the state Dept. of Conservation, recommended the no-feeding signs so the ducks will have to seek food elsewhere.

THE RECOMMENDATION was at first rejected by park commissioners Tuesday but the board later agreed to study the matter at Board Pres. George Rush's urging.

"I see nothing wrong in putting up the signs," Rush said. But Comr. Thomas Barber balked at the suggestion.

"They're not our ducks," he said. "Why are they our responsibility. We didn't put them there. Why should we take care of them? They're God's ducks."

The sign recommendation revives the duck crossing issue which arose in 1974 when a citizens' group asked that signs be posted so drivers could be made aware of the ducks.

Village officials refused, however, because the duck crossing signs were not consistent with state guidelines.

VILLAGE MGR. George Longmeyer said if the duck signs were put up, it could jeopardize village motor fuel tax revenues which are distributed by the state.

"Many residents have been inconvenienced by the ducks which periodically cause damage to their property," Demos' letter said. "This department has also noticed that a safety hazard exists as ducks are crossing Hassell Road to get from one pond to another."

Park district board member Shirley Gibbons said last year some 50 persons attended a park board meeting and spoke favorably of the ducks at Twin Lakes.

A park district spokesman Wednesday said that "a lot of people who used to favor them (the ducks) have changed their views."

Court-required quotas earn Rochford criticism

Chicago Police Supt. James M. Rochford Wednesday criticized the permanent injunction issued against the city and said, "We don't need a federal court to manage our police department."

U.S. District Court Judge Prentice M. Marshall issued an injunction Monday ordering the federal government to withhold revenue-sharing funds from Chicago until a quota system is used to hire police personnel and correct past policies.

The quota provides that new positions must be filled with 42 per cent black or Latin males, 16 per cent women and 42 per cent white males.

Rochford said Marshall's 64-page opinion "appears hostile, reflects bias, contains contradictions, inaccuracies and was released at a strange time."

"THIS DEPARTMENT does not and will not tolerate or condone racial or sexual discrimination on the part of any of our personnel, and I will move decisively where there is evidence of any violation," Rochford said.

On Tuesday, Mayor Richard J. Daley also criticized Marshall but said he would comply with Marshall's order in the hiring of 400 persons providing the federal government ends its freeze on 1975 revenue sharing funds.

Fuel oil prices included

1-cent cut in cost of gasoline seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Administration proposed a set of oil prices Wednesday that promise the American consumer a 1-cent to 1.5-cent a gallon cut in retail fuel oil and gasoline prices next month.

The rules, first to be drawn under a new energy policy Congress and the President agreed upon at the close of last year, will take effect Feb. 1.

The new law sets a domestic average oil price of $7.66 a barrel, more than $1 a barrel below the current average. Taking into account some profit margin that retailers of fuels have ducts at retail will be "no more than yet to pass through, the effect on price, a cent, or a half," an FEA spokesman said.

DURING FEBRUARY, the administration will further study petroleum pricing to see whether it should use a provision of the law that permits gradual increases in oil prices.

Before the new law, a $5.25-a-barrel price ceiling was still in effect on domestic production of oil up to the level of 1972. Production above that level was uncontrolled and had been selling at the world price level of more than $12 a barrel according to the latest figures, the FEA said.

The average for all domestic oil, taking into account that price-controlled oil made up 60 per cent of the total, was approximately $8.75 a barrel, the FEA estimated.

The law sets a new average ceiling of $7.66. Within that, the President could decontrol the previously price-controlled oil or adjust the price of new production to whatever level he wanted, as long as both met the new ceiling. He can raise the ceiling as much as 10% a year — 7 per cent of it based on inflation, plus a 3 per cent discretionary raise.

THE FIRST rules announced Wednesday kept previously price-controlled oil at $5.25 a barrel, but set the price of previously uncontrolled oil at $11.28 a barrel to fit the new restrictions. The FEA said the next round of rules are likely to show some shifting "to take account of inflation and as a production incentive."

President Ford wanted flexibility to spur domestic production of oil and discourage consumption through higher prices.

Before the rules go into effect, public hearings will be held and written comments will be accepted. The proposal would put oil from "stripper" or marginal wells, formerly uncontrolled, under the $11.28 ceiling.

Energy bill sponsors had contended the new price ceilings would mean consumers' products would be down 3.5 cents a gallon initially. But the FEA disputed that estimate because, FEA Administrator Frank G. Zarb contended, it ignored some pent-up costs retailers had yet to pass through to customers.

The practical effect, estimated, will be a retail price decrease of no more than 1.5 cents per gallon for the most-used oil products such as gasoline and heating oil.

U.S. Atty. Skinner to speak at dinner

U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner is scheduled to discuss the "past, present and future" of the federal prosecutor's office at a Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. dinner Wednesday.

The dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Des Plaines Elks Club, 495 Lee St. Skinner was named U.S. attorney last summer after James R. Thompson resigned to campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Skinner was named Thompson's chief assistant in September 1974 and formed Thompson's special investigations division in 1971.

Prison violence drops despite inmate increase

Illinois prison officials reported Wednesday that despite a 20 per cent increase in the number of inmates in state prisons there has been a significant drop in violent incidents in the past year.

Allyn Sielaff, director of the Illinois Dept. of Corrections, also reported that recidivism among inmates has dropped 19.8 per cent to 14.8 per cent according to 1975 statistics.

Sielaff cited a number of improvements made throughout the prison system aimed at bettering inmates living conditions. He cited the installation of electrical outlets and hot water in individual cells, improved security and additional guard training programs as reasons for the decrease in violent incidents in the prisons.

The number of inmates in the state climbed from 6,400 to 8,000 during 1975, state officials said.

Sielaff said he hopes to initiate other new programs during 1976 to include comprehensive plans for dealing with growing prison populations.

Wallace-Carter primary battle expected here

by STEVE BROWN

A move by supporters of Alabama Gov. George Wallace has made Illinois the first major Northern battleground between their man and fellow southerner Jimmy Carter.

Carter forces already have filed for a large bloc of delegate seats, but most of their effort will be made in the suburbs and downstate. Wallace appears to be the only Democratic candidate ready to challenge Mayor Richard Daley's plan to elect a group of uncommitted delegates from congressional districts in Chicago.

Illinois Democrats will elect 155 of the state's 169 convention delegates in the March 16 primary. Backers of Carter, the former governor of Georgia, filed nominating petitions for 74 delegates and 21 alternates Wednesday, which was the first day for filing. The remaining 14 delegates will be selected at a state party convention in June.

WALLACE SUPPORTERS will file petitions for 152 delegates, according to organizers of Wallace's Illinois campaign before the Jan. 14 deadline.

The two large delegate contingents and promises from both Carter and Wallace to campaign heavily in Illinois combine to make the state primary the first major northern test for the two southerners in the nation.

Both men are entered in the March 2 Massachusetts primary, but knowledgeable observers suggest the leading liberal Democratic presidential candidates will dominate in that state. Wallace could upset that prediction, however, because of the busing issue in Boston.

Aides to both Carter and Wallace indicate their candidates will campaign in Illinois, but expect their major effort to come after the March 9 Florida primary.

A KEY OFFICIAL in Sargent Shriver's Illinois campaign, Jay Doherty, said Wednesday his man will not run full delegate slates in Congressional districts outside Cook County.

"We want to pick winners," he said. He also indicated Shriver will campaign heavily in Illinois. Shriver does not plan to enter the Florida primary. The former vice presidential candidate is matched against Wallace, Carter and former Oklahoma Senator Fred Harris in the presidential preference primary, which is completely separate from delegate elections.

Locally, a five-person slate has indicated they will file nominating petitions pledged to Gov. Daniel Walker.

Although Walker is not actively running for president, his aides are recruiting delegate candidates pledged to Walker as a means of forming an independent or anti-Daley bloc within the Illinois Democratic convention delegation.

STATE BOARD OF Election officials said between 400 and 500 persons ignored snow-packed central Illinois highways to travel to Springfield to file nominating petitions in the delegate races.

Election board officials said it would be impossible to determine which presidential candidate had the most delegates file in their behalf.

The officials reported most of the nominating petitions seemed to name Carter, Wallace, Harris and U. S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill. Stevenson's name is being used by Daley so that an uncommitted bloc of delegates can be used by Daley at the convention in July.

Delegates pledged to either President Ford or former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California also filed nominating petitions Wednesday for the Republican primary. Supporters of both candidates are expected to file nominating petitions for all of the 101 delegate seats the state Republicans will have at the party's national convention.

'Smoke out' Howlett on funds issue: Walker

by United Press International

Gov. Daniel Walker Wednesday said his Democratic primary opponent, Michael Howlett, has never disclosed his personal finances during 15 years of public office.

Howlett must be "smoked out" on the issue, Walker said.

Walker made the statements at a news conference, the first of six he planned around Illinois Wednesday. Other stops included Rockford, Rock Island, Peoria, East St. Louis and Springfield.

"SEC. OF STATE Howlett has been on the public payrolls as state auditor and as secretary of state for 15 years," Walker said. "Never in all those years has Howlett made full disclosure of his personal finances. His finances are as secretive today as they were when he first ran for office."

Walker noted that he has disclosed his own personal finances every year since 1971 when he was running for his first term as governor.

Aside from personal finances, Walker has consistently refused to make public the names of contributors to his 1972 campaign. He said that is a different issue and he thinks voters are more interested in a candidate's personal finances than in campaign contributions.

"I believe disclosure is a vital issue in this campaign and Howlett must be and will be smoked out on this," he said.

ON OTHER ISSUES, Walker said he thinks he will benefit from a close contest in the Illinois Republican presidential primary on March 16. He said if voters get excited about one political race, they draw others to the polls and turnouts for both party primaries are larger.

"It's just a matter of great excitement," he said. "I expect to benefit from a hot contest on the Republican side."

Walker said he is not disturbed by the defection of several Democrats formally loyal to him into Howlett's camp. He said he thinks in a high-visibility office like the governor's "people make up their own minds."

He said at this point in the race "I'm not complacent but I am not worried."

by LEA TONKIN

The public is invited to participate in a state Water Resources Commission hearing slated Monday in Arlington Heights.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, said the program at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel will include discussion of the Lake Arlington project and the declining water table in Arlington Heights. Mrs. Macdonald is a commission member.

The commission plans a business meeting from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., followed by an area bus tour and the hearing from 3 to 4:30 p.m. A social hour, starting at 4:30 p.m. will be hosted by Arlington Heights Village Pres. James Ryan.

BALD EAGLE DAYS are coming. Environmentalists and eagle researchers will meet Jan. 30 through Feb. 1 at the Hotel Concourse, Madison, Wis. The conference will mark the start of a year-long campaign to raise funds for research and the preservation of eagle habitat, said Terrence Ingram, executive director of the Eagle Valley Environmentalists, Inc. (EVE). The Des Plaines Valley chapter of the Sierra Club said eagle enthusiasts who plan to attend the session should contact Ingram at Box 155, Apple River, Ill. 61001.

AN ILLINOIS Trail Guide will be published in April by the Illinois Dept. of Conservation, said director Tony Dean. More than 2,400 miles of bike, hiking, interpretive, motorcycle, snowmobile, equestrian, multiple use and canoe trails have been logged. The figure includes 830 miles of trails in state parks. Dean urged citizens to contribute information on added private trails in the state. Contact Dept. of Conservation, Division of Land and Historic Sites, 605 State Office Building, Springfield, Ill. 62706.

A CHICAGO hearing on proposed air pollution standards is slated Jan. 20 by the Illinois Pollution Control Board. Amendments proposed by the state Environmental Protection Agency would modify ozone episode regulations. The hearing will start at 10 a.m. at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus.

Colleagues give Newman vote of confidence

Ralph Newman, convicted of falsifying documents which helped former President Richard Nixon claim an undeserved $450,000 income tax deduction on his private papers, received a vote of confidence Wednesday from fellow members of the Chicago Library Board.

Louis Lerner, the board's president, said board members sent the 64-year-old Newman a letter of support a month ago. "There has been absolutely no pressure to have him resign," Lerner said. "Mr. Newman has served the public and has been good for the cultural life of Chicago."

Newman, a literary appraiser, Lincoln scholar and former library board president, was fined $10,000 Tuesday by a federal judge.

Wheeling Twp. chief seen as choice to succeed Fulle

by WANDALYN RICE

Wheeling Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus is emerging as a front-runner to succeed Cook County Comr. Floyd Fulle when the county board's five remaining Republicans make the appointment later this month.

Mrs. Kolerus and Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner of Evanston, who is backed by county Comr. Mary McDonald, are the two of more than 20 candidates most frequently mentioned for the board post.

The five commissioners will have hearings Jan. 22 and 23 to hear presentations from all candidates. Current plans call for Fulle's successor to be named in time to be sworn in at the Feb. 2 board meeting.

WORKING IN Mrs. Kolerus' favor, according to many observers, is the fact that she combines an attraction to independent voters with the long-standing respect of regular suburb party organizations.

Mrs. Kolerus has been township supervisor since 1969. Before that she served as township auditor and Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

Gardner's credentials are much less oriented toward regular Republican circles. He is a former state chairman of the Independent Voters of Illinois and was one of the founders of Project LEAP, a vote-fraud fighting group in Chicago.

Mrs. McDonald, who two years ago defied the GOP statemakers and won endorsement to the county board after she was originally passed over, said she would back Gardner shortly after Fulle was convicted in federal court of tax evasion and extortion.

"SHELDON GARDNER is the most qualified candidate," Mrs. McDonald said this week. "We need a lawyer on the board to help us fight."

Mrs. McDonald's early endorsement of Gardner is widely credited with helping to head off the automatic appointment of a GOP committeeman to the board post. In addition, former Republican Gov. Richard Ogilvie shortly after Fulle's resignation said he would oppose "cronyism" in the appointment.

Two years ago the "cronyism" charge was leveled at suburban committeemen when they slated four of their fellow committeemen for the county board election. After that flap, the slate was revised and Mrs. McDonald won endorsement. Three of the five suburban commissioners are now committeemen.

In addition to Mrs. Kolerus and Gardner several other candidates who are widely regarded as qualified for the post are expected to figure in whatever decision the county board members make. Des Plaines Attorney Wayne Anderson, who won many friends in 1974 in an unsuccessful race for county treasurer, Regional Transportation Authority board member Daniel Baldino and State Sen. Terrel Clarke, R-Western Springs, are mentioned frequently as alternatives to Mrs. Kolerus or Gardner.

HOWEVER, MOST informed ob-

servers believe that at the end of the screening process the five commissioners will name either Gardner or Mrs. Kolerus and much of the betting is on Mrs. Kolerus.

"With Ethel the commissioners could get the best of both worlds," one party official said. "They recognize that to be credible the Republicans need reform 'good government' type candidates, but Ethel also has ties to the regular party."

Mrs. Kolerus said she would welcome appointment to the county board because "It's something I'd really like to do."

Gardner, who serves as legal counsel to the county board in his capacity with the state's attorney's office, has been much more visible in his campaigning for the post. This week he said, "I have enough ego to believe I'm the best qualified for the job."

DOW JONES AVERAGE
30 Industrials
Closed at 898.69

Dow zooms to 898.69 pts.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average hit its highest level in more than two years Wednesday during the fourth day of a new year rally that produced the heaviest trading in 10 months on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow, the most widely followed market barometer, rose 7.87 points to 898.69, the highest since it closed at 908.41 Nov. 9, 1973.

The blue-chip average, a 12.99-point winner Tuesday, has gained 46.23 points in the first four sessions of 1976. Some observers were disappointed with the finish because the blue-chip indicator had risen to 904.44 at 1 p.m.

CLEVELAND TRUST CO. ignited a heavy surge of buying when it lowered its prime rate a quarter point to 7 per cent, indicating short-term interest rates are headed downward.

But a report the White House was worried about Soviet warships steaming toward Angola prompted some selling late in the session. Most analysts already had expected traders to cash in on some of this week's profits.

The volume of 33,176,000 shares was the heaviest since 34,133,840 were traded March 4, 1975. It was the third busiest day in the 184-year history of the NYSE. Turnover Tuesday was 31,270,000, the heaviest in nine months and the ninth largest on record.

Other averages also soared. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.42 to 83.95 and the average price of an NYSE common share increased by 16 cents. Advances topped declines, 927 to 570, among the 1,907 issues crossing the tape.

GENERAL MOTORS, strong in recent sessions, finished in fourth place on the active list, closing unchanged at 59-1/8 on 306,000 shares.

RCA TOPPED THE Big Board actives, up 5/8 to 20-7/8 on 427,900 shares. Pan American World Airways followed, unchanged at 5 1/4 on 349,900 shares, including a block of 279,300 shares at 5-1/8. Citicorp was third, off 3/8 to 31 1/4 on 318,200 shares.

The way we see it

Alcohol can hit any of us

Gradually we're learning that men aren't the only ones damaged or destroyed by one of the truest and most destructive of modern diseases.

In a two-part series published last week in The Herald, Staff Writer Karen Thompson reported that alcoholism is just as pervasive a problem to women as it is to men.

In the past, public attention has focused on drinking as a man's problem, perhaps because heavy drinking by men often produced obvious problems on the job or with the law.

Today, however, the reality that some women drink heavily — but unobtrusively — at home is becoming more and more apparent. It's now clear that all Americans, whether male or female, or young or old, can easily become victims of this ailment.

As alcoholism surfaces as a national problem, so should our acknowledgement that it can be treated.

In the Northwest suburbs

there are a variety of worthwhile treatment programs available. Three local hospitals — Lutheran General, Alexian Brothers and Forest Hospital — offer such programs. In addition, Alcoholics Anonymous offers programs which have given hope for heavy drinkers.

But the battle against this social and physical plague will be lost unless we continue to broaden our attack against it.

Treatment alone is not enough. Until we recognize that women, like men, can be afflicted with alcoholism, we'll fail to understand just how many Americans and their families are destroyed by the disease.

The ultimate tragedy of alcoholism is that there seems to be no "miracle" medical cure. But as we begin to acknowledge the dimensions of this physical and psychological crippler, then perhaps we can at least begin to bring it more effectively under control.

Revenue sharing view questioned

A recent (Dec. 18) editorial bearing the headline "Revenue Sharing Aids Local Units" endorses the federal revenue sharing program. Several reasons are given for the endorsement of it. It lists improving the quality of life in the suburbs, townships' careful use of the funds in people-oriented programs, the revenues being a godsend since recession and inflation have reduced the amount of local tax money available to local government, among others, as the reasons for the editorial praise. It further suggests that for the most part the money has been used wisely.

I beg to disagree. The sums returned to local units of government are comparatively small in relation to their total budgets, therefore the effect is minor on the quality of life anywhere, let alone in the suburbs. The fact that several or more local townships have used their revenues in noteworthy projects is indeed commendable, but scarcely evident of careful spending countrywide. There has been evidence of misuse in some of the media from time to time, but then I doubt that the media has time to do justice to this task when there are Watergates, wars and local corruption to monitor.

Whether the revenue is a godsend in light of recession and inflation having reduced revenues of local government is questionable. While recession (people out of work) does reduce local government revenue, inflation does not. Inflation actually causes government sales and income tax revenue to increase, not decrease. Inflation causes the cost of government to increase.

The decision as to whether or not the spending of revenue sharing funds is wise spending is a continuing challenge, not just a one-time task.

Then consider the not-so-apparent problems of this program. Each city, town, township, county, state and/or any other governing and/or taxing unit in the country is eligible for it. The prorating is based on constantly outdated census. The administrative problems connected to the dispersion of funds are indescribable, for both federal and local government. No one has yet assessed the administrative cost of the program or determined the number of people added to government. With every seventh employed person in the country today working for government, we can hardly afford to hire more.

Then there is the crowning blow which is the fact that the federal government has been operating at a deficit for each of the five years of this program's life. This means that Uncle Sam had to borrow all of the money that was shared. Since we taxpayers pay for the cost of everything that government does, how, I ask you, can you reasonably say that revenue sharing aids local government? If Congressman Crane objects to the program, philosophically or, otherwise, I would say praise him for exercising common sense. Don't criticize him. It would be far better for the federal government to "share" with local government by reducing federal taxes. This would permit and encourage local government, when and where needed, to raise local taxes to meet local needs through existing tax systems hopefully saving the cost of administering a new tax.

Birds view winter life

An open letter to all our warm weather friends:

My brothers, sisters, cousins, etc. enjoy your company every spring, summer and fall where we live on the High Point Lakes in Hoffman Estates.

It is a beautiful place and we delight in entertaining your little children, sometimes a few of us have been abused by the older ones, but for the most part life is pleasant, we always have enough to eat even when there is so much natural food around. Oh, those beautiful, lazy days of summer when we glide around the cool water and perhaps soar over your heads to land in your yard for a tidbit or two. And the joy of showing off our brand new offspring which everyone thinks are so cute.

We appreciate the new "Caution: Duck Crossing" sign along the road, we have lost a few of our friends to careless human beings — we know there are so many of us. Which leads me to our predicament, every winter when the weather turns so cold and our refuge, the water, turns to ice, an icy grave, if it freezes around us while we sleep. We are cold and most of all we are so hungry, so hungry. If we were more intelligent we would have left you to go south but we have become conditioned to all your food and companionship, we know you won't forget us now that it is too cold to come down to the lake and frolic among us — we need the food and some kind of shelter from the cold. Please help.

P.S. All restaurants and stores in the area, please note. All rolls, breads and cakes would be so appreciated.

As conveyed to Olga Larsen

Parking meters hit

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter is addressed to Robert J. Epley, village manager of Mount Prospect.

In the Herald I read your "Yes, Yes" position on the installation of parking meters in the village. A poor way to obtain additional revenue but a good way to hurt merchants currently doing business in the village. No, I am not in business. I am retired and moved here from the Washington, D.C. area eight months ago. I have had no parking problems in our lovely village.

You stated the meters would cost $70 to $80 to install. That is the one-time cost. You forgot to mention maintenance personnel, collectors and meter watchers. Just think of the savings to the taxpayer by not installing them.

Parking meters will produce a turnover in parking downtown, you say. They sure will. Lots of vacant spaces left by people going to nearby shopping centers. There is no business downtown that probably cannot be found in a shopping center or will soon be there after the meters go in. Merchants' monopoly of the best parking spaces? First, I doubt that very much, secondly how could they with our police patrol of three-wheel motorcycles on the job?

I suggest you and Mr. Rhea contact your counterpart in Highland Park. It is my understanding that they are turning the meters off in an effort to keep more business in town. — Ralph W. Arthur
Mount Prospect

Reader urges: 'study Bible'

In reply to Jane Dickinson's letter, "Birth control or abortion," the subject of your letter was how unfair it is for a single woman or, as you put it, a "woman" in high school or junior high to have to raise a child she conceived out of wedlock. And what a complete hardship would be put on her.

When I married my husband, I was given a special privilege to show him my love as no other person could. A very special and sacred way given to those who become "one in marriage."

You talk about rights. You have no rights to conceive a child if you do not deserve that privilege and cannot love and raise that child.

To those having the problem you describe, I strongly suggest that they spend some time reading their Bible for the prescription on morals rather than time with their doctor for a prescription on birth control.

Beverly Donovan

Dateline 1776

(by United Press International)
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8 — Congress authorized the immediate dispatch of shipwrights and troops to Gen. Schuyler at Albany to build boats for transporting men and supplies to Canada. Maryland was told to bend minutemen to Accomack and Northampton counties in Virginia to help against loyalist forces.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Thursday, Jan. 8, the eighth day of 1976 with 358 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

James Longstreet, Confederate general in the Civil War, was born on this date in 1821 and Elvis Presley in 1935.

ON THIS DAY in history:

• In 1815, American Gen. Andrew Jackson's forces decisively defeated the British in the Battle of New Orleans, the closing engagement of the War of 1812.

• In 1876, Congress approved legislation providing suffrage for blacks in the District of Columbia.

• In 1973, the trial of the "Watergate 7" began in Washington, D.C. They were charged with breaking into the national headquarters of the Democratic Party.

Golfing in January? That's their sport!

There's something remarkable about the enthusiasm of such sportsmen as Gary Hallberg, Mike Morgan, Frank Happ and Gerry Hamburg.

Last Sunday, while the rest of the suburbs were holing up at home, snuggling up to fireplaces and radiators to fend off the subzero wind chill factors, Hallberg and his cohorts were out on the Buffalo Grove Golf Course participating in the annual Eskimo Open Golf Tournament.

There were 68 men and women who braved the cold to take on the course. Hallberg, an 18-year-old Barrington High School student, shot a two-over-par 74, winning the tournament. Morgan, of Palatine, came in second with a 75.

There are those who will chortle and jeer at the duffers in their mufflers, clutching their clubs with red, raw hands.

But we can only sit back and wonder what it is about golf that makes the Eskimo Open an annual event.

Rumors will fly when school closings loom

When you close a school, you're bound to have a strong reaction from the community.

Just ask administrators in Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Arlington Heights Dist. 25 or High School Dist. 214. Immediately following the first hint that a school might be closed, possibly within the next five years, the rumors begin to fly. People who never knew which school district they lived in suddenly become aware and involved.

It is a foregone conclusion in the minds of many Arlington Heights residents that Arlington High School will be closed in a few years. When Dist. 214 board members reviewed projections on enrollment and finances and discussed a distant possibility of school closings, within 24 hours the phones were ringing.

I'VE YET TO TALK with a person who isn't positive Arlington High School will close down — unless that person was a parent from Prospect High School or Forest View High School. They're positive one of their buildings will wind up the sacrificial lamb.

Dist. 25 is in the midst of public hearings in which plans for combating declining enrollment and financial problems are being discussed. Included in each of the plans are recommendations to close schools. And although the board has yet to commit itself to a decision on whether any schools will close, many residents have all but packed up the erasers and construction paper.

Dist. 57 is in a most uncomfortable position. The district, located in central Mount Prospect, closed one of its schools last year and is on the brink of deciding whether to close another.

Parents turn out in droves for committee and board meetings where the topic is raised, and the board is under great pressure to keep the school open.

Few parents like to see their school close. But there comes a time when a school board has no other alternative.

I've seen school boards arrive at sound decisions and then back down under pressure from special interest groups. Backing down may silence the protesters but it frequently has a devastating effect on the entire district.

Here's a great idea. The Los Angeles Board of Education has a new graduation requirement: high school diplomas will not be awarded to students who can't read well enough to understand signs, labels, contracts and job applications.

Proficiency tests will be given to students every year they are in high school, and if they cannot pass after the fourth try they will not graduate.

The board wants its students to have "survival" skills in reading, and mandated that the test be designed to show that a student can read applications for a driver's license, unemployment insurance claims, job applications, want ads, news stories, warranties and check books and understand road maps, electric bills and cash register tapes.

But my favorite: The board also wants to be sure kids can read the TV listings. Now there's a true survival skill.

Telephone taxes down 1%; rates may be on way up

Telephone users will pay lower federal excise tax on their service bills starting this month.

The tax rate drops from 7 per cent to 6 per cent. The phone company collects the tax from customers and turns it over to the federal government. In 1974, Illinois Bell's total tax bill was $459.7 million or $97.10 per telephone. Of this amount, federal excise tax accounted for $103.6 million.

Congress passed the Excise, Estate and Gift Tax Adjustment Act in 1970, calling for a gradual reduction of the tax from the 10 per cent rate. The tax will be eliminated in 1982.

Illinois Bell customers may encounter a service rate increase, however. A Feb. 4 deadline is set for an Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) decision on the utility's bid for an annual $178 million rate increase. The rate hike proposal includes charges for directory assistance and 20 cent charges for pay telephone service. The company says that the recent postal service rate increase will mean an added $1.3 million in operating costs.

Elk Grove Dems to hear Alan Dixon

Dixon will speak at 8 p.m. at the meeting in the International Assn. of Machinists Hall, 50 W. Oakton St., Des Plaines. The meeting is open to the public.

Social Security

Can it be changed to treat women more equitably?

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

Women's rights advocates in and out of Congress have opened a Pandora's box with their demands that the Social Security system be reformed to treat women more equitably.

That the system is unfair to many women of diverse lifestyles and ages is difficult to dispute.

But the fact is the Social Security system was set up on the very premises which the reformers today reject: the family unit as the predominant lifestyle, the man as breadwinner, and the woman as homemaker.

And, since Social Security is a complex system of inter-relationships, it is not easy to readjust without chain reactions that throw the whole thing out of kilter.

Hence, it is a formidable though necessary task that faces Social Security reformers.

Social Security was enacted in 1935 on three basic principles, according to scholar Philip Booth: that old-age benefits should be national, compulsory and a matter of right, without regard to individual means or needs.

J. Douglas Brown, a drafter of the act, termed it a "middle layer of protection" between welfare and private insurance, with benefits related to past contributions and to loss of income normally received.

The Commissioner of Social Security under the Eisenhower administration, Charles Schottland, described the act as social insurance for "all persons who work, regardless of income level, type of employment, or other special characteristics."

THERE HAS from the outset been a conflict between those who see Social Security more as social insurance — to be returned on the basis of need — and those who emphasize equity — getting back according to what you put in.

Booth insists the two concepts are not mutually exclusive. But the confusion of operating under both principles is apparent throughout the system's history and especially in the current reform movement.

In 1937-38 an Advisory Council recommended some changes in the Social Security program to meet society's growing and changing needs.

"An important element in the long-range financial condition of the Social Security system rests on the increasing labor-force participation of married women in the years ahead." — Senate Task Force Report on Women and Social Security ing needs. According to Brown, that council "shifted the whole concept from a hybrid compromise between private savings and social insurance to a clearcut concept of social insurance."

"The new focus became adequacy and the protection of the family unit. Adequacy, not equity, was the primary consideration."

But at the same time, Brown points out, the council "confirmed the principle of graduations in benefits related to earnings . . ." or equity. This, he said, was not only to sustain incentive, but also in recognition of the fact that "adequacy is related to the customary costs and standards of living of a family."

IN RECENT YEARS, as fully half of all women between 23 and 60 have entered the work force, the notion of equity has resurfaced in proposals for extending better Social Security coverage to women.

"These are among the questions to be faced; if a monetary value is to be placed on homemaker services, how should the value be determined? Who pays the cost? And when does the homemaker retire?—Task Force Report

A major criticism has been that a working wife and her husband may get less retirement benefits than a couple with identical income earned solely by the husband. This happens because the working couple is not allowed to draw Social Security on their combined income, only their individual earnings. Moreover, the working wife doesn't get a spouse's benefit unless it is larger than her own.

Pointing out that income tax liability is based on a couple's aggregate income, women's proponents have drawn up legislation to allow Social Security benefits to be paid on combined income. The Senate Task Force on Women and Social Security, however, found a problem in developing a formula that would keep working couples' benefits above a non-working wife and working husband's benefits at all income levels and still relate to earnings. The Task Force instead recommended increasing all workers' primary benefits and reducing wives' allowances.

Some reformers have gone a step further and advocated that working wives draw benefits on their own work records plus a wife's allowance. Under equal rights law, this would have to apply to husbands as well, meaning a working couple could draw four Social Security benefits — two primary benefits and two spouses' benefits. This proposal would be costly and discriminatory against single workers.

ACCORDING TO Brown, wives' allowances were originally set at 50 per cent because "it looked right." Interestingly, he defended wives' allowances on the grounds that though their contributions in the home are not measurable by cash wages, they are making economic contributions to society.

This is the same argument currently being used by women's advocates who want Social Security benefits extended to homemakers in their own right rather than as dependents. It constitutes a third Social Security concept, being based neither on equity nor need.

The Task Force, while sympathetic to this idea, found it incompatible with the principle of Social Security as an earnings

"Because women frequently have sporadic and interrupted employment patterns . . . only about 40 per cent are covered by disability insurance under Social Security, compared to 90 per cent for men." — Task Force Report replacement program funded by workers' contributions. Nevertheless, the proposal has been introduced into Congress by Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y.

The principle of earnings replacement, which encompasses both need and equity, is the basis for criticism of poor Social Security coverage for women who temporarily lose wages due to pregnancy or whose work record is otherwise interrupted by family obligations. Booth terms this "an incredible gap in a society where one of every four women with children under 3 is in the labor force."

This lack of provision for work interruption also causes women to lose out on disability coverage. Only 40 per cent of disabled women workers get disability insurance, compared with 90 per cent of disabled male workers.

BUT BOOTH puts his finger on the nub of the problem with Social Security reforms when he notes that despite court decisions finding various Social Security provisions unfair and discriminatory, "a general reexamination of the rationale behind such provisions is yet to take place."

The Senate Task Force has probably come as close as anyone so far in evaluating the various reform proposals in terms of the original purposes of Social Security and recognizing that this program cannot solve all economic inequalities between the sexes nor all economic deprivation.

The complete Senate Task Force Report on Women and Social Security can be purchased for $1.10 from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

The Social Security Administration's "Woman's Guide to Social Security," outlining current provisions affecting women, can be obtained at your local Social Security office; in Arlington Heights, 120 W. Eastman, phone 398-2902.

Questions on present Social Security provisions can be addressed to the central Social Security office, 255-6570.

Money major block to system reform

The major obstacle to many Social Security reform proposals is money.

According to federal Budget Director James T. Lynn, Social Security reserves of $46 billion will be totally depleted by 1990 at the present rate — and many of the reform proposals would cost large additional amounts without necessarily increasing contributions.

Moreover, the declining birth rate and increasing longevity will mean in years to come that there will be more elderly Social Security recipients and fewer workers providing funds.

Several options for increasing Social Security revenues are being discussed: increasing the taxable wage base, increasing the tax percentage rate, using general revenue funds, and boosting the retirement age from 65 to 68 or 70.

However, in an election year Congress and the President are reluctant to adopt any measures that would be unpopular with the public. Thus, Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., chairman of the Social Security subcommittee of the House Ways and Means committee, predicts nothing will be done this year.

By the same token, reform measures with big price tags and unclear provisions for funding — such as Rep. Bella Abzug's (D-N.Y.) bill to extend Social Security coverage to homemakers — are given little chance of success at present.

Here are some of the major proposals to eliminate discrimination against women in Social Security.

Proposal	Pro	Con	Sponsor
Let married workers collect a spouse's benefit in addition to their own work benefit.	Married women workers should receive greater compensation than non-working wives.	Disparity between single and married workers would be increased, and both would have to pay more into SS.	Rep. Abzug (D-N.Y.)
Permit payment of benefits to married couples on basis of their combined incomes.	Couples with identical total earnings should be treated equally.	Increased cost and difficulty of achieving an equitable benefit formula.	Abzug Sen. Towers (R-Tex.)
Reduce the 20-year requirement on the duration of a divorced or widowed woman's marriage for her to qualify for spouse's benefits.	Would lessen the hardship for women who miss the requirement by a year or so, and would be more in line with duration requirements for wives' and widows' benefits.	Women married less time suffer less loss of support; several divorced wives could collect benefits from the same man's work record.	Task Force, Abzug, Rep. Fish (R-N.Y.) Sen. Eagleton (D-Mo.)
Remarriage of a widow, widower or parent should not reduce benefits.	Widows and widowers would not have to avoid remarriage for economic reasons.	A couple with the wife a former widow could get greater benefits than other couples with identical work records.	Rep. Koch (D-N.Y.) Rep. Armstrong (R-Colo.)
Increase the number of "drop-out" years.	Women who stop working awhile to rear a family, or who earned low or part-time wages prior to higher wages, could drop more of those years from their earnings average and qualify for higher benefits.	It would be costly.	Task Force
Extend disability insurance to all disabled workers who qualify for retirement benefits, dropping the recent work test.	Protection for disabled women workers — now seldom covered — would be greatly improved.	It would be costly, and could go beyond placement of lost earnings in some cases.	Task Force
Extend full protection to disabled widows regardless of age.	Disabled widows have a greater need than older non-disabled widows, who now get greater benefits.	The disability insurance trust fund is already financially strained.	Task Force
Include homemaking as covered employment under SS.	Homemakers contribute to the economy and should receive SS protection in their own right.	SS is an earnings replacement program; homemakers experience no loss of earnings; extra payment into SS would have to be made by the spouse or spouse's employer.	Abzug Rep. Jordan (D-Tex.)
Reduce from 60 to 45 the eligibility age for widow's benefits.			Rep. Perkins (D-Ky.)
Repeal earnings limits for SS.			Armstrong

Doctor clarifies cancer comment

I find it hard to believe your statement that a higher per cent of lung cancer in women occurs in the absence of smoking. Are you seriously suggesting non-smoking, childbearing age women are more prone to lung cancer than their puffing sisters?

Of course not! You have read my statement out of context. Women tend to be free of lung cancer during the childbearing years. Men are prone to lung cancer during this age span. In men, more than 90 per cent of the lung cancers occur in smokers. In women the percentage of lung cancers associated with smoking is nowhere near the 90 per cent. But the reason is because most of the rare cancers of the lungs seen in young women are the type not associated with smoking.

This certainly does not mean that I approve of smoking by young women or by anyone, male or female, at any age.

Some time ago I read your column about packing a school lunch. I have a suggestion which has worked for me for years. You can freeze the sandwiches so that they are frozen when packed in the morning. By lunch time they are thawed and ready for eating, but still cool.

You can also prepare a quantity of sandwiches once a week and take them out of the freezer as needed.

That is a useful suggestion and I am happy to pass it along. The way to prevent food bacteria from multiplying is by either keeping the food cold enough or hot enough. The frozen sandwich under usual circumstances will prolong the time it is cold enough to prevent excessive growth of bacteria that sometimes leads to food poisoning. But this doesn't eliminate the need to follow normal precautions in food preparation.

I am 37 and have high blood pressure very bad. I have been taking Aldomet for five years for my blood pressure. Is there any chance that I could get breast cancer from these drugs?

Stop worrying about that. The drug that was mentioned with relation to breast cancer was reserpine or Serpasil. Aldomet is not one of these and does not contain any of the reserpine medicines in it.

Furthermore, a more recently reported study (New England Journal of Medicine, June 26, 1975) of the chances of getting breast cancer if you take these medicines did not support the earlier widely publicized studies. In short, it looks like there is no connection at all between these medicines and breast cancer.

The problem in the earlier reports may have been in the way the studies were designed. So once again we learn that before you jump to conclusions, you need to be very sure that your study is designed properly to permit such conclusions to be made.

For more information on blood pressure send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Reader brews her own after-dinner coffee

Dear Dorothy: Instead of buying any of those so-expensive international coffees for a different taste treat, I place a half square of chocolate and one-half teaspoon of cinnamon in the percolator basket along with my regular coffee. It is brewed standard style. It's great with cream and sugar, but is even better as an after-dinner coffee by passing up the cream and sugar and using instead a scoop of ice cream on top.—Carole Dal Pozzo

This sounds yummy to me.

Dear Dorothy: Maybe our method will help Mrs. Newby and others who have meat spoilage in the freezer. They should try pure vanilla extract. Wipe the entire inner surface of the freezer with the extract, then pour some on a sponge or cloth in a saucer and place in the freezer overnight. Even though the insulation was involved, it worked for us.—Anne Turner

This is intriguing. Most repair people throw up their hands when insulation is involved in refrigerators and freezers. You sure the insulation was affected?

Dear Dorothy: I like trying out things I see in your column. A reader suggested peeling bananas, placing them in a fruit jar, then refrigerating — to keep them good for several days. Tried it, but found the bananas a bit mushy. On a second try, put in two peeled bananas and added a paper towel. Three days later, they were perfect.—Mrs. G. R. Burrett

Dear Dorothy: I take issue with the "no taste" wooden spoon. Try using one with spaghetti sauce and you'll find one spoon has to be reserved just for this use.—Mark E. Carfield

Genetic engineering presents a dilemma

A "dilemma" is defined as a situation requiring a decision between two alternatives, each equally undesirable.

For years the U.S. government has unsuccessfully grappled with the dilemma of how best to protect its citizens from hazards which could be posed by new drugs, new consumer products, new pollutants, etc.

One horn of the dilemma is to assume these things are dangerous until proven safe, in which case truly beneficial discoveries may be long denied the American public.

The other horn is to assume they are safe until proven dangerous, which has more often been the policy of federal agencies and has led to all sorts of horrors (e.g., thalidomide babies).

NEITHER ALTERNATIVE is satisfactory. Both depend upon inadequate definitions of "safe" and "dangerous," and the difficulty of proving either until it is too late.

This particular dilemma, seemingly more unsolvable than ever, now looms before society in a new form.

Scientists recently synthesized a mammalian gene for the first time ever, but even more significant is their ability to create hybrid forms of life. For five years scientists have been capable of transplanting bits of DNA, an organism's genetic "code," into the genetic material of another organism, thus creating an entirely new form of life.

Despite the revolutionary nature of this process, it is now easily repeatable. "A freshman biology class can do it," according to Dr. Stanley Falkow, microbiologist at the University of Washington.

AWED BY THE spectre of where this power could lead, the scientific community has asked that the government establish controls over this form of genetic engineering.

A National Institutes of Health special committee, recently meeting in California to draw up such guidelines, immediately came face to face with the dilemma: whether to impose tight restrictions on such experimentation until safety is proven, or to set loose restrictions until risks are shown.

On the one hand, genetic engineering can produce new strains of bacteria that can clean up oil spills, produce low-cost cheese and cure disease. The social benefits of such experimentation are practically limitless.

On the other hand, the same type of procedure could unleash drug-resistant bacteria that could wipe out the entire globe. (Not to mention the heinous possibilities in the realm of human genetic engineering.)

THE QUESTION OF loose control (to encourage research) versus tight control (to protect society) has been described by the committee chairman, Dr. DeWitt Stetten Jr., as "intrinsically insoluble." Yet its solution appears crucial to the future of civilization.

It calls to mind another equally insoluble dilemma, one which continues to confound the greatest legal and theological minds and institutions of our society: how do we define life and death, and which is to be presumed unless proven otherwise?

In the midst of the staggering powers mankind has grasped, dilemmas such as these are a forever humbling force.

Fantasyland: spring seed catalogs

I had meant only to glance at the new seed catalog, but before I knew it an hour had elapsed.

There are a round carrot, a white beet and a pendant hanging basket tomato in the new Stokes Seed Catalog.

Planet carrot is an improved round or beet-shaped carrot with deep orange flesh and sturdy green tops. Perfect for canning or pickling as a gourmet carrot similar to Baby Finger. Nankes, if you're familiar with that one. (Soll should be hilled over the carrot to prevent green shoulders — just a little cultural tip!) Stokes' Albino White beet will not bleed in salads or when cooked and its white-ribbed tops make excellent greens.

THE TUMBLIN' TOM tomato is one I tried when it was an experimental variety in my 1975 garden. Big, not cherry tomatoes, on this hanging basket variety. The plant is dwarf but yields 1/4 to 2-ounce fruit. Nice for growing on condo patios. (Stokes Seed Co. catalog address: Box 548, Buffalo, N.Y. 14240, printed in English, or if you're bilingual, French, too!)

For you tomato freaks, and I know there are many of you out there, here's another gem: a stuffing tomato shaped inside like a pepper, uniquely hollow, without a lot of seeds and mush.

And then there's Tomato Easy Peel, developed for its exceptional skin, which slips right off without scalding, leaving a tomato perfect for slicing, salads or sandwiches.

TOMATO EASY PEEL is in the Park Seed Co. catalog. Write to Greenwood, S.C., for this one.

The Thompson and Morgan people of Ipswich, England, always put out a beautiful catalog and it is available free — as are all those mentioned here — through the American distributor, P.O. Box 24, 401 Kennedy Blvd., Somerville, N.J. 08883. If you like to get mail from abroad, you can procure a catalog directly by writing T & M at Crane Hall, London Road, Ipswich, Suffolk, England.

The Thompson catalog features Pepper Slim Pim, designed to pick when the pepper is but a wee 2 1/2 inches. We all know most peppers picked this small would be bitter and unpalatable, but here's one that isn't, and it's a good variety for short-season climates and for people who want to harvest their peppers sooner.

THERE'S A NEW corn variety out that will interest home gardeners. It is Corn Candy Stick and you can eat it like a popsicle! The corn cob will go through an automatic garbage disposal and is ideal for whole ear freezing as there is very little wasted space and no cob flavor.

Most good gardeners plan ahead by sending for their favorite seed catalogs around the first of the year. Then they can consult with family on what to grow, plan garden space and buy only as many seeds as are needed.

And window shopping in the seed catalogs has another plus. It is pleasant, diverting and may carry you off into another summer, another fantasy, a projected dream.

College grid playoff proposal questioned

Did you experience a second hang-over watching the dismal football showings by the Big Ten on New Year's Day?

Because of the upset of Ohio State and Michigan's failure to upset, Oklahoma was given the mythical national title. It might be the last pretend crown the UPI and AP polls will give.

Next week at the NCAA convention in St. Louis a playoff proposal is expected to come to a vote. If a majority of the 130 colleges are in favor of the plan, it will begin next year.

"I feel fairly confident that the playoff plan will be approved," said Ernie Casale, chairman of the Division I Football Championships Feasibility Committee.

If Temple University's athletic director is right, at this time next year four teams will be preparing for semi-final games. The winners will play for the title the same weekend as the Super Bowl.

"We would want to avoid a conflict with the Super Bowl, but that would be easy enough," said Casale. "We could play Friday night, Saturday afternoon or Monday night."

The bowls would not act as qualifying rounds. It would be important for teams to be impressive in order to be chosen for the playoffs. In other words — pour it on.

Big money demands that the bowls be kept. The Big Ten and Pacific-8 earned approximately $1.1 million each with Ohio State and UCLA pocketing about one fourth each.

The Big Ten received a bonus this year with Michigan bringing about $900,000 to the conference. Of that sum, $200,000 went to Michigan.

"But with the playoff system, the financial rewards would be even greater with a renegotiated TV contract," said Casale.

And so, along with a legitimate national champion, amateur football has the chance to earn some huge "professional" purses.

Paul Logan

Associate Sports Editor

Wayne Duke, the Big Ten commissioner, said he was totally opposed to the playoff idea. A national championship would "draw a further line of demarcation between the haves and the have nots," said Duke. "I'm equally concerned with the Iowas and Indians as with the Ohio States and the Michigans."

At a meeting of the major conferences last December, all but one of the conference commissioners were not in favor of the proposal. The Big Ten as a whole has informally adopted this approach, according to Duke.

"What's wrong with not having a national title?" he asked adding that he thought it promoted more interest in collegiate football than "putting all the eggs in one basket."

Duke as well as the state's two Big Ten coaches — Bob Blackman and John Pont — were also very concerned about the players' well being.

"Players are still in college No. 1 for an education," said Blackman. Illinois' head man. "Playoffs would be tremendously unfair to schools on any kind of a quarter system. The playoffs would go right on into the final exam period, which would be very poor."

"When I say I'm against it I mean whether or not it's a student-athlete at Northwestern, Michigan or Ohio State," said Pont, Northwestern's coach. "I'm concerned about what college football is all about."

"The guys on our team would give their right arms to play in a bowl game," said Blackman. "Usually you take a week off after the regular season, get exams out of the way and then start practice again. That's exciting and that's fun."

It could become a lengthy ordeal if this proposal is adopted. Pont wondered about another concern:

"Where's a team up north going to practice? Right now there's snow on the practice facilities. Right now it's 10 above (zero) in Chicago."

Right now only major college football is without a national playoff. I'm sure many fans would be happy to see that situation changed. But would the controversy end just because a champion is crowned? I wonder.

A committee would have to choose the top four teams in the country. It would have been difficult to tab these teams after last week's bowl outcomes. The best might have been Oklahoma, Arizona State, Alabama and Ohio State, but imagine the uproar from UCLA and Arkansas followers.

There's another thing to be concerned about besides the interruption of the athletes' education and the controversy coming from the committee's choices — pressure. There will exist a Super Bowl-type pressure that young men between the ages of 18 and 22 might not be able to handle.

As long as the bowl games exist, a series of playoff games would seem to be too much of a hardship for these collegians.

I once favored a means other than the polls for determining a national champion, but the NCAA proposal doesn't appear to be the answer.

If it's approved next week, this sport will have become more professional than amateur.

Mid-Suburban gymnastics season resumes tonight after long layoff

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

With the Christmas crunch out of the way the Mid-Suburban League gymnastics season resumes tonight with several teams wondering what the long layoff did to them and what the second half of the year holds in store.

Nine teams will be on the apparatus tonight with Prospect traveling to Forest View, Rolling Meadows entertaining Conant and Hoffman Estates hosting Schaumburg.

In nonconference action Arlington will be at Barrington, Mundelein at Buffalo Grove and Wheeling at Maine West.

The Prospect Knights, who took eighth place in last week's Arlington Invite, are hoping for a return to consistency in the second half of the season. They have two of their toughest meets ahead of them, with Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows, and head coach Pat Kivland was disappointed with the effort his team had at Arlington.

"We weren't hitting very good," Kivland said. "We had a bad day and the scores indicated it."

"You can see that especially on the rings, where we've hit 24 before."

Prospect slipped to 18.25 on that event, their lowest total of the night on an event that is traditionally one of their strongest.

Glen Wilke led the team with a 6.4 but still dropped nearly two points off what he is capable of scoring.

"We've looked sharper in practice," Kivland said. "But not sharp enough."

Vic Avigliano's Rolling Meadows Mustangs finished a notch ahead of Prospect at the Arlington Invite.

"I really liked that meet," Avigliano said, "because the kids get a chance to see some of the best gymnasts in the state and then I can sit down with them and show them where they're going to have to improve to be as good."

Meadows was in the 20s on each event except side horse and P-Bars, but the scores they notched in those two events were close to what they had been averaging in MSL competition.

"We had an unusual meet," Avigliano said. "Some kids didn't hit as well as they're supposed to and others hit better than we expected."

Mark Wacławski swung an 8.05 on high bar to pick up the slack caused by Keith Liszewski's off-night 6.8. The ring team, paced by Dave Bycroft's 8.15, had good support from Liszewski (7.5) and Mark Dahlquist (7.05).

Conant, the Mustangs' opponent tonight, has a third place finish in the Mundelein Invite to their credit and an improved all-arounder in Jeff Worst, who averaged 6.65 to take third place in that meet.

The other conference meet could be a dead heat as Schaumburg gets a look at Hoffman Estates.

The Hawks have a slight edge, scoring in the 80s while Schaumburg is still trying to get out of the 70s neighborhood.

The Saxons haven't been in action as a team since Dec. 18 but they have one of the better MSL free ex men in Mark Sterle, a junior with mid-7.00 scoring credentials.

"Over the vacation," said Hoffman coach Willie Vrba, "we just worked on tricks. We just started to put them together in routines and the kids have been getting hot hands and looking shaky. I'm anxious to see what the layoff did to us."

Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington will be tested by nonleague opponents.

The Cardinals will be on the road against Barrington and despite a tenth place finish in their own tournament, head coach Tom Chapman is determined to look at the bright side.

"I thought we did a fair job," Chapman said. "We're going through some trials now, we're in a situation again of having people hurt, but I think that's how we can improve. By overcoming those problems."

Buffalo Grove will have an improving Dewey Deal, who copped second in the all-around at the Mundelein Invite with a 6.77 average, in their dual meet with Mundelein.

Helping the Bison to a second place finish in that meet were specialists Fred Bista, Lee Battaglia, Evan Jones, Jay Truelson, Mark Haisley and Mark Farrington, who all hit in the 7.0s.

Wheeling has been idle for 23 days but will be tested with two meets in three days. After visiting Maine West tonight the Wildcats will host New Trier East Saturday.

Area swimmers improve times; Tague is leader

Perhaps it was the crosstown rivalry that spurred the swimmers to greater heights when Hersey took on St. Viator, as several top area times got even better.

Though the strong St. Viator Lions won easily, 53-29, Chris Tague of Hersey improved on his already top times on the Paddock Honor Roll.

Tague swam the 200-yard freestyle in 1:46.9, bettering his old mark of 1:47.3. Tague also improved on his time in the 500-yard freestyle, which is also tops in the area. He swam the event in a time of 4:46.8, bettering his old mark of 4:49.8 by three seconds.

The St. Viator tankers also improved on their top time on the honor roll in the medley relay. The Lion team of Doug Peonski, Dan Peonski, Mark Rohl and Mark Ruseche beat their old time of 1:44.8 with a 1:44.5 clocking.

Rohl also improved on his time in the 100-yard freestyle, which at 50.1 was second best in the area. Rohl swam the event in 49.6 to trim a half second off that time. Rohl is still second on the honor roll in the event, behind Tague in first, with a best time of 49.1 seconds.

In Buffalo Grove's easy non-conference win over McHenry, 112-49, the Bison set a new school record by taking every first-place event in the meet. Bison diver Alan Cymbal also improved his standing on the honor roll in the meet.

ST. VIATOR'S Mark Rohl bears down in the 100-yard freestyle. Rohl upped his best time of the year in the event against Hersey Tuesday, with a 49.6, to firm up his hold on second place on the Paddock Honor Roll. Rohl also holds first on the honor roll in 50-yard free with a 22.8 time. The Viator swimmer also has earned a fourth place on the honor roll in the 200-yard IM, with a time of 2:09.9.

Park offers lessons

Table Tennis Center plans grand opening

Olympic Park, 600 N. Ridge Ave., in Arlington Heights, will hold a grand opening of its Table Tennis Center on Sunday from 1 until 5 p.m.

The center, which is open to the public, is something new to the Northwest Suburbs. It offers six championship tables in a barrier space to provide an excellent atmosphere for high quality play.

The schedule of events on opening day are a demonstration of modern table tennis, world champions in an exhibition, open play and a short video taped program of a U.S. Open match.

The Arlington Heights Park District will offer table tennis lessons at Olympic Park, 600 N. Ridge, on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. beginning Jan. 19. The lessons will be for junior girls and boys ages 17 and under.

A class will consist of 12 juniors who will meet for three hours, twice weekly for four weeks. Instructions and exhibitions will be conducted by nationally ranked players who are presently competing in world and national tournaments.

The fee for the 24 hours of instructions is $15 per session. The instruction will be on an individual basis. Registration will be at Olympic Park, Monday through Friday, 1-5 p.m.

The center is sanctioned by the U.S. Table Tennis Association and will compete in many sanctioned tournaments throughout the year.

For further information call Mert Taylor, 255-6621 or C.F. LIU, at 462-4912.

Paddock tourneys

Contrary to an inference included in a story last week regarding the 1977 Paddock bowling tourneys being held at Beverly Lanes and Thunderbird Bowl, the 1978 events are scheduled for Striking Lanes Jan. 18 for the men; and Elk Grove Bowl Jan. 24 (mixed) and Jan. 25 for the women.

Outfielder tops baseball draft

The Detroit Tigers, once so deep in outfielders they could afford to shift a Golden Glove winner to shortstop, tapped Steve Kemp as the first pick Wednesday in baseball's 11th annual winter draft in an attempt to restore some punch and pride to their outfield.

The Tigers were awarded the first pick after posting the worst record in the major leagues last season and tapped the 21-year-old Kemp to begin the regular phase of the draft. A 5-11, 185-pounder from Arcadia, Calif., Kemp played with the United States team in the Pan American Games this past fall, hitting at a .305 clip.

West Coast players, particularly from California, and players from the southeast, dominated the draft in the early going while Illinois picks were conspicuously absent. Baltimore pegged Craig Robinson, a catcher-first baseman from Chicago on the third round and later draftee number 114 was Kenneth Jarahek, an outfielder from Western Springs that Cleveland selected.

The first White Sox choice was Jesse Baez, a 6-foot catcher from Pico Rivera, Calif. and the seventh man drafted. Other White Sox selections were John Reiter from Florissant, Miss., Michael Estes from Dayton, Va. and Andy McGaffigan — all right handed pitchers — and Robert Koccol, an outfielder from Cocoa, Fla.

The Cubs led off with John Faley, a 6-1, 195-pound righty hurler from Cinaminson, N.J. They also picked Bryan Johnson, a catcher from Bellevue, Wash., Ronald Davis, a righty pitcher from Houston, Tex., and Raymond Dimick, a righty pitcher from Burbank, Calif.

Baseball Cardinals want Illini QB

The starting quarterback at the University of Illinois, who also is a catcher in baseball, was selected as the St. Louis Cardinals' fourth pick in the secondary phase of baseball's winter free-agent draft.

James Kopatz, a 6-3, 210-pounder from Urbana, Ill., started for the football Illini in 1974 and 1975. He skipped baseball in 1974 to devote more time in football.

The secondary phase of the draft was for players drafted last June but not signed.

Ferguson is new Ranger GM-coach

John Ferguson, former Montreal Canadiens "enforcer," Wednesday night was named general manager and head coach of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Ferguson, 37, replaces Emile Francis, who was fired as general manager Tuesday night and Ron Stewart, the Rangers' head coach since the beginning of this season.

In signing Ferguson the Ranger brass obviously is counting on him to transform the club's weak-hitting image to the tougher style popularized by the NHL Philadelphia champion Philadelphia Flyers. The Rangers refused to speculate on Ferguson's salary but it is estimated at at least $100,000 for the dual post.

Oiler linebacker is top AFC rookie

Robert Brazile, the Houston Oilers' top draft choice last season who emerged as one of the premier linebackers in the National Football League in just one season, Wednesday was named United Press International's American Conference Rookie of the Year for 1975.

Brazile, a 6-foot-4, 230-pounder from Jackson State who was the sixth player selected in the pro football draft last year, helped anchor a Houston defense that led the Oilers to a 10-4 finish, the club's best since 1962.

In one of the closest votes in recent years, Brazile was named on each conference city. Russ Francis, the New England Patriots' tight end, and defensive back Neal Coble of the Oakland Raiders tied for second with eight votes each and Cleveland tight end Oscar Roan was next at four.

Hamill in early figure skating lead

Dorothy Hamill of the Skating Club of New York received first place votes from all seven judges Wednesday to take the early lead in women's singles competition at the biennial edition of the U.S. Figure Skating Championships at the Broadmoor World Arena in Colorado Springs.

Miss Hamill, considered the United States' best hope for a gold medal at next month's Olympics in Innsbruck, had 96.70 points and seven ordinals after completing the three compulsory figures. The 19-year-old skater is the defending national women's singles champion and is shooting for her third U.S. title.

In second place after Thursday's compulsories was Kath Malmberg of the Wagon Wheel Figure Skating Club in Rockton, Ill.

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Soviet Wings exploded with second period goals by Sergei Kapustin, Victor Schlalimov and Yuri Laipkin Wednesday night to trounce the penalty-prone Chicago Black Hawks 4-2 and rack up the third victory for the two touring Russian hockey teams in five games against National Hockey League teams.

It was the second victory in three games for the Wings, runners-up to the other touring Soviet team, the Army, in the Russian amateur championships.

The Wings beat the Pittsburgh Penguins and took a 12-6 lacing from the Buffalo Sabres in their only defeat thus far in the United States.

Three of the Wings' four goals came on power plays, one of them when the Hawks were short two men while the Soviets were at full strength.

Chicago was whistled for 12 penalties against six called on the Wings by the Russian referee, Yuri Karandin.

The Hawks were facing a span of 96 seconds with two men in the penalty box midway through the second period when Schlalimov took a pass from Yuri Tyerhin and whacked a 20-footer past Hawks' goalie Tony Esposito, only 44 seconds after the second penalty was called on Chicago.

The Russians' first goal, by Tyerhin on a 60-footer from the blueline through a throng of players massed in front of the net also came on a power play while Laipkin's score wound up the three-goal second period spurge with a 30-footer on a power play.

The only goal by the Wings when both teams were at full strength went to Kapustin four minutes into the second period when he got a pass from Vladimir Rasko 15 feet in front of the cage and his shot bounced between Esposito's legs for the score.

The Wings were at full strength on both Chicago goals, the first by Dick Redmond with a 60-foot flap shot from the blueline and the second by Dennis Hull on a 25-footer into the far corner of the net.

Soviet goalie Aleksandr Sidebnikov had no chance on either of the bullet-like drives.

The Hawks were most effective in the first period, successfully stick-checking the Russians in their own end. But the Wings' forechecking improved in the second period and the Hawks had trouble getting the puck within range of the Wings' net for a good shot.

In the last period, the Wings were obviously faster and used their quickness to pick up almost every loose puck and stymie the Hawks repeatedly except for Hull's goal.

The Wings outshot the Black Hawks in every period and were particularly sharp in the second period when they put 12 shots on net compared to six for the Hawks and the third when they leveled nine on Esposito against four for Chicago.

Sidebnikov stopped 16 of the 18 Chicago shots and Esposito nabbed 26 of the 30 fired by the Wings.

Home fireplaces make families glow

by LEA TONKIN

Bring back the olden days, a time when families gathered around the fireplace to share warmth and companionship.

There's something cheery about a roaring fire. "And it's romantic too," says Richard Reimann, executive vice president of F-B-K Realtors, Arlington Heights. "There's a greater demand for fireplaces today by home buyers, mainly for family rooms. That's because it's where the family spends most of its time together."

For years, the fireplace was a luxury item in suburban homes, Reimann said. Now many home buyers either scout for a house with a built-in unit or install a fireplace once they've settled.

"There is also a trend toward gas-burning fireplaces," he said. "This does not eliminate the real wood burning fireplaces but it eliminates the maintenance, the care and the cleaning."

HOMEOWNERS CAN expect a fireplace to add to the resale value of the house. If it's a brick fireplace, it may fetch an added $1,000 to $2,000 when the family decides to sell the house. The size, design, and type of exterior materials will affect value.

The smaller, utilitarian fireplaces installed in tract homes will not bring as high a resale value as the custom designed units, said Robert Durning, sales manager at the Village Realty office in Elk Grove Village. Most families, however, are looking for pleasure rather than profit when they're talking about fireplaces.

"Thirty years ago, everyone in the family sat around the kitchen table. Today people are looking for large kitchens and with the fireplace it's the same thing," Durning said.

"People are looking for more of the back-to-basics," he continued. "They're looking for the comfort and sanctity of the home. The family unit and ties are coming to the fore again."

HOME FIREPLACES are increasingly popular for sentimental reasons, although some energy-conscious enthusiasts say fireplaces and stoves can cut fuel usage.

Sentiment rather than energy conservation or economy generally sparks a family's decision to install a fireplace, said Jerry Collins, manager of the Northwest Metal Craft Studio, Arlington Heights. An increasing number of homeowners use a fireplace or stove as a room heater or a backup for conventional heating systems, however.

Collins advises homeowners to check the cost, appearance and practical use of the various units on the market. Traditionalists often prefer the wood-burning fireplace or old-time cast iron stove. Gas and electric units are available, and many units can be converted from one energy source to another. Collins estimates that the cost for wood during a winter season can average $75 compared to the initial cost of $100 for gas logs.

IT'S A GOOD IDEA to seek more than one installation estimate once you've made sure the project will be in compliance with local codes. A custom-designed unit built by a mason contractor will be a unique home feature. Ready-to-install fireplaces can be added to nearly any type of house. They can be set in a corner, stacked on more than one floor, used as a room divider, built back-to-back or set in a wall.

"The hardest part about it, other than deciding the price you want to pay, is deciding on exterior materials," Collins said.

Do-it-yourselfers can save money if they purchase a ready-to-install unit for $600 to $700 and do the job themselves. Collins said. The tab for a similar unit, installed by professionals, could total approximately $1,100 to $1,200. The size of the unit and choice of exterior materials will affect the cost.

THE WARMTH AND charm of yesteryear comes cheaper for the homeowner who installs a Franklin stove or smaller wood-burning heaters. Shoppers will find Franklin stoves sold for approximately $115 to $400, although prices may vary. Wood box heaters with a cook top sell for approximately $130 at some area stores. Collins advises buyers to compare costs and reputations of retailers.

Don't forget all the extras that accompany a fireplace. In addition to the firebox unit, chimney and other necessities, the fireplace owner can choose accessories such as grills and andirons. Screens may be included in the fireplace unit. Fireplace tool sets range in price from approximately $15 to $400.

A cold snap generally brings out customers for the fireplace staple — wood. Richard Spears, owner of the Spears Landscaping Co. in Mount Prospect said prices for seasoned wood range from $40 to $50 a face cord. A face cord is a stack of wood 4-feet by 8-feet by 16 inches. Oak, cherry, fruitwood, apple and birch are popular woods.

"I've been selling logs for 25 years, and the first thing some people ask is, 'How much are your logs?' They don't ask if they're seasoned," Spears said. "If it's seasoned, a minimum of one year old, then it burns well. Otherwise it smolders. You could poke around all night and never get a fire."

The crackle and spit of a wood-burning fire keep the customers coming back, Spears said. "There are artificial logs. But it's like artificial Christmas trees. You don't get the aroma and snap of real woods. It's like the real McCoy and an imitation."

A FREE-STANDING wood furnace, dubbed the "Super Fireplace," is tended by inventor Carl Johnson. The ex-teacher said the stove can be used for economical home heating.

Physicist fires up, invents super hearth

by ED STATTMANN

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A "dropout" nuclear physicist at North Judson, Ind., fires up his invention. A bright light emerges. A soft whoosh. Energy.

All from firewood. Carl Johnson, 29, earned a University of Chicago graduate degree in nuclear physics in 1967, after undergraduate work at Purdue University. He soon decided he was no career scientist.

He went into high school teaching in his hometown in Chicago's south suburban area. That did not wholly satisfy him, either. So he and his wife, Judi, bought a farm.

"WE MADE A DEAL that I would continue teaching and he would work on his projects," said Mrs. Johnson, a physical education and health teacher at Knox High School.

Wealth is not his goal, Johnson says. But his project most likely to make money is a free-standing wood furnace or "Super Fireplace" efficient enough, he believes, to heat the couple's two-story farmhouse.

The wood fireplace was Johnson's answer to liquid propane prices that soared from 17 to nearly 25 cents a gallon. He designed and built the machinery to make it as the JUCA (Judi-Carl Corp.) His basic model is a pyramid-shaped furnace with a flat top, glass loading doors on the sides, blowers to force air out of either or both sides and capabilities for options.

THE OPTIONS include a humidifier, a room thermostat and a device in the flue to provide steady draft. The furnace is nearly 90 per cent efficient at full capacity, Johnson said. A cool flue shows he "steals" most of the heat before it leaves the furnace, he said.

The "Super Furnace" is meant to be seen, but can be a backup to a regular heating system or may be hooked to hot air ducts in a home's basement.

Even at prices of $40 per cord for wood, he said, a family could heat for a season at less than $200, using only four to five cords, compared with seven to ten for a stone fireplace. Many rural people, of course, get firewood cheaply or free.

He charges $280 for one model, $339 for one as heavy as his own, he said, and customizes them somewhat to buyers' wishes.

"I'm kinda disappointed in our country," he said. "I'm a little worried that someday things might come seriously apart. I wanted to make sure we could get by in that case."

Comfortable, clean home becomes salable house

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

You're putting your house on the market. What can you do, quickly and inexpensively, to get it in shape to sell easily?

"Make it look as if a family could move right in without doing a thing to it," advises a professional who counsels hundreds of families each year as they sell their homes when they are transferred from one city to another by an employer.

Betty Ann Rake, of Employee Transfer Corp., Chicago, says one of the keys to easy sale of a house is to make it inviting — clean, orderly, comfortable. Unless a home needs major repairs, she said, you can do wonders to help the sale just by getting rid of dirt and clutter.

"THE FIRST two things I'd do are wash all of the windows inside and out, and then straighten out all the closets."

Then, she advises: Make the most of the outside of your home. It's the first thing prospects see. Be sure front, back and side yards are neat, clean, mowed and trimmed. Garden equipment, bicycles, toys should be put away. In winter, be sure driveway is cleared, paths shoveled.

Check all entrance doorways. They, and the screen and storm doors, should be in good condition. Locks and knobs should be in working order. Wash off fingerprints, or give doors a fresh coat of paint. Make sure outdoor lights and those in entranceways are working. Get rid of hall clutter — toys, papers and boxes. Get rid of family boots and umbrellas, but provide for those of visitors if the weather is bad.

BE SURE BATHROOMS and kitchen sparkle. These two areas are likely to come in for particularly close scrutiny. In the kitchen, remove clutter from countertops, be sure appliances are clean, free of fingerprints. Nothing can turn off a prospect faster than a dirty, greasy stove or neglected refrigerator. Clutter in refrigerator or storage cabinets will make those spaces look inadequate.

Make sure bathrooms are in shape for company, with fresh towels on the racks, fixtures clean, no laundry hanging. In both rooms, fix any leaky faucets. In these rooms, too, often it is worthwhile to paint.

Paint, Ms. Rake notes, "is the cheapest thing you can apply to a house to make it look better." Where painting is in order, she advises, use light, neutral colors. "No one is offended by white, but a lot of people may reject a house with unusual colors." In rooms with wallpaper, giving the woodwork a coat of paint can do much to freshen the room. At the least, make sure woodwork in all rooms is wiped clean of finger marks.

ATTEND TO MINOR repairs. Fix any cracked or broken window glass. Replace missing tiles. If you don't want to replace a torn window shade, remove it. Make sure all doors open and close freely.

Go through the house room by room with an impartial eye. Discard whatever you won't want to move. If there still is clutter or crowding, pack the excess. Be sure rooms look as large as possible so prospects can envision their own furnishings.

Clean basement and garage. Deodorize. Get rid of stale smells caused by smoke, cooking, or animals, especially just before a prospect comes. Keeping a home in shape for inspection takes a little extra attention to housekeeping. Beds have to be made promptly, picking-up done conscientiously; you don't want dishes in the sink; folded laundry on the dining room table. Welcoming lights should be on in the evening; perhaps a fire in the fireplace, soft music on the hi-fi — anything that will make your home seem attractive.

On rereading, all this advice for sprucing up the house to make it salable is pretty good advice even if you aren't planning to sell. It could make home more livable for your own family.

Annen & Busse awards bonuses

Annen & Busse, Inc., Realtors, presented bonus awards to each of their sales associates for the twenty-sixth consecutive year. These bonus awards are based primarily on sales production of the associate for the year, as well as length of service with the firm.

Twenty members of the Annen & Busse team have been with the company for five years or more, eight of which have celebrated more than 10 years of service with Annen & Busse. Bonuses were personally distributed by Edward J. Busse, president, and William N. Annen, secretary-treasurer, at a sales meeting.

Each associate received a bonus award, including the newest members of the firm who were presented with token checks. Annen & Busse currently maintains five sales offices in Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Palatine and Buffalo Grove.

Celebrating another record-breaking year, Annen & Busse staff members to reach the million dollar sales mark during 1975 will total over 30 per cent of the entire staff, including two associates who surpassed two million dollars in real estate sales.

Working in cooperation with the MAP Multiple Listing Service, of which Annen & Busse is a charter member — Edward J. Busse having served as its first president — Annen & Busse is also an active member of the Homes for Living Network.

Sale completed

Steve Wolf, of Marken Real Estate and Management Corporation, has announced the sale of the Interlude Apartment complex.

The three building, 240 unit, project is located on Jones and Bode Roads in Hoffman Estates.

Marken Real Estate was the sole broker in the transaction with Steve Horowitz and Wolf representing both the selling group and the beneficiaries of the purchasing trust.

Attorneys in the transaction were Robert Baum for the purchasers and Larry Roskin representing the sellers.

This is fourth in a series of suburban projects sold by Marken Real Estate in the past four months.

Home Town moves office

Home Town Real Estate has relocated its Arlington Heights office from 205 S. Arlington Heights Rd. to 1309 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights.

"This move," stated Robert W. Proctor, president, "has enabled us to greatly expand our facilities. We have established our corporate headquarters, residential sales department under the management of Patricia Madl, our bookkeeping and advertising department and a training center. Early in January, we will provide license training facilities for new sales-people plus continuous training program for experienced salespeople," he continued.

Proctor has actively participated on the M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service Board of Directors for several years and is presently acting as vice-president of the M.A.P. board.

Home Town Real Estate has five offices and is a member of the National Association of Realtors, Illinois Association of Realtors, the M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service, the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and In-state-Homes Relocation Service.

Robert Griffith tops $2 million

For the third straight year, Robert Griffith of Quinlan and Tyson has sold more than $2 million in real estate.

Griffith, sales manager of Quinlan & Tyson's Buffalo Grove Area Office, topped $2 million in November, it was announced by William B. Martin, senior vice president and general manager-residential sales.

Griffith sold almost $2.5 million in both 1973 and 1974 and sold more than $1 million in 1975, his first full year with Quinlan and Tyson. His career sales total with Q&T now is $8.5 million.

Martin said, "In addition to being one of our top producers, Griffith has provided the leadership for the success of our new Buffalo Grove area office." The Buffalo Grove Area Office was opened in January of 1975.

Griffith holds four Quinlan & Tyson Awards of Excellence — for having the best first full year in the real estate business at Quinlan & Tyson, for leading the Arlington Heights-Mt. Prospect area office in 1973 and 1974 in sales and for having the most transactions in 1974.

Griffith, who holds the G.R.I. designation, is a member of the Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements, a former treasurer of the Arlington Heights Caucus and former president of the Northgate Civic Association. A commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve, Griffith is a member of St. Edna's Catholic Church.

He and his wife, Marlene, have four children and reside in Arlington Heights.

Hot spots, drafts?

If your hot-air heating system causes hot spots and drafts, ask the heating contractor if splitter dampers would solve the problems. These are devices installed in the main trunk duct and branches to balance the flow of air to various parts of the house, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

How to have happy plants

Many people are trying to give house plants emotions. As a result, old time horticulturists lean back and smile because they have known this for years. Plants communicate their "emotions" without language or movement though. They relay their sense of being in a way that can be recognized by anyone taking the time to use their sense of sight, touch and smell, says James E. Schuster, University of Illinois Extension Horticulturist in DuPage County.

Many people don't know how to select a healthy plant but it's easy to learn. The plants you select have no native ability to live in the surroundings that you select for it whether it's your home or office. It needs to be acclimated. To get your plant to do its best, you need to slow its growth down, let the leaves get used to limited light and dry conditions and allow it to accumulate stored food reserves, says Schuster. Then you will have an adjusted plant.

A conditioned plant will have foliage that is dark green, thick and lush looking. Growth is slowed with few new leaves showing. To be assured that you have an adjusted plant, select plants carefully with regard to location and the plants ability to tolerate home conditions. Pick a spot with the brightest light possible but not direct sun. Keep out of drafts and away from heating ducts. Use a complete plant food. Low but more frequent applications of fertilizer are better than high rates.

Watch your watering practices. Don't water according to a calendar. Water when the soil is dry and then water thoroughly. Don't use water from water softeners. Adjust light levels by gradually moving the plant away from the bright window to a darker part of the room. After several months the plant can be put in the desired location. Check the leaves and their color, the soil and root system frequently.

Remember also to plan for replacements says Schuster. In time, all plants become pot bound, need repotting or simply reach the point where there's just no more room.

Young households form suburbia

"Young households — 25 to 39 years of age — are forming the backbone of a new, emerging suburban population."

So states Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a subsidiary of Investors Mortgage Group, Inc.

According to Goss, there has been an increase of nearly 40 percent in this age group's dominance of the suburban residential market over the last five years — and no signs of slackening.

IMIC studies, he points out, attribute this surge of interest by the youngish set in ex-urban locales to the following:

Keep temperature 'just right'

You may like your home warm as toast while you watch the late news, but even in winter the bedrooms should be cool for comfortable sleeping. With automatic hydronic heating this is easily accomplished, says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

If the upstairs and downstairs are operated as two separate heating zones, you can maintain two different temperatures, and have the degree of comfort suitable for your requirements. Upstairs, the thermostat can be set for 65 degrees most of the time, preventing overheating, and saving fuel.

In the living areas downstairs you can maintain 70 degrees or above, as suits your needs, without feeling chilled towards the end of the evening. Before going up to your cool bedrooms you can set the thermostat down a few degrees, so there will not be unnecessary heat downstairs during the night.

With a clock thermostat the night setback is adjusted automatically, at whatever time you set, and the schedule will stay that way all winter until you change it. With this clock control, you will also have quick 'pick-up' in the morning, the boiler and hot water circulator being turned on automatically before you come down to breakfast.

With this system and this type of control, you need never be aware of heat or chill — only true comfort all winter long, just as you want it.

Formation of new environment-conscious households in the under-40 age bracket is on the increase coast-to-coast — largely due to the growing number of women who opt to remain single.

In areas contiguous to urban centers, more and more youth appealing land is being developed for residential use with sports-recreational resources and amenities unavailable to city dwellers.

Such land also often offers single-family housing with greater price flexibility than is available in a metropolitan center.

"Of course," Goss notes, "there are also traditional motivators at work when young households choose the suburbs — spacious yards for their children to play in, a 'close-to-nature' feeling and a chance to help build a new neighborhood."

The new suburban dweller, he continues, is an amalgam of old values and modern aspirations — young, alert and concerned about the country's natural resources.

"Though most suburbanites," Goss concludes, "work in urban centers, they treasure the sense of freedom and privacy of their suburban homes."

Job finished in two days

To those who think even the smallest construction jobs drag on forever, how about installing 1,400 square feet of a new acoustical ceiling and lighting fixtures in an existing office in less than two days?

That's what a seven-man crew of Pepper Construction Company did at Standard Safety Equipment Co., 431 N. Quentin Rd., Palatine. Beginning at 7:30 a.m. on a Friday, they finished the job by 2:30 p.m. the next day, according to Don White, project manager.

The construction company also converted and air conditioned an additional 700 square feet of factory space for office use as part of the project.

Keep paint for touch-ups

If you have some paint left over, keep it for touch-up work later. If you cover the can securely, the paint will stay fresh for quite a while. In some cases, however, the air trapped inside the can could cause a skin to form. This skin condition, while relatively harmless to the paint, can be removed easily but should be avoided. To help minimize this "skinning," the National Paint and Coatings Association suggests that you place a sheet of thin plastic wrap or a section from a plastic bag under the can lid before resealing. Then, pound the lid down securely.

Check neighborhood before buying

Whether you're moving across town or across the country, checking out the neighborhood is just as important as checking out the house you want to buy, according to Betty Ann Rake, a real estate executive who helps move more than 700 transferred families each year.

Ms. Rake is manager of the home-finding department of Employee Transfer Corporation (ETC), Chicago, a subsidiary of Chicago Title and Trust Company.

"Neighborhood is the most important factor because it will directly affect the lifestyle of the family and also helps determine the future value of the house," Ms. Rake said. "A house may be exactly what the family wants, but if the neighborhood isn't right, there's trouble ahead."

By interviewing each transferred employee's family, including the husband and wife, and referring to personal area research, ETC can quickly find a neighborhood that is a "fit," but if you have to search on your own, here is what Ms. Rake advises:

Housing prices. Confine your search to neighborhoods with homes at prices you can afford. This sounds elementary, but it takes work. You have to figure out what you can get for your present house and how much you can afford to pay monthly, including taxes. Then you have to find out what kind of house you can get for what you can afford.

"Prices for the same kind of house can vary widely from one part of the country to another, and even from one part of a metropolitan region to another," Ms. Rake said. "In the Chicago area, for instance, a house on the prestigious North Shore may cost $10,000 more than the same kind of house in a newly developing section. Nationally, homes are most expensive in the East, and least expensive in the Southwest."

A good realtor can help by mapping out areas with homes in the price range you're seeking.

Stability. Are neighborhood values changing and, if so, for the better? The local Realtor can tell you about the trends. One thing to watch for is the proportion of houses that are rented. If this is more than a small per cent, property values may be starting to decline. Owner-occupied homes tend to be better maintained than homes that are rented.

Schools. This is a key consideration for families with children. Two clues to a good school system are the pupil-teacher ratio and the amount of money spent per pupil. You can get this information from the schools themselves. Other factors to check out are the percentage of graduates going on to college.

"Parochial schools and schools offering special training for exceptional children are important to some families," Ms. Rake said. "ETC will locate such schools, but if you're looking on your own, the realtor or school district headquarters may help."

Population mix. Neighborhoods differ in the kinds of people who live there. Age, marital status, children, ethnic background and religion are all ways of characterizing a neighborhood. One or more of these factors may be important to you in selecting a place to live.

One way to get this information is to talk to a realtor or mortgage lender. But a better way is to talk to people who live in the neighborhood. (Continued on Page 13)

Simplified policy

Six representatives of the Kemper Insurance Companies have worked with the Insurance Services Office (ISO) and other ISO affiliated companies to develop a simpler homeowners policy.

Kemper, based in Long Grove, is among the approximately 500 ISO affiliated companies which began marketing a simplified language homeowners policy in six states on Jan. 1. ISO affiliated companies account for approximately 50 per cent of the homeowners insurance written in the U.S.

The new ISO policy features: simplified language, 40 per cent fewer words, type that is 25 per cent larger, and more white space between lines to make the policy easier to read. Special efforts have been made to avoid legal terminology and archaic words.

The ISO policy contains fewer than 7,000 words, compared to more than 12,000 words in the old homeowners policy.

The six inaugural states for the new policy are Illinois, Nevada, Ohio, Vermont, Colorado and Georgia.

ISO officials say, after field testing is completed, the policy will be offered in almost all states.

Don't waste heat

If you stop to think about it, your heating system is not doing its full job in your house. Every electrical device provides some heat while it is operating, and any of that heat which affects the room thermostat permits your heating system to operate less. The heat gains, mostly from the appliances but also from the sun, provide about 25 per cent of your heating requirements in winter, states the Better Heating-Cooling Council, although that percentage varies widely with family activities and patterns of appliance usage.

The amount of heat you gain can be easily estimated by multiplying the wattage rating on the nameplate by 3.4 (1 watt = 3.4 Btu's.) That applies to resistance heat units such as broilers, irons, electric stoves and most other appliances. With lights you gain only about 60 per cent of the watts consumed. For each hour you permit a 1000-watt appliance to operate, you are using one Kilowatt-hour (1 Kwh.)

The heat is gained, but you're paying for it — as much as if you were using electric heaters, some two or three times as much as oil or gas. Use your appliances and enjoy them, but don't leave them on unnecessarily; you'll waste energy and get high electric bills.

Check heating system

Because more than two million families will be buying a new house this year, the National Better Heating-Cooling Council is posing a few questions to help homebuyers avoid costly mistakes. A home is the largest single investment most people ever make, notes the Council, and since the heating system is the most important feature with regard to comfort, don't be careless in looking it over.

Is it amply insulated? The high cost of heating fuel — be it gas, oil, or electricity — is a major part of upkeep, and the best way to cut down on fuel consumption for winter and summer is with a well-insulated house. There should be at least four inches in the attic and side walls. Although municipal codes may call for less, these are just minimum guidelines. In your home you want more than minimum protection.

Was the heat loss calculated by a professional heating contractor? If not, the system may be out of balance. Old-fashioned rule of thumb methods usually result in one room being hot and the other cool. A professional knows how to design the system so that each room controlled by the same thermostat has uniform temperatures.

Where are the heating outlets? They should be located on outside walls near the floor. Most homes with hydronic (modern hot water) heating have baseboard heating panels mounted at ankle height on outside walls, especially under windows. They act as a barrier against the cold and keep the floors and walls warm. Hydronic baseboard never gets too hot to the touch, so they are safe for children, and floor length draperies won't scorch.

Is there a minimum difference in temperature — about two or three degrees — between the floor and ceiling? If not, you will suffer the hot head-cold ankle syndrome. Tests conducted at the University of Illinois showed that hydronic baseboard heating permits only a slight difference in temperature throughout the room.

Where are the thermostats? They must be on an inside wall away from sunlight, heat and cold. Otherwise, they will give a false picture of the room temperature, and you will be either too hot or too cold.

Will this heating system lend itself to easy expansion? Although you think the house is quite large now, in a few years you may need more room. Nine out of 10 home expansion projects require heating, and if your system is one that's easily enlarged you will be dollars ahead. With hydronic systems you'll be working with finger-size tubing which can be easily snaked through walls and floors, with just a minimum of fuss.

Jan. 17 review set

A one-day intensive review session for persons preparing to take the State of Illinois real estate salesman's or broker's license examination will be held Jan. 17, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The course, particularly intended for those who plan to take the real estate examination, will be held at the Howard Johnson Motel at Northwest Highway and Rohlfing Road in Palatine.

The course is sponsored by the Homefinders Institute of Real Estate.

According to Dr. Randall Rathjen, director of the institute, the one-day session will cover such subjects as title records, contracts, mortgages, interest in real estate, legal descriptions, appraisals, broker and salesman's law, leases, proration and closing statements.

Tuition for the review is $35, and includes all materials.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Larry Ham at 358-8300.

30 attend Realtors Institute Check your boiler flame

Richard M. Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor, reported that 30 of the corporation's Realtor-Associates attended the Realtors Institute of Illinois, which was held recently in Peoria.

Attending from northwest suburban offices were Lois Anderson, sales manager in the Mt. Prospect office, Mary Ann Reiter, from the Arlington Heights office, and Jerry Bouschard, sales manager in the Arlington Heights office.

Of the 30 in attendance, seven took Course I; seven took course II; eight took Course III and eight took Graduate Course A.

The Realtors Institute of Illinois is a three phase study course, designed to increase the professional competence of those in the real estate industry.

Also in attendance was President Caruso. He is on the Illinois Association of Realtors Board of Governors which has overall responsibility and supervision of the Institute.

boiler flame

If the fire in your boiler is on for very short periods in very cold weather, you may be wasting fuel. It is supposed to operate that way in mild weather, but if it still does so in the dead of winter have your heating contractor check it, urges the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. The proper flame size is regulated to the size of your house, the size of the boiler, the configuration of the combustion area, etc., so adjustments should be left to the experts.

That will give you a good idea of what kind of neighbors you're likely to have, and whether you'll be happy with them.

Amenities. These include parks, playgrounds, special facilities such as a cultural center, libraries, shopping, transportation and churches.

"Many towns publish booklets which describe features," Ms. Rake said. "Amenities such as a community swimming pool, tennis courts, maybe an indoor skating rink may be important to you. It's worth checking them out."

Utilities and public improvements. Are the homes on a sewer line or are there septic tanks? Does the water run low in hot spells? Is the water hard enough to require a home softener? How often is garbage collected and what's the cost? Is there a full-time fire department? What about police protection? These are things to ask about utility services.

When it comes to public improvements, are there sidewalks and are the streets paved? What are plans for major public construction such as streets, freeways, street lighting, schools, firehouses, etc., that may be nearby and which may increase taxes?

"A visit to the town hall and the planning office in particular can yield this information," Ms. Rake said.

Zoning. The town hall can also produce information telling you just what can and can't be built in the neighborhood. This includes that pleasant wooded parcel across the street, which may be the site for a future shopping center. Zoning may also strictly control what kind of room addition you can put on your home.

Taxes. Find out what real estate taxes are currently and what they are likely to be. A lot depends on how many taxing districts cover the neighborhood you're thinking about. You can get this information from the local town hall and from the county clerk's office.

Looking into all of these things takes time, as much as three months between the day you decide to move or are told you're being transferred to moving day itself. So be prepared to spend the time required.

"If your company hires an organization like ETC, then you'll be spared practically all of this work," Ms. Rake said. "You'll be given a fair market price for your present home and, if you accept, you'll receive your equity immediately which gives you the downpayment you'll need on your new home."

"At the same time you'll be given complete counseling on finding a new home, and all of the advance scouting will be done for you, so your house-hunting will be narrowed down to the neighborhoods most suitable to you. In most cases, the families we counsel will choose their new home in a single weekend."

More information on ETC's home-finding services is available from Employee Transfer Corporation, 111 W. Washington St., Chicago, 60602.

First place award

Thorsen Realtors recently was awarded first place in the National Association of Realtors national advertising contest. Thorsen competed with real estate firms from across the nation and won a first place award in the institutional advertising category and first place award for the most creative and authentic office exterior renovation for the firm's Wheaton branch office.

Thorsen also won in the 1974 advertising award contest first place in the category of classified advertising and second place award in the category of display classified advertising.

Thorsen Realtors recently opened its 22nd branch office at 821 W. Higgins Road, Schaumburg.

Avoid alligatoring

Extreme cracking, often known as "alligatoring" is sometimes caused by applying a second coat of paint before the previous coat dries, or by applying a "hard coating" over a "soft coating" (such as enamel over a regular house paint). The only solution to the problem, suggests the National Paint and Coatings Association, is to completely remove the alligatoring portion. If a large area is involved, it is best to use power sanding equipment for the paint removal job. After cleaning the area well, you can repaint the surface.

Ask Andy

Tidal pool sea creatures' home

Andy sends a 26-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Michael Meyer, 12, of Staten Island, N. Y., for his question:

WHAT ARE TIDAL POOLS?

We find them on beaches where chunky boulders squat half hidden in the sand. When the high tide floods in, the rocks are hidden under water. When the low tide drains back to sea, puddles of water are left behind among the rocks to form these salty tidal pools.

The earth provides a variety of homes for plant and animal communities. There is suitable greenery for assorted herbivores, and enough predators to control their populations. All the plants and animals in a given environment depend upon each other. There are ecosystems of this sort in valleys and deserts, on mountains and plains. And, though all the world oceans merge together, there are different ecosystems in zones of the sea.

In the deep ocean, life is a frantic chase, for every creature is a hunted hunter. The survivors must be fast or cunning. But on a rock-strewn beach, the harsh environment changes every six hours. When the tide goes out, assorted sea dwellers are stranded in pools of water left behind among the rocks. And there is no escape.

A tidal pool is home to a colorful variety of plants and animals. A clump of mussels in dark blue shells clings to a rock with golden threads. They vie for space with rock-clinging barnacles. There are crusty crabs and prickly sea urchins, snails and starfish, slugs and worms. The plankton-rich water teems with microscopic algae; wads of seaweed anchor their toes to the stones.

High tide floods the neighborhood under several feet of water, and the populations have a few hours of frantic activity. The mussels part their purple shells to let the water bring in oxygen and scraps of food. Hungry starfishes prey on their neighbors. Many creatures feast on plankton and on each other.

Then the tide turns and most of the water runs back to the sea. All these creatures depend on salty sea water, and each species copes with the shortage in its own way. The mussels shut their shells to conserve the moisture inside. Crabs and snails, starfish and a host of others seek to hide themselves in moist pockets among the seaweeds and under the rocks.

Each dweller in a tidal pool adapts and adjusts his behavior with the changing tides. And strange to say, his way of life continues even when he is moved to a nontidal environment. When moved to a calm, deep-water aquarium, every six hours he prepares himself to cope with a changing tide.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Paul Driscoll, 16, of Scarborough, Me., for his question:

EXACTLY WHAT IS WATER MADE OF?

When you eat a piece of cake, you might never suspect that it is made from flour and eggs, sugar and a few other ingredients. When you look at a drop of water, you might never suspect that its basic ingredients are two invisible gases. Actually, this is a chemical miracle, down there in the invisibly small realm of atoms and molecules. When atoms combine to form molecule packages, the original ingredients disappear and the finished product is something quite different.

There are, of course, zillions of mini-molecules in just one drop of water. Each basic particle is a bond of two atoms of hydrogen and one atom of oxygen. Usually a water molecule is a pair of these basic particles. The packages team together because a hydrogen atom seeks an extra electron and an oxygen atom seeks two. They solve their problems by bonding together to share their electrons. In any case, water is made from one part oxygen and two parts hydrogen — both of which are invisible gases.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P. O. Box 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Transfer offers choice

When you transfer with a bad hand you follow up the transfer with a pass. When you transfer and want to bid game next, you just bid it. When you want to just invite game in your transfer suit you do that by bidding three.

When you want to give your partner a choice between game in suit, or in notrump while not actually forcing to game your rebid is two notrump.

With 5-3-3-2 distribution and eight high-card points North transfers to two spades and rebids, two no-trump. He might well have dropped the bidding at two spades, but his 10 of trumps caused him to go ahead.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

South looked at his 4-3-3-3 distribution and 17 points. He decided that good trumps plus the three side aces made a game bid a good gamble and decided on four spades rather than three notrump.

In the play, South won the heart lead and knocked out the ace of trumps. The defense played two more hearts. South ruffed in dummy, drew the last trumps and led a small club. Clubs broke and the diamond finesse was not needed.

MAN IN THE KITCHEN

Today the kitchen is as much a part of a man's world as the garage, the den, or the workshop. Men, today, are making a real production out of shopping, cooking and eating. Interest in food and cooking has gone beyond the weekly barbecue on the outdoor grill. Cooking is viewed as an adventure to be tackled with enthusiasm and daring. "Why serve something ordinary when you can serve something dramatic?" is the male cook's philosophy.

A knife, fork and ten fingers are the best tools. Recipes that don't cramp people's style — that leave room for a little improvising — and instructions that are simple and direct, are preferred.

Two recipes developed by men are Eggs Benedict and Gambler's Eggs. Eggs Benedict were created by a New York hotel chef for one of his daily customers — none other than Mr. Benedict! Gambler's Eggs are one man's version of those that he was served while dining at The Pump Room in Chicago.

For the cook with heavier thoughts on his mind, Pastry-Wrapped Ham is ideal. A slight variation of Ham Wellington, it is simply a three-pound oblong canned ham wrapped in ready-made pie shells and baked. The crust traps the ham's juices and keeps it from drying out as it heats, and it's served with a fruit sauce made from canned pie filling.

GAMBLER'S EGGS

Cut  $\frac{1}{4}$  of a green pepper into small pieces, a green onion top into little pieces, half a tomato into thin wedges, and a small chunk of cucumber into thin slices; drain and blot on paper towel. Then, break 6 eggs into a bowl; beat with a fork. Melt a tablespoon of butter in a heavy, medium-sized skillet. Pour in the eggs; cook over low heat, stirring very little, until they are partially set. Sprinkle with salt and coarse pepper to taste. Then stir in vegetables. Continue to cook only until the vegetables are heated through. Makes 4 servings.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

Combine 2 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and  $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon salt in a small saucepan. Add half a stick ( $\frac{1}{4}$  cup) of butter. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until butter is melted. Add remaining stick of butter and continue to stir until butter is melted and sauce is slightly thickened.

MOCK HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

In a small saucepan combine  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup sour cream,  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard and 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Cook over very low heat until heated through.

EGGS BENEDICT

For each serving, split, toast and butter English muffin. Poach 2 eggs. Top each toasted muffin half with one-ounce (one slice) of Canadian Bacon and a poached egg. Top with one-third cup Hollandaise sauce and garnish with sliced ripe olives.

PASTRY-WRAPPED HAM

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Remove a fully-cooked, three-pound oblong ham from can. Remove 3 unbaked, frozen pie shells from aluminum pans and allow pastry to thaw about ten minutes. Meanwhile, slightly beat 1 egg in a small bowl; set aside. Select spices to sprinkle on ham (cloves and dry mustard are a good combination). Place 2 of the thawed pie shells on a baking sheet, overlapping the edges about six inches. Center ham on pastry; dust top of ham with selected spices. Center third pastry shell on top of ham. Wrap ham carefully and completely. Use some of the beaten egg to seal sides and ends of wrap, and to mend any tears (this is a very important step). Brush pastry with remaining egg — using a pastry brush or crumpled paper towel. (The egg gives the baked pastry an appetizing shine.) Bake for one hour. To slice for serving, it is preferable to use an electric knife. Serve each slice with a topping of Fruit Sauce. Makes 12 servings.

FRUIT SAUCE FOR PASTRY-WRAPPED HAM

In a saucepan, combine one can of a favorite pie filling with 2 or 3 tablespoons of your favorite potion — brandy, rum or wine (fruit juice may be used instead); heat until bubbly. Raisins or chopped nuts may be added for additional flavor and texture. Good combinations include: cherry pie filling with brandy and raisins; raisin pie filling with brandy and almonds; or, apple pie filling with orange juice and raisins.

For that perfect loaf everytime . . .

This is the first of a series of periodic articles by the instigator of Brownberry Ovens, a Wisconsin breadbaking company, Catherine Clark.

One of the great worries of my life, which might surprise you, considering my choice of careers, has been that the art of home bread baking might be lost. I am, in fact, herewith launching my personal crusade to preserve the art of home baking.

I've never looked on home baking as competition, but rather as a means of training young palates to know and appreciate the marvelous difference between bread over which poets once rhapsodized, and bread as it all too often has become — a conveyor of peanut butter and jelly, or something to keep egg salad off the fingers.

I've also anguished over the fact that, if the art of home bread baking continued to decline, millions of people were going to be deprived of the creative joy that baking your own bread can bring to both the baker and her family.

And there was a time, not so very long ago, when it nearly was lost. Some of us still remember when "baker's bread" heralded the liberation of women — the way the laundromat did much later — from a time-consuming, sometimes irksome task. At least one whole generation grew up (except for a few lucky farm kids) that was adequately, but certainly unimaginatively nurtured on

School menus do not change with times

"Uneaten food creates a tremendous garbage problem in some cafeterias," says Helen DeGraw, foodservice director for the West Essex Regional School District, North Caldwell, N.J.

In a guest editorial in School Foodservice Journal, she advocates changes in the Type A lunch which must provide a student with one-third of his daily nutrition needs.

She said it is effective only if the student eats the full lunch. Many don't. Their food needs have changed, and menus should reflect this, she wrote.

"An emotional upset may restrict his desire for food. The weather may curb his appetite," she wrote.

"Two scoops of mashed potatoes eaten are more nutritious than one serving of string beans thrown away."

"Many students don't want butter on their sandwich. Others don't want bread with their hot lunch meal, and many children dislike certain vegetables."

Ms. DeGraw said it is difficult to force feed the complete Type A lunch, particularly in states where 18-year-olds are considered adults.

Three cereal brands rate high in nutrition

by THE EDITORS OF CONSUMER REPORTS
(Tenth in a series)

A nutritious cereal plays an important part in any diet. The supermarket shelves are stacked with dozens of products, ranging from granolas to sugar-coated flakes to maple-flavored oatmeal. How do you know which delivers the most nutrition for the money?

In the February 1975 issue of Consumer Reports, Consumer Union reported the results of laboratory tests made on 41 popular brands of breakfast cereals. Our laboratory tests found that 21 of all the brands tested were nutritionally deficient in terms of their ability to sustain the life and growth of laboratory animals.

ONLY THREE BRANDS were top-rated for nutritional quality and 20 brands were adequate to one degree or another.

In testing these cereals, Consumers Union found that nutritional labeling on a box was not a reliable guide to how nutritious a cereal actually proved to be in laboratory tests.

For example, according to the nutritional data on the package, Kellogg's Product 19 is fortified with 100 per cent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA) for the major vitamins and iron. Yet Product 19 was one of the lowest-rated cereals in Consumers Union's tests. Maypo, which is fortified with only 30 per cent of the RDA, was the highest-rated cereal.

Scientists have set specific levels for some of the known essential nutrients. However, it is the combination of essential nutrients, not just their quantity, that is important for what we call a well-balanced diet.

It is difficult to state how much of store-bought bread.

ALMOST NO ONE in urban areas baked bread, even 10 years ago, certainly not 20 or 25 years ago. The children of that generation were never welcomed home after school by the glorious aroma of freshly-baked bread, never knew that heavenly taste sensation of butter melting into thick slabs of fragrant homemade bread warm from the oven. But if I'm any guesser, a lot of young'uns — and older ones too — are going to recapture that old rapture.

I couldn't have been more delighted when I saw the resurgence of home baking, first among quite young people, then the young marrieds. For hundreds of years the art of bread baking was passed along from mother to daughter. But then the chain was broken. Thank goodness for cookbooks and food editors. The fairly recent efforts of beginners were often successful, or at least were accompanied by just enough success and a strong enough desire to keep new bread bakers interested.

I CAN, and will, give you a good elementary recipe for flavorful homemade white bread. But that's really not enough. Consequently, I'm eager to share with you some of the tricks, the nuances, the fine points that recipes and cookbooks seldom cover. In 25 years of going contrary to the major bakeries in the market place, always approaching our own small piece of the market from a kitchen like yours, I've managed to assemble a good many little techniques, along with the whys and wherefores of bread baking, inexact science though it is.

Most bread recipes are basically alike, so use the one below or pick one from your favorite cookbook and begin — following the steps prescribed in any basic bread recipe. Here are my own proportions and ingredients that you might wish to use for your flavorful first loaf:

- 1 cup sweet milk
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon shortening
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine

1 package dry yeast

5 1/2 to 6 cups all-purpose flour
Now, if you're an old hand or about-to-be new expert, this is all you need — except experience. Lacking that, here's where I hope to speed you on your way to bread baking confidence.

FOR STARTERS, let's take a closer look at the art of mixing and kneading. No gentle, namby-pamby, pat-a-cake motions will do. Here's where you show some real muscle. Or perhaps put your husband or son to work — he'll love it!

White flour consists almost entirely of starch and gluten. Gluten is a tenacious elastic protein substance found especially in wheat flour. The miracle lies in the gluten which, when combined with water, yeast and salt, begins to take on its elastic characteristics. In order to create strong enough cell walls (you can see them plainly as the texture in a slice of baked bread), the dough must be stretched and worked. Why do we need strength and elasticity? To catch, and hold the gases that are released while the dough is fermenting and rising. These cells are like tiny balloons which are what make bread light and fit to eat.

NOW FOR THE actual kneading. Mixing the ingredients together with a big, strong spoon (I use a straight wooden one) brings it to the stage where stronger measures are indicated. Since flour varies from sack to sack in how much moisture it will absorb, you must learn judgment now in deciding if a little more flour must be added before tipping the dough out onto a well-floured board or counter. You'll get the hand of it after a time or two.

The kneading process actually "dries up" the dough by encouraging moisture to be absorbed. When you start, the dough will still be a little sticky. It helps to put shortening on your hands for this first stage of handling the dough. You can even work in additional flour as you knead if it doesn't dry up enough. The more vigorous you are, the less time the drying up will take.

START, THEN, with this sticky ball and give it a good push, down and forward with the heels of your hands, putting the weight of your shoulders back into it. Pull the dough back from the front of the ball with your fingers, doubling it back on the dough ball. Then push on this new top layer, down and forward as before. Give the dough ball a quarter turn and continue the same motions, repeating the push, pull-turn process for at least ten minutes by the clock.

No milkman

The milkman is a vanishing American. The National Geographic Society says those who haven't been put out of business by supermarkets and shopping center grocery stores may peddle everything from pizza to pantyhose and hand cream along with milk, cottage cheese and dairy products.

You will feel the dough becoming more resistant and stronger. It will begin to have a smoother skin and finally you can hear it snap and pop as gas forms and is held in the gluten bubbles.

Having greased a large bowl of a size to hold at least twice the bulk of your final dough piece (you can use the same one you used for the original mixing if you grease it well right over the scraps that still cling to it), turn it topside-down in the bowl, in order to coat it with shortening, then turn it so that its smooth skin is now on top — this skin keeps the gases inside the ball during fermentation — and cover the bowl with wax paper or a clean tea towel.

Follow through on your own now, with the help of the directions in your cookbook. The knowledge that you're well on your way to acquiring the skill of kneading will give you confidence to do it all over again as soon as this effort has been devoured by your grateful family.

Bite of spice

It doesn't pay to buy spices and herbs in quantities larger than you expect to use in six months. Ground spices such as paprika and cinnamon are especially prone to lose flavor and color during storage. The loss can be delayed somewhat by refrigeration.

Book tells what to do after successful hunt

One of the most complete collections of recipes for preparing game and fish has just been published by a group of people who should know best what they're talking about — the hunters and fishermen themselves.

The cookbook, called "The Wildlife Chef," is the product of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, the largest group of organized sportsmen in any state.

Members of the non-profit organization contributed some of the more than 250 recipes included in this unusual anthology. Others came from such authentic sources as Trout Unlimited, the National Extension services and outdoor writers.

"The Wildlife Chef" is designed to help both novice and expert cooks prepare fish and game species from throughout the United States. The recipes range from the simple to the exotic, contain such titles as "Deerburger Soup," "Crawdad Pie" and "Catfish Gumbo," and cover almost every imaginable species of mammal, bird, fresh water fish and amphibian found in North America.

Copies may be obtained for $2.00 each postpaid from the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, P.O. Box 2235, Lansing, Mich. 48911. Proceeds from sales will be used by MUCC, a non-profit group, to carry out conservation and wildlife programs.

Consumer help

Starting in February, consumers will have new safeguards in mail order purchases.

A Federal Trade Commission regulation to take effect Feb. 2 requires a mail order company to fill an order within 30 days or offer to return the customer's money. Among other requirements, the company must provide customers with adequate cost-free means, such as a postage paid card, for cancellation notices. Only merchandise is covered. Services such as photo finishing, orders for seeds, magazines and growing plants and C.O.D. purchases are exempt.

each nutrient is needed for good nutrition. But if these nutritional elements are missing from the diet, your well-being may be affected.

IN TERMS of cost of the three highest-rated cereals, Maypo, the first choice, was the least expensive at just 3.4 cents per serving. Cheerios, the second choice, cost 6.1 cents per serving. Rated third, Special "K" cost 6.6 cents per serving.

In addition to their nutritional value, some cereals provide fiber, which, by absorbing water, adds bulk to waste matter and thus aids the passage of waste matter through the digestive tract.

Unfortunately, most cereals we tested were low in fiber. Consumers Union's medical consultants believe that bran cereals may be useful for people who need more fiber in their diet. The granola products Consumers Union tested also contained adequate amounts of fiber. None of the granola products, however, nor the one bran cereal we tested, was among the most nutritious. Stick to the three top-rated cereals. Fruits served with these cereals can contribute fiber to the diet.

Mabel Busse

Her food reflects German heritage

by LOIS SEILER

An impressive party dessert is a high and handsome Blitz Torte often prepared by Mabel Busse of Elk Grove Village. The torte consists of two layers of yellow cake topped by meringue and filled with a creamy pudding.

"It's the type of cake that melts in your mouth," Mabel said, "and everyone seems to love it."

Another of her favorites is German potato salad. "Every German makes a potato salad," she said. "But some are better than others."

Mabel's family and her husband Wally's family were among some of the earliest German settlers in the area and she combined several recipes to get the right flavor for hers. She has used this recipe for 35 years.

"IT HAS JUST the right proportions of sugar, vinegar and salt to achieve the perfect sweet-sour flavor," Mabel said.

Made with onion-flavored bacon fat, the sweet-sour dressing is thickened with cornstarch for a glossy appearance. This German potato salad is excellent for a buffet, she said, since it complements the flavor of almost any meat.

Also ideal for a buffet is Mabel's appealing Blueberry Salad. Several years ago she was awarded $5 for this recipe when it was featured in a Chicago newspaper as Recipe of the Day. "I was so proud, I never cashed the check," Mabel chuckled.

A recipe clipper who loves to cook, Mabel prefers tried and true recipes. She is a charter member of Northwest Suburban Cook County Homemakers' Extension, enjoys bowling, sewing and all crafts. She has a married daughter in Maryland and son at home.

BLITZ TORTE

Batter:
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup sugar
4 egg yolks
1 cup cake flour

BLITZ TORTE, a fairly easy dessert to prepare, is a long-time favorite of Mabel Busse, Elk Grove Village. She tops cake batter with meringue, bakes the mixture and then spreads pudding between the layers.

1 teaspoon baking powder
4 tablespoons milk

Cream butter and sugar together. Add egg yolks and beat well. Sift together flour and baking powder and add to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Beat until well-blended. Spread into two greased and floured 8-inch round cake tins.

Meringue:
4 egg whites
1 cup granulated sugar
2 teaspoons granulated sugar
1/2 cup coconut or slivered almonds

Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in 1 cup sugar, until stiff. Spread in pans over yellow batter, making sure to seal edges. With back of teaspoon, pull up peaks of meringue. Sprinkle each meringue with half of the remaining sugar and coconut or almonds. Bake at 325 degrees for 30 minutes. Let cool in pans for ten minutes; then cool on cake racks. Meanwhile prepare filling.

Pudding:
1 large box vanilla pudding mix
2 cups milk

Prepare according to package directions, using only the two cups milk as specified above. Cool.

When both cake layers and pudding have cooled, place one layer, meringue side down, on cake plate and spread with pudding. Place second layer over this, meringue side up. Serves 12.

GERMAN POTATO SALAD

1/2 peck (7 1/2 to 8 pounds) red potatoes
Boil potatoes until tender; do not overcook. Cool slightly, peel and cut into slices. Place in large bowl. Prepare the following dressing.

1 pound bacon, cut into small squares
1 medium onion, chopped
2 cups sugar
2 cups water
1 cup white vinegar
1/2 cup cornstarch

Fry bacon until crisp. Remove from fat, drain and sprinkle over potatoes. Sauté onion in bacon until light brown and tender. Add sugar, 1 1/2 cups water and vinegar and stir. Mix cornstarch with remaining 1/2 cup water. Stir into dressing and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Pour over potatoes. Prepare the following ingredients:

1 small onion, chopped
1/2 green pepper, chopped
4 ribs celery or more, chopped
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
1 tablespoon pimiento, chopped
3 hard-cooked eggs,

chopped
Sprinkle these ingredients over potatoes and stir gently to mix well. Place in serving bowl and garnish top with additional parsley, pimiento and egg slices. Serves 20.

BLUEBERRY SALAD

1 package (3 ounces) lime gelatin
1 cup hot water
1 small package (3 ounces) cream cheese
1/2 cup cream or milk
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
1 can (14 1/2 ounces) blueberries
1 package (3 ounces) lemon gelatin

Dissolve lime gelatin in hot water. Beat cream cheese with cream or milk until smooth. Add to cooled gelatin and beat until smooth with electric mixer. Chill until partially thickened. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into a 6-cup ring mold and chill until firm.

Drain blueberries and add enough water to blueberry juice to make 1 1/2 cups liquid. Heat to boiling. Add lemon gelatin and stir until dissolved. Let set until partially thickened and fold in blueberries. Pour over chilled gelatin and refrigerate until set. Unmold and serve on lettuce. Serves 12.

Pizza's pizzazz seasons meatloaf

A mushroom and beef pizza proves a pizza-shaped meat loaf that is high in good protein but lower in calories than a regular pizza. There is no layer of dough to push up the calories but this will please pizza lovers with its savoriness and topping of mozzarella cheese.

MUSHROOM AND BEEF PIZZA

1 1/2 pounds fresh mushrooms
1 1/2 pounds ground lean beef
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup catsup, divided
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 package (4 ounces) mozzarella cheese, sliced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
1/2 cup sliced onion
1/2 cup green pepper strips
Rinse, pat dry and slice half of the mushrooms; chop remaining half. Place chopped mushrooms in a large bowl with beef, bread crumbs, onion, one-fourth cup of the catsup, eggs, salt and black pepper; lightly mix together.

Pat into a 9-inch pie pan. Bake in a preheated moderate oven 350-degrees until cooked, about 30 minutes.

Remove from oven. Pour off any liquid that has formed. Spread remaining one-fourth cup catsup over meat. Top with a layer of mozzarella cheese.

In a medium skillet melt 1 tablespoon of the butter. Add sliced mushrooms. Sauté for 2 minutes. Remove and arrange around outer edge of pie.

In same skillet melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter. Add onion and green pepper. Sauté until just tender, about 3 minutes. Pile into center of pie.

Return pie to oven; bake for 5 minutes. Slice into wedges and serve. Serve with grated parmesan cheese, if desired. Makes six servings.

More open meets urged in Dist. 62

Parents and teachers at the Des Plaines Dist. 62 policy committee meeting Wednesday urged the board of education to conduct more open meetings and make available detailed information about agenda items.

Fourteen parents and teachers attended the committee meeting, which was conducted to review district policies on the release of public records and information. The district had been criticized by parents and teachers recently for refusing to release administrators' salary increases after they were approved at its Dec. 1 board meeting.

The district later released that information.

SEVERAL TEACHERS at the meeting criticized the board for failing to discuss agenda items at board meetings and for not handing out detailed information on agenda items. They asked that these items either be discussed or be detailed in a public report so the audience could understand what actions would be taken by the board.

"I've sat at many board meetings where the article number is read, there isn't any discussion, and the vote is taken," said Kathy Duella, teachers union officer. "They never tell you whether the article is about salaries, or toilet paper or anything else. I think there's a problem of communications."

Board member Robert Birchfield said meetings may appear formal and closed because board members "do our homework. We have our questions answered before the meeting."

The committee was urged by Dist. 62 Atty. Leo Athas to write a policy stating the way the district's records and information would be made available.

DIST. 62 DOES not have a policy on releasing public records and information. The district uses the state and local laws and legal opinions as guidelines for releasing information.

Athas said the district must make all records and information that involves public money available upon written request and 24-hour notice.

Individual salaries must be given out if the district keeps a written report on each employee's salary, he said. Districts do not have to "compile statistics or aid someone in compiling information" he said.

If the district only lists salaries by ranges, it is only required to release those ranges and individuals within each range to comply with the law, he said.

Athas said employees of school districts are public employees and are "not afforded the privileges of the private citizen in invasion of privacy."

The policy committee will meet to discuss a written policy on the release of public information Jan. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the administration center, 777 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines.

Area feels bite of Old Man Winter

The Northwest suburbs faced the coldest weather of the winter season Wednesday as temperatures dropped below zero and the "bitter" cold is expected to continue through Saturday with low temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees below zero in the suburbs, the National Weather Service predicted.

"Bundle up," a spokesman for the weather service said late Wednesday. "It will be zero to five (degrees) above" Thursday.

"That sounds like a low, not a high," the spokesman added.

Despite the low temperature predictions, the mercury level will not drop to a record. In 1875, the Chicago-area temperature bottomed at 20 degrees below zero, the spokesman said.

THE COLD temperatures are part of a cold air mass that moved southeast from Canada and dumped snow throughout the Midwest.

Snow between one and two inches was reported in the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning. Heavier snowfall of up to five inches hampered morning rush hour drivers in south Cook County and northern Indiana.

The cold temperatures, which prevented melting of Wednesday's snowfall, and gusty winds contributed to traffic problems and dozens of minor auto accidents were reported throughout the suburbs.

The Chicago Motor Club offered five tips to motorists who attempt to start cars during the cold spell:

- Turn off all accessories, lights, radio, heater and windshield wipers, before attempting to start the car.

- Depress the gas pedal to the floor and let it halfway up while turning the ignition key. Hold the key in starting position for 30 seconds.

- Don't flood the engine if the car fails to start immediately. Shut off the ignition, wait 30 seconds and try again.

- If the engine floods, shut off the ignition and press the gas pedal for 60 seconds.

BULLDOZERS ATTACKED the Superblock site on Lee Street in downtown Des Plaines

Wednesday despite cold weather. A 10-story office building will be located on the site along with a shopping mall. The first phase of the project will cost $10 million.

Abrams seeks its formation

'Consumer panel could work'

by JOE FRANZ

Des Plaines officials met Wednesday night to consider the creation of a consumer protection committee to handle complaints of unfair business practices.

The city council's city code and judiciary committee discussed a possible ordinance setting up such a committee. The ordinance would be similar to one recently adopted in Niles.

Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, committee chairman, said the consumer committee would consist of local residents and businessmen and would investigate "classic types" of complaints against local merchants and businesses.

"I DON'T THINK we have that serious of a problem in Des Plaines, but it might be a good thing to have," Abrams said.

He said the committee would supplement efforts by the county, state and federal governments to protect consumers.

"The main thing is that there would be a committee of local people to take your complaints to," he said.

The committee would investigate complaints of false or improper price markings, poor service, false advertising and poor workmanship, Abrams said.

It is unclear if such a committee would have enforcement rights, but city officials have directed City Atty. Charles Hug to determine whether the city has the legal right to fine or punish persons or businesses which violate consumer laws.

Such a committee, Abrams said, probably could resolve many local consumer problems with or without enforcement powers.

"IF THERE WAS a finding by the committee that there was some violation, and even if the city couldn't do anything, it could pass its findings on to another government agency that could do something," he said. "Just by holding a hearing the committee could probably reconcile many of the problems between consumers and businesses."

The possibility of bad publicity because of a hearing, Abrams said, would help prevent unfair business practices. Such a committee also would protect reputable businesses, he said.

Ald. Carmen Sarlo, 6th, said the city would have to take precautions to ensure that a "fair group of people" is appointed to a consumer protection committee.

"We would have to be careful not to establish a group that would be out to get merchants," he said. "I would not want to create that because the customer is not always right."

Dist. 63 cuts back to avert deficit

The East Maine Dist. 63 Board of Education has directed the administration to reduce spending on school supplies and cut out all equipment purchases in the 1976-77 school year.

The board Tuesday made its first move to cut expenditures in an attempt to prevent a $570,000 deficit projected for the 1977-78 school year. The board has been setting guidelines for discussing options to reduce spending and stay within its budget during the next five years.

In August the administration reported that the district will have a deficit of $81,315 in the building fund this year. The district anticipates deficit spending to continue in the building fund for the next five years with the fund reaching a deficit of more than $1 million by the 1979-80 school year.

THE REPORT ALSO showed the district with a $123,054 deficit in the education fund by the 1977-78 school year and continued deficit spending in that fund through the 1979-80 school year when a $4 million deficit is expected.

Since August, the district's state aid has been cut because of the governor's cuts in education spending. The district has not figured the effect of this cut on its five-year projections.

The board Tuesday decided to reduce the amount of money spent on student supplies to $27 for each elementary student and $37 for each junior high student next year. Student supplies include workbooks, new books and art supplies. In recent years, schools have budgeted between $30 and $50 per student for supplies.

THE DISTRICT anticipates it will save about $132,000 by reducing the supply costs.

The board also called for a "moratorium" on equipment purchases next year, which will result in a savings of about $48,000. The district will have an emergency fund to take care of necessary equipment purchases.

Other options for cutting expenses in the district will be discussed by the board Tuesday, Jan. 13, at Apollo Junior High School, 10100 Dee Rd., Maine Township.

More facts sought on post office buy

Des Plaines officials are seeking more information from the federal government about purchasing the old post office as a new location for the Des Plaines Historical Society.

The city plans to ask the U. S. General Services Administration what procedure should be followed in order to purchase the building at Graceland Avenue and Ellinwood Street. The building will be vacated later this year when the post office moves to its new location at Oakton Street and Executive Way.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said the federal government recently asked the city whether it would be interested in buying the building, and city officials are considering it.

Behrel said the old post office is a "potential location" for the historical society. He said the city must decide whether it is a desirable location and whether to make a purchase offer.

RICHARD WELCH, historical society museum director, said the old post office is one of several locations that have been considered by society officials.

In addition to the old post office, city officials are considering the purchase of a vacant lot at 791 Graceland Ave., for the historical society's use.

The society now is in the old Kinder House, 777 Lee St., but has been notified that it must vacate the property in the near future to make way for a drive-in facility for First Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Des Plaines.

Welch said if the vacant lot is purchased by the city the historical society hopes to move the Kinder House to the new location.

Welch said the post office and the site at 791 Graceland Ave. are acceptable and that the historical society has no preference.

Six firms charged

Dump issue forces plan session

Six Oakton Industrial Park firms accused of dumping dangerous levels of grease and oil into the sanitary sewer system have agreed to meet with Elk Grove Township officials to work out a corrective plan.

Nita A. Stamm, township environmental officer, said meetings have been set up for the mornings of Jan. 19 and 20 with the firms. The township's engineering firm of Pearson, Brown and Associates, will be represented at the meetings.

The sewer system leading from one of the firms, Donlon Engineering Co., 125 Elizabeth Dr., will be retested in the meantime. Mrs. Stamm said Donlon Engineering also would have an onsite inspection, "hopefully this week."

AN EMPLOYEE of Donlon Engineering told The Herald the firm only had its washrooms hooked up to the sewer system and denied the company could be dumping industrial pollutants in the system.

The other five companies charged with the dumping are Cumberland Servicecenter, 2375 Oakton St.; Nolden Steel Fabricators Inc., 105 Weiler Rd.; Ronnie Kaplan Engineering Co., 115 Elizabeth Dr.; DeBruyne Enterprises, 2420 E. Oakton St.; and National Industrial Trucking, 2225 E. Oakton St.

Spokesmen for all the firms said they had been unaware of the problem when the township cited the companies in December.

Township officials said their sewer tests last fall found hexane solubles (grease) in levels higher than those permitted in the sanitary sewer lines. The solubles can cause explosions if levels become too high. The samples were tested by Allied Laboratories, Chicago.

AFTER AN EMPLOYEE of a sewer inspection firm was seriously injured in a sewer explosion along Oakton Street, the township passed an ordinance authorizing fines up to $100 a day for violations.

The township also can bring legal action against violators and curtail sewer services.

Mrs. Stamm said acid levels also were high at several testing spots, but not high enough to be violations.

The tests were conducted initially at 28 inspection sewers throughout the industrial park, and the high grease areas were reinspected before violation notices were sent.

In a related matter, the township authorized spending $15,000 to repair a sewer system pump at the Oakton Street Station. Township Inspector Anthony W. Orloff said, "The heavy grease and oil in the wet well had to be pumped out before any repair work could be done."

The recent sewer inspections also are aimed at cutting down the number of pump repairs.

Teachers bid to reopen contract

Dist. 59 snubs new salary talks

A request by teachers to reopen their contract with Elk Grove Village Dist. 59 for salary negotiations has been rejected by the board of education.

The board in a statement Monday said the request, sought by 50 of the district's 500 teachers during a board meeting last month, "is not in keeping with the terms of our agreement."

The board statement quoted a section in the contract that board members said does not provide for reopening of contract talks.

The board said the contract section states, "for the life of this agreement, each voluntarily and unqualifiedly waives the right, and each agrees that the other shall not be obligated to bargain collectively with respect to any subject during the term of this agreement."

Teachers during last month's meeting also protested that administrators received annual salary increases averaging 11 per cent this year while teachers received an 8 per cent salary hike in September. The teachers pay hike included a 4 per cent raise for an additional year of experience.

THE ADMINISTRATION presented a report to the board Monday that showed the average administrators' salary increase is 5 per cent if salary increases are computed on a daily basis.

The report showed that several of the administrators receiving high salary increases also are working more days each year which results in a lower increase on a daily basis.

The report showed, as an example, that Robert Brower received a 3 per cent salary increase if the raise was figured on a daily basis. Brower was promoted from Friendship Junior High School principal to associate superintendent. As a central office administrator, he will work 262 days compared to 211 as a principal.

His annual salary increased by 28 per cent, from $23,410 to $30,000. The report showed his daily increase was from $110.95 to $114.50.

Teachers generally earn between $93 and $110 daily.

More than 3,000 students have already registered and another 3,000 are expected to enroll, according to admissions officials who predict a record-breaking spring enrollment.

Spring term classes will begin during the week of Jan. 19 and will end May 12. Oakton students will have spring vacation April 7-17 and the semester will officially end with commencement May 23.

Late registration will be available during the first week of class only for part-time students enrolling in 11 semester hours or less. A fee of $5 will be charged for late registration. The admissions office will be open for late registration only between 3 and 4 p.m. from Jan. 19-23.

Tuition for non-district residents for the spring semester is $12 per semester hour. District residents 60 or older are charged $6 per credit hour.

The class will meet on Wednesdays from 6 to 8:50 p.m. in the library's downstairs meeting room. Tuition for college district residents is $12 per credit hour. Senior citizens are charged half the tuition rate.

For information about registration contact the admissions office, 967-5120, ext. 392.

Dist. 26 to form financial panel

River Trails Dist. 26 board members have decided to form a citizens' committee by Jan. 20 to study the district's financial options.

Board members in the financially-troubled district learned last month that the schools face bankruptcy as early as 1977-78 unless local taxes and state aid are increased. The district is losing enrollment and local assessed valuation is not rising as predicted because of changing tax formulas, district officials said.

Although projections show that an increase in local taxes will only postpone the district's financial crisis, a referendum was mentioned in December as the first step the district could take toward halting bankruptcy.

"In the past, citizens have played a real key role in business of this type," said Supt. John Friedlund Tuesday. He suggested the board ask the district's residents to help with the schools' financial problems and not just pass a referendum.

BOARD PRES. Leora Rosen first questioned the amount of time it would take to inform a large group of citizens about the district's financial problems.

Board member Lloyd Demel said a good deal of financial information already has been made public through budget and teachers' salary discussions.

"We don't need fabulous amounts of investigation," he said.

Idyll Nipper, a former chairman of past referendum campaigns, said citizen involvement was worth any added time it might cost the board.

"We are pushed for time, but to my way of thinking we're better off taking time and having the citizens' committee come up with the answers to where we are going," she said.

"If we don't, we may lose a lot more time than we'll gain, because we might lose the referendum," she said.

Miss Nipper referred to the district's last tax increase referendum in 1971. When first presented to voters in February 1971, the issue was defeated by a narrow margin. But under Miss Nipper and Demel, a citizens' committee organized support and passed the same issue in April. That referendum raised the education fund rate from $1.40 to $1.60 per $100 equalized assessed valuation, and approved a $625,000 building addition to River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect.

Board member Sylvia Lurie said a citizens' committee on financial options also could voice its opinions on possible program cuts, and staffing needs for next year, areas which caused considerable controversy in the district last spring.

Miss Nipper agreed to serve as co-chairman of the citizens' committee.

Anyone interested in serving on the committee may call Dist. 26 administrative offices at 297-4126.

Community chest at 88% of goal

Donations should be mailed to Des Plaines Community Chest, Inc., P.O. Box 204, Des Plaines, 60017. The drive raised $48,551 last year, about $2,600 more than its goal.

Pop shop a family affair

He keeps traditions alive at Arlington Beverage Co.

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Harvey Lutz has been a bartender, cab driver and trucker in his long career. The Des Plaines native never dreamed that he'd end up bottling soda pop in the suburbs.

Since 1960 he's worked hard to keep the fizz in the ginger ale, the tartness in the lime soda and F. W. Muller's secret formula in all the pop at the Arlington Beverage Co., 1326 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. It's been that way since 1872 when the Muller company opened for business.

There hasn't been a Muller at the helm of the firm since 1945, when the family decided to sell it. The company changed hands four times during the next 15 years before Lutz decided he could make a go of it.

"ALL I DID WAS drink pop when I first bought this company. I had no idea how to make it. The people who had worked here for years under Muller had to teach me what I know today," Lutz says in a slight German accent.

At that time the various Arlington Club beverages were being produced in a building at 110 W. Fremont St., Arlington Heights, on the old Muller family property. The same building now houses the Arlington Heights Historical Society Museum.

The museum includes a collection of printed history on the old beverage company and time-worn photographs depicting Muller in a horse and buggy on his way to deliver his thirst-quenching product.

"We always have had older people come into our store here, telling us about the days when they were children and worked for Muller. They used to help him lift bottles off of train cars and then get all the pop they could drink for free," said Marion Lutz, who has been as much a part of the beverage business as her husband.

A SIMPLE CONVEYOR system carries the 7-, 10- and 33-ounce bottles through sterilization, filling, inspection, capping and mixing processes that enable the Lutzes to fill an average 600 cases of bottles daily in 20 different flavors.

It is the same procedure that Muller used more than a hundred years ago when he was making many of the same beverages, and a few others that have disappeared with their recipes.

"People sometimes come in and ask for the Klondike Fizz or Sidra, which is like an apple drink," Mrs. Lutz said. "But we've looked and we just can't find the right extract for those drinks. We can't make them, but the people said they drank them years ago when Muller owned the company."

Those were the days when Muller marked his stocky, milk-glass bottles with his initials embossed in the center of a star.

HUNDREDS OF THE company's old bottles are unearthed each year in backyards, cellars, walls of old taverns and the dusty boxes of antique attics. Some of the now-collector's items are on display in a glass case at the beverage company store.

The re-usable glass bottles of today somewhat resemble their predecessors: They are shapely and slender, crowned with old-fashioned caps and slapped with labels that bear the company insignia. A cup was selected as the official company emblem by Muller just before he gave up the pop shop.

The pop beverages are favorites among long-time suburban residents who were raised in homes where the Arlington Beverage Co. was like a friend of the family.

Devoted patrons and regular orders from large churches, factories and public halls account for more than 4,000 cases of soda pop the company sells each month.

THE COMPANY continues to thrive despite the unmatched competition of name brand sodas which are carried in major food stores, Lutz said.

The beverages are "really sold mouth-to-mouth," Lutz said. "People tell people about our pop, and they try it."

"I put out the best pop I can. I put everything I have into the business," he said.

"We can say we've done a pretty good job at restoring a beverage company that's been here almost as long as some towns. It was and still is a family business," Lutz said.

THE POP SHOP of Mount Prospect houses the Arlington Beverage Co. The shop used to be located in the building that now houses the Arlington Heights Historical Society Museum. The museum displays old photographs of the pop firm.

of the Arlington Beverage Co., Mount Prospect. Lutz oversees the daily production of 20 different flavors of pop. The firm has bottled drinks since 1872.

Church steeple remodeled into honeymoon spot

DODGEVILLE, Wis. (UPI) — Honeymoon in a church steeple?

"It's bringing us a lot of great compliments," said Don Quinn, a retired airline pilot turned motel operator, Wednesday.

"People like it, and when they find how plush it is, they are doubly appreciative."

Quinn said he thought of the idea after learning that the Civil War era Methodist church in Dodgeville, Wis., with its 67-foot white steeple, was slated for demolition.

"I just dreaded the thought of it being smashed," he explained.

"I first got interested in saving portions of old buildings because of their historical importance — and the fact they contain such fantastic wood."

QUINN NOTED, for example, that the motel's supper club was converted from one of the largest dairy barns in the area, while the motel annex is the former Chicago & North Western railroad depot at Dodgeville.

But his proudest renovation is the steeple itself. It was moved to the site of the main motel and placed on a base made of brick and concrete from the old Dodgeville water tower about six months ago.

Quinn charges $100-a-night for weekends, but the price includes two dinners, champagne, fruit basket and cheese. The weekday rate is $50-a-night.

The steeple is divided into three levels of 12-by-12 feet of living space and a winding stairway was added.

The focal point of the first level, the bathroom, is an oversized bathtub fashioned from a huge copper Swiss cheese kettle salvaged from an old cheese factory.

IN A BEDROOM, muted colors flow in from the fantail church windows which were a part of the steeple. On the upper level, with the spire, there's a view of the surrounding countryside.

Floors and walls are heavily carpeted and the ornately carved woodwork, the contrasting colors and textures of the brick base, dark shingles and large copper ball atop the spire, make the steeple a memorable bedroom for any honeymooning couple.

Quinn, a 50-year old native of Sturgis, S.D., said the steeple-honeymoon-cottage has become so popular, many couples return for their anniversary.

"So many beautiful things are destroyed," Quinn said, "and for no good reason. I'd like to save as many as I can."

Ambulance referendum hits snag

The Wheeling Village Board's request to completely annex the village into the Wheeling Rural Fire District has set back plans for an ambulance tax referendum.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen Wednesday night asked fire protection district trustees to postpone the ambulance tax referendum until the annexation referendum is held. Koepfen said if the annexation fails, "I think there is a group of people in Wheeling who would come out against the ambulance tax."

Most of Wheeling is already within the fire district, except for some 2,000 residents in the northeast section of the village. Residents of this area do not pay taxes to the district. Instead, they are served by the municipal fire department, supported by village tax monies.

VILLAGE RESIDENTS within the fire district pay taxes at a rate of 28 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Koepfen said that if the annexation referendum fails, "double taxation falls on the other part of town. It isn't fair to the other part of the village."

Irv Lemke, president of the fire district board, said the district was planning to go for the ambulance tax referendum in February or March. Rural fire district officials said the vote on the ambulance tax will probably not be held before June.

The district wants to levy the special tax to fund ambulance and paramedic service now required by the state. The Illinois Dept. of Public Health since 1974 has required that two paramedics answer ambulance calls. Previously, only one paramedic was required on calls.

Fire district officials are seeking the tax because general revenue funds can only be used for firefighting costs. The ambulance tax would only be used for paramedic and ambulance programs.

THE PROPOSED tax would be about 10 to 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation or $10 to $15 annually for homeowners whose property has an assessed valuation of $10,000.

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said he didn't like the idea of postponing the ambulance tax referendum.

"If we don't make the September deadline (for levying the tax), it would drop us back a full year," he said.

The tax must be levied before September if the fire departments are to have the funds included in 1977 budgets. Winter said the need for the money "will be critical by that point."

Koepfen and Winter have reported an increase in ambulance calls during the past year. Koepfen said Wheeling ambulance calls during November outnumbered fire calls by better than 2-1. Winter said about 60 per cent of the calls answered by his department were for ambulance service.

MONEY FOR operating the ambulance service in Wheeling comes out of the village's general fund. Ambulance calls in Buffalo Grove are funded from donations and gifts from civic organizations. The Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. also charges $30 for each call.

James Ryan, attorney for the fire district, said a date for the referendum will probably be set at the board's February meeting.

The fire protection district serves 45,000 to 50,000 residents in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

Industrial group to meet tonight

The Buffalo Grove Industrial Development Commission will meet 8 p.m. today in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd. The panel meets regularly once a month on the first Thursday.

Boys' club to bid for land lease tonight

A presentation by representatives of the Countryside Boys' Club about the proposed youth center will be made tonight at the Buffalo Grove Park District meeting.

Representatives from Countryside Boys' Club are seeking a 20-year lease from the park district for 9.5 acres at The Crossings, Ill. Rtes. 83 and 53, for the teen center.

Questions about whether the park district can legally enter into a long-term lease for the property with the boys' club are expected to be answered tonight but no decision will be made on the actual lease.

The parcel is still owned by The Richards Group, developers of The Crossings, but is expected to be deeded to the village, which in turn will give the property to the park district.

On the parcel are a house and barn, which the boys' club would convert into the youth center to provide programs for youths 6 to 19 years old in the Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Arlington Heights and Long Grove area. The building also would be available for use by other groups.

Tonight's program will include a color film presentation on the boys' club activities.

The park board meeting will be at 8 p.m. at Emmerich Park, 150 Raupp Blvd.

Increased ridership goal of changes

RTA to review bus proposals

Recommendations for increasing ridership on the Wheeling bus system, including route changes, will be reviewed today by the Regional Transportation Authority.

Thomas Marcus, assistant village manager, Tuesday said RTA officials will review route changes and other proposals and report to the village by next week. Marcus said he hopes the improvements can be implemented by the end of January.

"Once we get RTA approval, we have to print new schedules, re-route the buses and put up new street signs. We hope to have the buses running on the new routes by the end of January," he said.

Proposed changes under review by the RTA include service to the Northbrook train station twice during the morning and evening commuter periods. The village bus also would make connections with two North Suburban Mass Transit System (NORTAN) bus routes.

THE PROPOSED routes would increase the number of trips to certain areas within the village, including Spruce, Cedar and Tahoe drives, Buffalo Grove Road, Sunset Lane, Manchester Drive and Strong Street.

Recommendations for improving the Wheeling bus system were presented to the Wheeling Village board in November after village officials asked for help in bolstering ridership. The system has been operating at a loss since it began three years ago, with a deficit of more than $45,000 in the fiscal year ending in June.

The RTA has funneled more than $35,000 into the village service to help defray the deficit. Marcus said the RTA will continue to fund the bus system for a five-month trial period.

The village operates two buses — a shuttle which runs between shopping areas and a regular bus which makes stops throughout the village. RTA officials last month notified the village that the lease will not be renewed on the bus used on regular routes in the village. Marcus said he is making arrangements to get another bus and that service should not be disrupted.

Survey to decide fate of bison buy

The fate of a proposed herd of buffalo for Buffalo Grove may be decided in a survey of village residents.

Thomas Fitzgerald, chairman of the Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission, said Wednesday that "fading" interest in the community, has made the commission uncertain about buying a buffalo herd for the village.

"The next step is going to be some kind of poll to see if people are still that interested and if they are, we'll go with it, and if they show little or no interest, we'll forget it," Fitzgerald said.

He said he would like to use an upcoming edition of the village newsletter to poll residents.

A MAJOR problem, Fitzgerald said, has been a place to put the buffalo. Commission members had been eyeing a 230-acre site in Lake County that the forest preserve district plans to condemn for a large retention basin.

But it's uncertain when the property, located between Checker and Schaffer roads, will be acquired. Another home for the animals would have to be found until the site is available, he said.

The commission is trying to coordinate the buffalo herd purchase with the national Bicentennial July 4.

Village Trustee Thomas Mahoney, a supporter of the proposal asked the village administrative staff at a board meeting Monday to look into exactly how and when Lake County officials plan to use the retention basin site.

BUT TRUSTEES Robert Bogart and Dorothy Carrol said they weren't in favor of the idea.

Obtaining funds for the purchase of the herd is "not really" a problem, Fitzgerald said. The commission has discussed a number of fundraising activities that would pay the $4,500 cost for a three-buffalo herd, he said.

The matter will come up for further discussion at the commission's next meeting, Jan. 15, at the Raupp Memorial Building, 901 Dunham Ln.

Is cheapest plan the best?

Council requests sewer study

The Barrington Area Council of Governments has requested a cost-effective study to determine if the proposed Long Grove interceptor sewer is the best plan to serve the area east of Barrington.

The proposed interceptor would connect Forest Lake, Hawthorn Woods and Kildeer to the Des Plaines River

Sewer Treatment Plant operated by the Lake County Public Works Dept.

The plan was approved by a 6-to-3 vote of the Lake County Regional Planning Commission. Commissioners Nelson Forrest of North Barrington, Homer LaPlant of Antioch, and Carole Boltz of Lincolnshire have prepared a minority report criticizing the plan, which has been submitted to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

IN A LETTER TO Lake County Board Chairman, John Balen. Don Klein, executive director of the council, said, "BACOG is acutely aware of the possible negative impact such an interceptor line can have on contiguous land uses and open space potential in the areas through which the sewer line passes."

The letter suggests that sewer service might be available from the Elia Township sewer plant, which is closer to the service area.

Robert Degen, Lake County Public Works Director, said last month that public works studies showed that the interceptor sewer was the least expensive route.

Degen said the Elia plant does not have capacity for the three communities and a second plant would have to be built to handle the area.

THE MINORITY REPORT from the planning commission also questioned the ability of the three communities to pay for the sewer line. Forest Lake, the report noted, is unincorporated, requiring voluntary financial participation by homeowners.

Degen said the communities have requested the line and are able to pay the cost.

Lake County has an open space deficiency of 13,000 acres according to planning commission figures, the report said, and the interceptor would be constructed through an important part of the open space of south central Lake County.

Overdue bill threatens trade show

The Mid-America Trade Show will not be allowed to open Friday at Arlington Park unless the village receives the overdue exhibition fee from a ski show presented there in October.

A spokesman for the Harry A. Leonard Co., New York, operators of the ski show, said a check for more than $2,100 has been mailed. Officials say the village has not yet received it.

"The people in New York have told me they are going to pay us, but I haven't seen the money yet," Village Building Cmr. Martin Munsen said Wednesday. "Until we get the money, we won't let the trade show open."

The village placed the ban on future exhibitions at Arlington Park in December because Leonard had not paid the village's exhibition fee of 3 per cent of the gross receipts from the ski show presented Oct. 23-26. The trade show is the first show to be scheduled since the village's ultimatum.

Leonard originally refused to pay.

New contract talks loom for teachers in Dist. 59

by PAM BIGFORD

With the October teachers strike in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 still fresh in mind, the board of education and teachers union say they are ready to intensify their negotiations efforts to avoid another strike.

The board and the union are busy gearing up for negotiations for a master teachers contract covering the next three years. The talks, by mutual agreement, must begin before March 1.

Salary was the only issue being negotiated in last year's talks. This year teachers and the board must agree to a new three-year contract, and the far more complex issues include salary, fringe benefits and working conditions.

BOARD PRES. Dr. Edgar Feldman said the board's main goal is to settle the contract by June and to avoid "critical problems which can lead to a work stoppage."

The board members believe the more knowledgeable they are about the contract and negotiations in general, the better they will be able to avoid these problems, Feldman said. So since December the board has been meeting in closed session about once a week to prepare for the talks.

"We have one member who is the board negotiator, but he takes his directions from the rest of the board, so we all have to be knowledgeable," Feldman said.

"What we're basically doing is familiarizing ourselves with each section of the contract in view of how it was in the past and how it might be bettered in the future," he said.

FELDMAN SAID the board is determined "to avoid a situation like last fall" when, he said, "there was a total breakdown in communications" between the union and the board and when "we got involved in personalities instead of issues."

"We want a smooth, harmonious relationship with the union and we plan to work hard at it," Feldman said. "We don't want to see disruption of school and bickering and pettiness."

The board has been taking advantage of collective bargaining conferences offered by the National School Board Assn. Board members Esther Karras and Sherry Reynolds attended a conference in Atlanta, and Ms. Reynolds attended a second one in Dallas.

"Talking with people from school districts all over the country was very beneficial," Mrs. Karras said. "We saw that our strike was not a unique situation. The same kind of problems come up in all negotiations, and we could see how other people handled them."

MRS. KARRAS SAID a particularly valuable aspect in the conferences was that both sides were represented. Teachers union spokesmen took part in panels along with board representatives.

Feldman said the board wants to have the contract signed by June and wants negotiations to begin this month. But Union Pres. Arthur Neil said January is "a bit early" for the union.

Neil said he has spent the past month interviewing teachers for the union negotiating team and expects to have the team selected by the end of the week.

Neil said he favors a small team backed up by a larger negotiations committee. He committee asks the 700 union members (out of 914 district teachers) to list their priorities concerning contract issues. The committee then helps the team tabulate the information and "put everything into perspective," he said.

Neil said he too would like to see the contract settled by June.

"Our salary proposal will be ready by our first meeting with the board," Neil said. "I'm very optimistic."

To feed or not to feed—parks ducking the issue?

by DANN GIRE

A Kwak in the Illinois Dept. of Conservation and Village Health Director James Demos are ruffling a few feathers in the Hoffman Estates Park District.

Demos, in a letter to Park Director Allen Binder, has recommended that "duck crossing" and "do not feed the ducks" signs be placed along Hassell Road near the district's Twin Lakes to warn residents about the meandering mallards.

Demos said he has received inquiries regarding "the exploded duck population at Twin Lakes" in the High Point subdivision. The letter also said biologist Thomas Kwak — really — with the state Dept. of Conservation, recommended the no-feeding signs so the ducks will have to seek food elsewhere.

THE RECOMMENDATION was at first rejected by park commissioners Tuesday but the board later agreed to study the matter at Board Pres. George Rush's urging.

"I see nothing wrong in putting up the signs," Rush said. But Comr. Thomas Barber balked at the suggestion.

"They're not our ducks," he said. "Why are they our responsibility. We didn't put them there. Why should we take care of them? They're God's ducks."

The sign recommendation revives the duck crossing issue which arose in 1974 when a citizens' group asked that signs be posted so drivers could be made aware of the ducks.

Village officials refused, however, because the duck crossing signs were not consistent with state guidelines.

VILLAGE MGR. George Longmeyer said if the duck signs were put up, it could jeopardize village motor fuel tax revenues which are distributed by the state.

"Many residents have been inconvenienced by the ducks which periodically cause damage to their property," Demos' letter said. "This department has also noticed that a safety hazard exists as ducks are crossing Hassell Road to get from one pond to another."

Park district board member Shirley Gibbons said last year some 50 persons attended a park board meeting and spoke favorably of the ducks at Twin Lakes.

A park district spokesman Wednesday said that "a lot of people who used to favor them (the ducks) have changed their views."

Crackdown on dog, cat licenses set

by JOHN MAES

Deadline nears for vehicle tags

Buffalo Grove residents have until Feb. 15 to buy and display 1976 village vehicle stickers.

Application forms for the vehicle stickers were mailed to village residents in November and can be returned by mail with the proper fee, Village Clerk Verna Clayton said.

Stickers also can be obtained during daily and Saturday village hall hours and special purchase hours from 5 to 7 p.m. have been set up for consecutive Thursdays, Feb. 5 and 12, for local vehicle registration.

Fees are $10 for autos, $15 for trucks up to 5,500 lbs., $30 for trucks over that weight and $5 for motorcycles and motorbikes. Mini-bikes are in violation of village ordinance when driven on local streets.

Motorists will be fined $15 and still will be required to purchase vehicle stickers for violation of the vehicle registration ordinance, she said.

Buffalo Grove police will begin a crackdown next week on village dog and cat owners who have not licensed the animals, police said Wednesday.

Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki said the department's general service officers will canvass the village Wednesday to check if dogs and cats are properly licensed.

Residents who have not obtained the appropriate tags will be warned they have 72 hours to get one and will be ticketed after that period, he said.

GOZDECKI SAID the service officers will not be authorized to issue licenses during the canvass.

The fine for violation of the ordinance is $5 and the owner will be required to obtain the license, said Village Clerk Verna Clayton.

All cats and dogs older than four months must be licensed with the village at a cost of $4. The ordinance prohibits keeping more than four dogs and/or cats in a single-family home and more than two in apartments and attached townhomes.

This is the first year that Buffalo Grove has required licensing of cats.

LICENSES MAY be obtained at the village hall during business hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to noon, Saturdays. Residents also may purchase licenses by mail using forms sent out to all homes last November, Mrs. Clayton said.

A special night depository is also available at the village hall for residents wishing to drop off application forms and the fee. The tags will be mailed out, she said.

Proof of valid rabies vaccinations must accompany all applications. Mrs. Clayton said some confusion has been caused recently because some residents believed they must have their animals revaccinated just to purchase village tags. But that procedure is not necessary as long as rabies certificates are valid at the time of purchase, she said.

All dog and cat licenses expire Dec. 31 of each year.

Boys' club to bid for land lease tonight

A presentation by representatives of the Countryside Boys' Club about the proposed youth center will be made tonight at the Buffalo Grove Park District meeting.

Representatives from Countryside Boys' Club are seeking a 20-year lease from the park district for 9.5 acres at The Crossings, Ill. Rtes. 83 and 53, for the teen center.

Questions about whether the park district can legally enter into a long-term lease for the property with the boys' club are expected to be answered tonight but no decision will be made on the actual lease.

The parcel is still owned by The Richards Group, developers of The Crossings, but is expected to be deeded to the village, which in turn will give the property to the park district.

On the parcel are a house and barn, which the boys' club would convert into the youth center to provide programs for youths 6 to 19 years old in the Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Arlington Heights and Long Grove area. The building also would be available for use by other groups.

Tonight's program will include a color film presentation on the boys' club activities.

The park board meeting will be at 8 p.m. at Emmerich Park, 150 Raupp Blvd.

Annexation issue cited

Vote on ambulance tax hits snag

The Wheeling Village Board's request to completely annex the village into the Wheeling Rural Fire District has set back plans for an ambulance tax referendum.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen Wednesday night asked fire protection district trustees to postpone the ambulance tax referendum until the annexation referendum is held. Koepfen said if the annexation fails,

"I think there is a group of people in Wheeling who would come out against the ambulance tax."

Most of Wheeling is already within the fire district, except for some 2,000 residents in the northeast section of the village. Residents of this area do not pay taxes to the district. Instead, they are served by the municipal fire department, supported by village tax monies.

VILLAGE RESIDENTS within the fire district pay taxes at a rate of 28 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Koepfen said that if the annexation referendum fails, "double taxation falls on the other part of town. It isn't fair to the other part of the village."

Irv Lemke, president of the fire district board, said the district was planning to go for the ambulance tax referendum in February or March. Rural fire district officials said the vote on the ambulance tax will probably not be held before June.

The district wants to levy the special tax to fund ambulance and paramedic services now required by the state. The Illinois Dept. of Public Health since 1974 has required that two paramedics answer ambulance calls. Previously, only one paramedic was required on calls.

Fire district officials are seeking the tax because general revenue funds can only be used for firefighting costs. The ambulance tax would only be used for paramedic and ambulance programs.

THE PROPOSED tax would be about 10 to 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation or $10 to $15 annually for homeowners whose property has an assessed valuation of $10,000.

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said he didn't like the idea of postponing the ambulance tax referendum.

"If we don't make the September deadline (for levying the tax), it would drop us back a full year," he said.

Survey to decide fate of bison buy

The fate of a proposed herd of buffalo for Buffalo Grove may be decided in a survey of village residents.

Thomas Fitzgerald, chairman of the Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission, said Wednesday that "fading" interest in the community, has made the commission uncertain about buying a buffalo herd for the village.

"The next step is going to be some kind of poll to see if people are still that interested and if they are, we'll go with it, and if they show little or no interest, we'll forget it," Fitzgerald said.

He said he would like to use an upcoming edition of the village newsletter to poll residents.

A MAJOR problem, Fitzgerald said, has been a place to put the buffalo. Commission members had been eyeing a 230-acre site in Lake County that the forest preserve district plans to condemn for a large retention basin.

But it's uncertain when the property, located between Checker and Schaffer roads, will be acquired. Another home for the animals would have to be found until the site is available, he said.

The commission is trying to coordinate the buffalo herd purchase with the national Bicentennial July 4.

Village Trustee Thomas Mahoney, a supporter of the proposal asked the village administrative staff at a board meeting Monday to look into exactly how and when Lake County officials plan to use the retention basin site.

Lower speed limit rejected by county

The Cook County Highway Dept. has denied Buffalo Grove's request to lower the speed limit on Buffalo Grove Road between Dundee Road and the Lake County line, Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said.

Officials had requested the probe last August in hopes of reducing the speed limit to 35 m.p.h. from the current 45 m.p.h.

"They did the study and the volume of traffic that used the road dictated a limit of 45," Larson said.

Larson said the village has no authority to raise or lower speed limits on Buffalo Grove Road, a county roadway.

Trustee Robert Bogart asked Larson to seek the study several months ago following complaints from area residents who said the speed limit was too high and potentially hazardous.

Is cheapest plan the best?

Council requests sewer study

The Barrington Area Council of Governments has requested a cost-effective study to determine if the proposed Long Grove interceptor sewer is the best plan to serve the area east of Barrington.

The proposed interceptor would connect Forest Lake, Hawthorn Woods and Kildeer to the Des Plaines River

Sewer Treatment Plant operated by the Lake County Public Works Dept.

The plan was approved by a 6-4-3 vote of the Lake County Regional Planning Commission. Commissioners Nelson Forrest of North Barrington, Homer LaPlant of Antioch, and Carole Boltz of Lincolnshire have prepared a minority report criticizing the plan, which has been submitted to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

IN A LETTER TO Lake County Board Chairman, John Balen. Don Klein, executive director of the council, said, "BACOG is acutely aware of the possible negative impact such an interceptor line can have on contiguous land uses and open space potential in the areas through which the sewer line passes."

The letter suggests that sewer service might be available from the Elia Township sewer plant, which is closer to the service area.

Robert Degen, Lake County Public Works Director, said last month that public works studies showed that the interceptor sewer was the least expensive route.

Degen said the Elia plant does not have capacity for the three communities and a second plant would have to be built to handle the area.

THE MINORITY REPORT from the planning commission also questioned the ability of the three communities to pay for the sewer line. Forest Lake, the report noted, is unincorporated, requiring voluntary financial participation by homeowners.

Degen said the communities have requested the line and are able to pay the cost.

Lake County has an open space deficiency of 13,000 acres according to planning commission figures, the report said, and the interceptor would be constructed through an important part of the open space of south central Lake County.

Village sets blood drawing Sunday

Buffalo Grove residents are being asked to roll up their sleeves Sunday and donate a pint of blood for the Buffalo Grove Blood Assurance Program.

Appointments to donate blood between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at Buffalo Grove High School can be made by calling 537-2758. Donations also will be accepted Sunday from persons without appointments.

Approximately 445 pints have been credited to the village during this year's drive, which started in July. Sylvia Bogard, cochairman of the Buffalo Grove Blood Assurance Program, said the village needs to collect 750 pints of blood to meet its quota.

The 750-pint quota represents 4 per cent of the village's population, the amount necessary for all Buffalo Grove residents to be eligible for free, unlimited blood replacement under

New contract talks loom for teachers in Dist. 59

by PAM BIGFORD

With the October teachers strike in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 still fresh in mind, the board of education and teachers union say they are ready to intensify their negotiations efforts to avoid another strike.

The board and the union are busy gearing up for negotiations for a master teachers contract covering the next three years. The talks, by mutual agreement, must begin before March 1.

Salary was the only issue being negotiated in last year's talks. This year teachers and the board must agree to a new three-year contract, and the far more complex issues include salary, fringe benefits and working conditions.

BOARD PRES. Dr. Edgar Feldman said the board's main goal is to settle the contract by June and to avoid "critical problems which can lead to a work stoppage."

The board members believe the more knowledgeable they are about the contract and negotiations in general, the better they will be able to avoid these problems, Feldman said. So since December the board has been meeting in closed session about once a week to prepare for the talks.

"We have one member who is the board negotiator, but he takes his directions from the rest of the board, so we all have to be knowledgeable," Feldman said.

"What we're basically doing is familiarizing ourselves with each section of the contract in view of how it was in the past and how it might be bettered in the future," he said.

FELDMAN SAID the board is determined "to avoid a situation like last fall" when, he said, "there was a total breakdown in communications" between the union and the board and when "we got involved in personalities instead of issues."

"We want a smooth, harmonious relationship with the union and we plan to work hard at it," Feldman said. "We don't want to see disruption of school and bickering and pettiness."

The board has been taking advantage of collective bargaining conferences offered by the National School Board Assn. Board members Esther Karras and Sherry Reynolds attended a conference in Atlanta, and Ms. Reynolds attended a second one in Dallas.

"Talking with people from school districts all over the country was very beneficial," Mrs. Karras said. "We saw that our strike was not a unique situation. The same kind of problems come up in all negotiations, and we could see how other people handled them."

MRS. KARRAS SAID a particularly valuable aspect in the conferences was that both sides were represented. Teachers union spokesmen took part in panels along with board representatives.

Feldman said the board wants to have the contract signed by June and wants negotiations to begin this month. But Union Pres. Arthur Neil said January is "a bit early" for the union.

Neil said he has spent the past month interviewing teachers for the union negotiating team and expects to have the team selected by the end of the week.

Neil said he favors a small team backed up by a larger negotiations committee. He committee asks the 700 union members (out of 914 district teachers) to list their priorities concerning contract issues. The committee then helps the team tabulate the information and "put everything into perspective," he said.

Neil said he too would like to see the contract settled by June.

"Our salary proposal will be ready by our first meeting with the board," Neil said. "I'm very optimistic."

To feed or not to feed—parks ducking the issue?

by DANN GIRE

A Kwak in the Illinois Dept. of Conservation and Village Health Director James Demos are ruffling a few feathers in the Hoffman Estates Park District.

Demos, in a letter to Park Director Allen Binder, has recommended that "duck crossing" and "do not feed the ducks" signs be placed along Hassell Road near the district's Twin Lakes to warn residents about the meandering mallards.

Demos said he has received inquiries regarding "the exploded duck population at Twin Lakes" in the High Point subdivision. The letter also said biologist Thomas Kwak — really — with the state Dept. of Conservation, recommended the no-feeding signs so the ducks will have to seek food elsewhere.

THE RECOMMENDATION was at first rejected by park commissioners Tuesday but the board later agreed to study the matter at Board Pres. George Rush's urging.

"I see nothing wrong in putting up the signs," Rush said. But Comr. Thomas Barber balked at the suggestion.

"They're not our ducks," he said. "Why are they our responsibility. We didn't put them there. Why should we take care of them? They're God's ducks."

The sign recommendation revives the duck crossing issue which arose in 1974 when a citizens' group asked that signs be posted so drivers could be made aware of the ducks.

Village officials refused, however, because the duck crossing signs were not consistent with state guidelines.

VILLAGE MGR. George Longmeyer said if the duck signs were put up, it could jeopardize village motor fuel tax revenues which are distributed by the state.

"Many residents have been inconvenienced by the ducks which periodically cause damage to their property," Demos' letter said. "This department has also noticed that a safety hazard exists as ducks are crossing Hassell Road to get from one pond to another."

Park district board member Shirley Gibbons said last year some 50 persons attended a park board meeting and spoke favorably of the ducks at Twin Lakes.

A park district spokesman Wednesday said that "a lot of people who used to favor them (the ducks) have changed their views."

Overdue bill threatens trade show

The Mid-America Trade Show will not be allowed to open Friday at Arlington Park unless the village receives the overdue exhibition fee from a ski show presented there in October.

A spokesman for the Harry A. Leonard Co., New York, operators of the ski show, said a check for more than $2,100 has been mailed. Officials say the village has not yet received it.

"The people in New York have told me they are going to pay us, but I haven't seen the money yet," Village Building Cmr. Martin Munsen said Wednesday. "Until we get the money, we won't let the trade show open."

The village placed the ban on future exhibitions at Arlington Park in December because Leonard had not paid the village's exhibition fee of 3 per cent of the gross receipts from the ski show presented Oct. 23-26. The trade show is the first show to be scheduled since the village's ultimatum.

Leonard originally refused to pay the 3 per cent fee saying the ski show was "educational, not entertainment."

The $2,100 fee is the largest ever collected by the village. In previous years, only a $17 per day fee was charged.

Industrial group to meet tonight

U.S. panel asked to act on light units

by TOM VON MALDER

An Elk Grove Village resident has petitioned the U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission to declare light fixtures used in the Winston Grove subdivision a hazard.

Michael Smith, who formerly was a volunteer with the state Consumer Advocate Office and is currently a Democratic candidate for state senator from the 3rd District, said Wednesday he wants the commission to order the light fixtures replaced or repaired.

Smith's petition was sent by telegram to Washington and has been forwarded to the Chicago office.

AT LEAST A dozen homeowners in the subdivision, near Rohlwing and Nerge roads, have said the light fixtures in kitchens and dining rooms fall down and shatter. No injuries have been reported.

Judith Stone, of the consumer commission's Chicago office, said Smith's petition has been received but cannot be acted on until it has gone through the commission's general counsel's office.

"We would take a look at the fixtures, who made them and see if there have been similar problems elsewhere with them," she said. Such a procedure could take several months, she said.

The fixtures were made by Gerlinger & Sons of Pikes Hill, New York, and when originally installed were approved by Underwriter Laboratories.

Village officials recently sent a sample of the fixture to the Underwriter Laboratories office, Northbrook, for testing. Building Comr. Thomas F. Rettenbacher said the tests showed the fixture still met all the UL standards.

Rettenbacher has sent the sample fixture back to the manufacturer for further testing.

Salary talks turned down by Dist. 59

A request by teachers to reopen their contract with Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 for salary negotiations has been rejected by the board of education.

The board in a statement Monday said the request, sought by 50 of the districts 500 teachers during a board meeting last month, "is not in keeping with the terms of our agreement."

The board statement quoted a section in the contract that board members said does not provide for reopening of contract talks.

The board said the contract section states, "for the life of this agreement, each voluntarily and unqualifiedly waives the right, and each agrees that the other shall not be obligated to bargain collectively with respect to

SMITH, IN HIS petition, said the fixture was improperly designed and is causing a problem which Centex Homes Corp., the homes' builder, and the village say is a "maintenance problem."

The threading on the bolt which holds the glass bottom of the light fixture is stripped away when the homeowner changes a worn out light bulb.

"I didn't feel there was responsive action being taken on the complaints," Smith said in filing the petition. "The village's hands are somewhat tied. It is Centex's and the manufacturer's responsibility."

Smith said he based his petition on the fact the fixtures could represent a nationwide danger and not just an Elk Grove Village danger.

The commission by law has to acknowledge his petition within 120 days, Smith said.

Area feels Old Man Winter's bite

The Northwest suburbs faced the coldest weather of the winter season Wednesday as temperatures dropped below zero and the "bitter" cold is expected to continue through Saturday with low temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees below zero in the suburbs, the National Weather Service predicted.

"Bundle up," a spokesman for the weather service said late Wednesday. "It will be zero to five (degrees) above" Thursday.

"That sounds like a low, not a high," the spokesman added.

Despite the low temperature predictions, the mercury level will not drop to a record. In 1875, the Chicago-area temperature bottomed at 20 degrees below zero, the spokesman said.

THE COLD temperatures are part of a cold air mass that moved southeast from Canada and dumped snow throughout the Midwest.

Snow between one and two inches was reported in the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning. Heavier snowfall of up to five inches hampered morning rush hour drivers in south Cook County and northern Indiana.

The cold temperatures, which prevented melting of Wednesday's snowfall, and gusty winds contributed to traffic problems and dozens of minor auto accidents were reported throughout the suburbs.

The Chicago Motor Club offered five

tips to motorists who attempt to start cars during the cold spell:

- Turn off all accessories, lights, radio, heater and windshield wipers, before attempting to start the car.

- Depress the gas pedal to the floor and let it halfway up while turning the ignition key. Hold the key in starting position for 30 seconds.

- Don't flood the engine if the car fails to start immediately. Shut off the ignition, wait 30 seconds and try again.

- If the engine floods, shut off the ignition and press the gas pedal for 60 seconds.

- Warm the engine at idle. Don't race a cold engine and avoid engine damage.

Village to take final health survey

The final section of an Elk Grove Village health survey will be given to 250 families beginning Jan. 26.

Nancy Yiannias, village health coordinator, said the survey will be conducted by telephone. The first two parts of the survey also were conducted by telephone last October. Different families were chosen for each section.

The third section will deal primarily with questions of school health, children's examinations and the use of health clinics. Some questions on drug education will be repeated from the earlier sections and there will be more in-depth questions on emergency room use, Mrs. Yiannias said.

Some of the results of the first two sections, released last month, showed that drugs and alcohol were cited as the village's major health problems. The same respondents, however, said they would not be "very likely" to participate in an educational program on drugs and alcohol.

Other health problems listed by respondents included mental health, colds and viruses, cancer, doctor shortage, stagnant water, allergies, childhood diseases, encephalitis and diabetes.

Other respondents said airplane noise was the worst noise pollution problem.

Other sources of irritating noises were automobiles, motorcycles, animals and people.

The results of all three sections of the health survey will be given to the village board for study when completed.

At the academy's annual banquet, a $200 first-place award will be given by the Chicago Heart Assn., a $100 second-place, and three $25 third-place awards will be given by the Illinois Society for Medical Research.

Survey to decide fate of bison buy

The fate of a proposed herd of buffalo for Buffalo Grove may be decided in a survey of village residents.

Thomas Fitzgerald, chairman of the Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission, said Wednesday that "fading" interest in the community, has made the commission uncertain about buying a buffalo herd for the village.

"The next step is going to be some kind of poll to see if people are still that interested and if they are, we'll go with it, and if they show little or no interest, we'll forget it," Fitzgerald said.

He said he would like to use an upcoming edition of the village newsletter to poll residents.

A MAJOR problem, Fitzgerald said, has been a place to put the buffalo.

Enrollment open for parents' seminar

Enrollment is still open for tonight's return of Claire Jacobs' "Feeling OK About Parenting" seminar, sponsored by Elk Grove Village Community Service.

Ms. Jacobs, associate professor of early childhood education at Northwestern University, uses the basics of transactional analysis in the course.

The seminar will meet for five consecutive Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. in Room 206 at Lively Junior High School, 999 Leicester Rd. There is a $5 fee per person.

Registration may be made by calling 439-3900, ext. 259.

Commission members had been eyeing a 230-acre site in Lake County that the forest preserve district plans to condemn for a large retention basin.

But it's uncertain when the property, located between Checker and Schaffer roads, will be acquired. Another home for the animals would have to be found until the site is available, he said.

The commission is trying to coordinate the buffalo herd purchase with the national Bicentennial July 4.

Village Trustee Thomas Mahoney, a supporter of the proposal asked the village administrative staff at a board meeting Monday to look into exactly how and when Lake County officials plan to use the retention basin site.

BUT TRUSTEES Robert Bogart and Dorothy Carrol said they weren't in favor of the idea.

Obtaining funds for the purchase of the herd is "not really" a problem, Fitzgerald said. The commission has discussed a number of fundraising activities that would pay the $4,600 cost for a three-buffalo herd, he said.

The matter will come up for further discussion at the commission's next meeting, Jan. 15, at the Raupp Memorial Building, 901 Dunham Ln.

any subject during the term of this agreement."

Teachers during last month's meeting also protested that administrators received annual salary increases averaging 11 per cent this year while teachers received an 8 per cent salary hike in September. The teachers pay hike included a 4 per cent raise for an additional year of experience.

THE ADMINISTRATION presented a report to the board Monday that showed the average administrators' salary increase is 5 per cent if salary increases are computed on a daily basis.

The report showed that several of the administrators receiving high salary increases also are working more days each year which results in a lower increase on a daily basis.

The report showed, as an example, that Robert Brower received a 3 per cent salary increase if the raise was figured on a daily basis. Brower was promoted from Friendship Junior High School principal to associate superintendent. As a central office administrator, he will work 262 days compared to 211 as a principal.

His annual salary increased by 28 per cent, from $23,410 to $30,000. The report showed his daily increase was from $110.95 to $114.50.

Teachers generally earn between $83 and $110 daily.

Blood drawing Jan. 24 at firehouse

Donors must be between 17 and 65 and must weigh at least 110 pounds.

Appointments may be made by calling the village hall at 439-3900.

To feed or not to feed— parks ducking the issue?

by DANN GIRE

A Kwak in the Illinois Dept. of Conservation and Village Health Director James Demos are ruffling a few feathers in the Hoffman Estates Park District.

Demos, in a letter to Park Director Allen Binder, has recommended that "duck crossing" and "do not feed the ducks" signs be placed along Hassell Road near the district's Twin Lakes to warn residents about the meandering mallards.

Demos said he has received inquiries regarding "the exploded duck population at Twin Lakes" in the High Point subdivision. The letter also said biologist Thomas Kwak — really — with the state Dept. of Conservation, recommended the no-feeding signs so the ducks will have to seek food elsewhere.

THE RECOMMENDATION was at first rejected by park commissioners Tuesday but the board later agreed to study the matter at Board Pres. George Rush's urging.

"I see nothing wrong in putting up the signs," Rush said. But Comr. Thomas Barber balked at the suggestion.

"They're not our ducks," he said. "Why are they our responsibility. We didn't put them there. Why should we take care of them? They're God's ducks."

The sign recommendation revives the duck crossing issue which arose in 1974 when a citizens' group asked that signs be posted so drivers could be made aware of the ducks.

Village officials refused, however, because the duck crossing signs were not consistent with state guidelines.

VILLAGE MGR. George Longmeyer said if the duck signs were put up, it could jeopardize village motor fuel tax revenues which are distributed by the state.

"Many residents have been inconvenienced by the ducks which periodically cause damage to their property," Demos' letter said. "This department has also noticed that a safety hazard exists as ducks are crossing Hassell Road to get from one pond to another."

Park district board member Shirley Gibbons said last year some 50 persons attended a park board meeting and spoke favorably of the ducks at Twin Lakes.

A park district spokesman Wednesday said that "a lot of people who used to favor them (the ducks) have changed their views."

School vote, tax hike topics of meet

A possible tax rate increase and construction referendum will be discussed by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education at its committee-of-the-whole meeting at 8 p.m. today at Dooley School, 622 Norwood Lane, Schaumburg.

Board members were presented with a dismal five-year financial forecast for the district at the Dec. 10 board meeting. Administrators urged the board to schedule a tax rate increase referendum for Feb. 14 but the board deferred action until the Jan. 15 meeting.

Administrators said inflation has increased the cost of education per pupil and the present tax rate will not cover the district's expenses. The last tax rate increase in Dist. 54 was in 1967.

The board also deferred action on an administration request to schedule for Feb. 14 a $350,000 construction referendum to complete funding of a proposed administration center. The district presently has $700,000 available for the center, but the building cost is estimated at $1 million.

The administration today will review a report on enrollment projections and classroom utilization for 1976-77. Because of the construction of two new schools and the addition of classrooms to some present schools, boundary lines for enrollment are expected to change in several areas.

3% of library's books lost in 4-year period: officials

About 900 books have been lost at the Elk Grove Public Library during the last four years, a recent inventory showed.

Administrative Librarian Janet Steiner said, "That is a fairly low percentage of loss." Based on a 30,000 book stock, the loss is 3 per cent.

Most of the loss is because of theft, she said. Books checked out but not returned are not included in the count. She said the loss of nonfiction books was slightly higher than that for fiction.

The library board has awarded a $1,909 contract for 16 chairs and two tables to the Remington-Rand Furniture Co. through Marshall Field and Co.

A decision on whether to buy lounge chairs was postponed until a style could be chosen.

The board also has approved the hiring of an adult services department head. Ms. Steiner said she will be conducting interviews during the next month with candidates for the position.

During December, circulation was up from the previous December at the library. Adult circulation increased from 6,174 in November to about 7,900 while circulation of children's items went from about 4,700 to about 6,000. The over-all increase was 21 per cent.

Temporary rail station under study

by PAT GERLACH

A temporary commuter station in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park to relieve congestion at two existing stations on the Milwaukee Road is under study this week.

William Nelson, Northwest Suburban Mass Transit District trustee, told Schaumburg transportation committee members Wednesday the district has begun studying the technical engineering feasibility of a temporary commuter stop on a Milwaukee Road rail spur between Irving Park and Wise roads in the industrial park.

Jim Phillips, committee member, called the study "a spark of hope." Phillips said he believes a temporary station would help relieve commuter congestion at the Roselle and Hanover Park stations.

"THE STUDY should be completed this week," Nelson said. He explained the project is being done "in order to arrive at a preliminary evaluation of the land grade and track capability of the industrial park's spur."

But Nelson pointed out that an industrial park commuter stop would be "a temporary facility only to use until a permanent station is developed." He said the industrial park is a large tract that would provide "adequate parking space, but from an engineering standpoint there is much more that has to be considered."

Last year, the Milwaukee Road acknowledged Schaumburg as one of the fastest growing areas along the rail line and agreed to establish a commuter station if the village can assure adequate roads and parking, estimated at a minimum cost of $1.5 million.

SUGGESTED site for the permanent station is on property south of the railroad tracks near Springinsguth and Irving Park roads. There presently are no roads leading to the property.

Several months ago, Schaumburg's proposal for extension of Springinsguth Road to the Milwaukee Road tracks was accepted for funding by the Northwest Municipal Conference under the Federal Aid to Urban Systems program, though no timetable has been announced for the release of funds.

NO, IT'S NOT a used car lot. It's Golf Road eastbound near Meacham Road as it looked early Wednesday after a night's snowfall. Bumper-to-bumper traffic lines the state road while motorists waited for state plows and salt crews to do their thing.

Area feels Old Man Winter's bite

The Northwest suburbs faced the coldest weather of the winter season Wednesday as temperatures dropped below zero and the "bitter" cold is expected to continue through Saturday.

day with low temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees below zero in the suburbs, the National Weather Service predicted.

"Bundle up," a spokesman for the weather service said late Wednesday. "It will be zero to five (degrees) above" Thursday.

"That sounds like a low, not a high," the spokesman added.

Despite the low temperature predictions, the mercury level will not drop to a record. In 1875, the Chicago-area temperature bottomed at 20 degrees below zero, the spokesman said.

THE COLD temperatures are part of a cold air mass that moved southeast from Canada and dumped snow throughout the Midwest.

Snow between one and two inches was reported in the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning. Heavier snowfall of up to five inches hampered morning rush hour drivers in south Cook County and northern Indiana.

The cold temperatures, which prevented melting of Wednesday's snowfall, and gusty winds contributed to traffic problems and dozens of minor auto accidents were reported throughout the suburbs.

The Chicago Motor Club offered five tips to motorists who attempt to start cars during the cold spell:

- Turn off all accessories, lights, radio, heater and windshield wipers, before attempting to start the car.

- Depress the gas pedal to the floor and let it halfway up while turning the ignition key. Hold the key in starting position for 30 seconds.

- Don't flood the engine if the car fails to start immediately. Shut off the ignition, wait 30 seconds and try again.

- If the engine floods, shut off the ignition and press the gas pedal for 60 seconds.

- Warm the engine at idle. Don't race a cold engine and avoid engine damage.

To feed or not to feed—parks ducking the issue?

by DANN GIRE

A Kwak in the Illinois Dept. of Conservation and Village Health Director James Demos are ruffling a few feathers in the Hoffman Estates Park District.

Demos, in a letter to Park Director Allen Binder, has recommended that "duck crossing" and "do not feed the ducks" signs be placed along Hassell Road near the district's Twin Lakes to warn residents about the meandering mallards.

Demos said he has received inquiries regarding "the exploded duck population at Twin Lakes" in the High Point subdivision. The letter also said biologist Thomas Kwak — really — with the state Dept. of Conservation, recommended the no-feeding signs so the ducks will have to seek food elsewhere.

THE RECOMMENDATION was at first rejected by park commissioners Tuesday but the board later agreed to study the matter at Board Pres. George Rush's urging.

"They're not our ducks," he said. "Why are they our responsibility. We didn't put them there. Why should we take care of them? They're God's ducks."

The sign recommendation revives the duck crossing issue which arose in 1974 when a citizens' group asked that signs be posted so drivers could be made aware of the ducks.

A park district spokesman Wednesday said that "a lot of people who used to favor them (the ducks) have changed their views."

March 1 target for dissolving parks

A tentative March 1 target date was set Wednesday night for dissolution of the Hoffman Estates Park District and the takeover of recreation services by the village.

A six-member committee formed to discuss dissolving the district also approved the appointments of Village Trustee Bruce Lind and Park Comr. Thomas Barber as cochairmen of the committee.

"First, we need to consider legalities (of the dissolution), then the financing, and then the feasibility of merging the park district with the village," Lind said.

Wednesday's meeting was the first one scheduled to discuss whether the village's takeover of the park district is feasible.

VILLAGE ATTY. Edward Hofert and Park District Atty. Donald Rose will be asked to appear at the next committee meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building.

"If it can't be done legally, there's no sense in continuing these hearings," Lind said.

An alternate meeting date of Jan. 15 was set in case the attorneys could not attend.

The committee voted not to appoint a blue-ribbon committee of local citizens until later in the hearings. The hearings will be open to the public.

Lind said eventually the public hearings will be open for participation by all interested residents. Until then, the fact-finding sessions will involve only committee members.

Lind said a citizens' committee may be appointed, "perhaps three meetings down the line."

Dissolving the park district so that the village may take over its functions was first suggested at a Dec. 2 park board meeting. The proposal was made following the board's rejection of a bond referendum proposal.

Dist. 54 to weigh tax hike, construction vote tonight

A possible tax rate increase and construction referendum will be discussed by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education at its committee-of-the-whole meeting at 8 p.m. today at Dooley School, 622 Norwood Lane, Schaumburg.

Board members were presented with a dismal five-year financial forecast for the district at the Dec. 18 board meeting. Administrators urged the board to schedule a tax rate increase referendum for Feb. 14 but the board deferred action until the Jan. 15 meeting.

Administrators said inflation has increased the cost of education per pupil and the present tax rate will not cover the district's expenses. The last tax rate increase in Dist. 54 was in 1967.

The board also deferred action on an administration request to schedule for Feb. 14 a $350,000 construction referendum to complete funding of a proposed administration center. The district presently has $760,000 available for the center, but the building cost is estimated at $1 million.

The administration today will review a report on enrollment projections and classroom utilization for 1976-77. Because of the construction of two new schools and the addition of classrooms to some present schools, boundary lines for enrollment are expected to change in several areas.

Survey to decide fate of bis on buy

The fate of a proposed herd of buffalo for Buffalo Grove may be decided in a survey of village residents.

Thomas Fitzgerald, chairman of the Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission, said Wednesday that "fading" interest in the community, has made the commission uncertain about buying a buffalo herd for the village.

"The next step is going to be some kind of poll to see if people are still that interested and if they are, we'll go with it, and if they show little or no interest, we'll forget it," Fitzgerald said.

He said he would like to use an upcoming edition of the village newsletter to poll residents.

A MAJOR problem, Fitzgerald said, has been a place to put the buffalo. Commission members had been eyeing a 230-acre site in Lake County that the forest preserve district plans to condemn for a large retention basin.

But it's uncertain when the property, located between Checker and Schaffer roads, will be acquired. Another home for the animals would have to be found until the site is available, he said.

The commission is trying to coordinate the buffalo herd purchase with the national Bicentennial July 4.

Village Trustee Thomas Mahoney, a supporter of the proposal asked the village administrative staff at a board meeting Monday to look into exactly how and when Lake County officials plan to use the retention basin site.

BUT TRUSTEES Robert Bogart and Dorothy Carrol said they weren't in favor of the idea.

Obtaining funds for the purchase of the herd is "not really" a problem, Fitzgerald said. The commission has discussed a number of fundraising activities that would pay the $4,500 cost for a three-buffalo herd, he said.

Dist. 211 mails flyers on 294 adult ed classes

Residents of High School Dist. 211 will receive brochures in the mail this week outlining 294 courses which will be offered by the district's continuing education program.

Fourteen of the classes are being offered for the first time, including a sailing course in Chicago, rug making, first international jazz festival, stereo building, TV and radio repair, personal consumer financing and square dancing.

This week, registration will be held daily from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the administration center, 1750 Roselle Rd., Palatine. Evening registration will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Jan. 13, 15, 20 and 22.

Residents also may register by mail. Application forms are available in the brochure.

Classes will be held at the following district schools: Fremd High School, 1000 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine; Palatine High School, 150 E. Wood St.; Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates; Schaumburg High School, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd.; and Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 Higgins Rd.

Parks set to launch 'Friday Night Live'

The first "Friday Night Live" drop-in session for junior high school students sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Park District will open this week at Eisenhower Junior High School, 800 W. Hassell Rd.

Program coordinator Brenda Desormeaux said the session will begin at 7 p.m. and end at 9:30 p.m.

"We still have a few tickets left for the first program," she said. They can be purchased at the park district office or at Eisenhower and Keller junior high schools.

She said tickets to get in for "Friday Night Live" will not be sold at the door.

The program is being sponsored in cooperation with the local PTA and the school district, she said. Any seventh or eighth grader in the Hoffman Estates Park District area is eligible to attend.

The second session of the program is slated at Eisenhower School Jan. 16, Mrs. Desormeaux said. For more information teens may call the park district at 885-7500.

Schaumburg adds hours to buy vehicle stickers

Evening and Saturday morning hours for vehicle sticker purchase have been established by Schaumburg Village Clerk Sandy Carsello.

In addition to regular 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. hours, the clerk's office will remain open from 7 to 9 p.m. Jan. 8, 15, 22, 29 and Feb. 5 and 12.

The office also will be open from 9 a.m. to noon Feb. 14. Deadline for purchasing vehicle stickers at the regular $7 fee is Feb. 16. A $5 penalty will be added to the cost of village stickers purchased after the deadline.

Residents are asked to remove stickers from previous years before affixing 1976 village emblems.

For residents who prefer to drop off water bills at the village Civic Center, Mrs. Carsello has announced a depository box will be open next to the front entrance of the municipal building, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.

Teachers, board ready for pact talks in Dist. 59

by PAM BIGFORD

With the October teachers strike in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 still fresh in mind, the board of education and teachers union say they are ready to intensify their negotiations efforts to avoid another strike.

The board and the union are busy gearing up for negotiations for a master teachers contract covering the next three years. The talks, by mutual agreement, must begin before March 1.

Salary was the only issue being negotiated in last year's talks. This year teachers and the board must agree to a new three-year contract, and the far more complex issues include salary, fringe benefits and working conditions.

The board members believe the more knowledgeable they are about the contract and negotiations in general, the better they will be able to avoid these problems, Feldman said. So since December the board has been meeting in closed session about once a week to prepare for the talks.

"We have one member who is the board negotiator, but he takes his directions from the rest of the board, so we all have to be knowledgeable," Feldman said.

"What we're basically doing is familiarizing ourselves with each section of the contract in view of how it was in the past and how it might be bettered in the future," he said.

FELDMAN SAID the board is determined "to avoid a situation like last fall" when, he said, "there was a total breakdown in communications" between the union and the board and when "we got involved in personalities instead of issues."

"We want a smooth, harmonious relationship with the union and we plan to work hard at it," Feldman said. "We don't want to see disruption

Arthur Neil

of school and bickering and pettiness."

The board has been taking advantage of collective bargaining conferences offered by the National School Board Assn. Board members Esther Karras and Sherry Reynolds attended a conference in Atlanta, and Ms. Reynolds attended a second one in Dallas.

"Talking with people from school districts all over the country was very beneficial," Mrs. Karras said. "We saw that our strike was not a unique situation. The same kind of problems come up in all negotiations, and we could see how other people handled them."

MRS. KARRAS SAID a particularly valuable aspect in the conferences was that both sides were represented. Teachers union spokesmen took part in panels along with board representatives.

Feldman said the board wants to have the contract signed by June and wants negotiations to begin this month. But Union Pres. Arthur Neil said January is "a bit early" for the union.

Neil said he has spent the past month interviewing teachers for the union negotiating team and expects to have the team selected by the end of the week.

Neil said he favors a small team backed up by a larger negotiations committee. He committee asks the 700 union members (out of 914 district teachers) to list their priorities concerning contract issues. The committee then helps the team tabulate the information and "put everything into perspective," he said.

Neil said he too would like to see the contract settled by June.

No city manager until vote issue decided: Meyer

by JERRY THOMAS

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer vowed Wednesday he will not appoint a new city manager until the city council decides definitely if it will hold a referendum on a stronger managerial form of government.

"I won't appoint a city manager until the managerial question is decided once and for all," Meyer said. "It's a question that must be out of the way before a new manager takes the job."

Meyer said he will not allow the status of a city manager referendum proposal to remain in limbo.

"On Jan. 13, when the council meets, I will ask it to decide to either tell the city attorney to drop the whole thing or instruct the attorney to prepare an ordinance calling the referendum," Meyer said.

MEYER SAID he does not oppose a stronger managerial form of government and added that the city may benefit from it.

"But this confusion and delay benefits no one. I believe the aldermen are delaying a decision because they fear a referendum on the managerial question might thin their ranks," Meyer said.

Meyer said although the council agreed in November to conduct a referendum, no further action has been taken on the proposal since he asked that the referendum question include a proposal to reduce the number of aldermen from 10 to 5.

City Atty. Donald Rose "may have surprised" the council, Meyer added, when he said a referendum without specific questions on the number of aldermen would automatically, by state law, set the council's number at four, Meyer added.

MEYER SAID HE proposed the reduction of aldermen "because with a professional city manager we'd need less councilmen and could save about $6,000 a year on their salaries."

Meyer added that he has heard rumors that some citizens are considering asking for a referendum on the stronger managerial form of government and reducing the council to five aldermen.

"If the council doesn't make a decision, the residents may make up their minds for them," Meyer said.

A referendum to decide the city manager question may be called if residents circulate petitions and file them with the Circuit Court.

The council may also file petitions with the court or call a referendum by passing an ordinance.

The managerial candidate selection committee has completed its interviews and made recommendations on four final candidates for the manager's post.

Its members recently said it is now up to the mayor to appoint the new manager.

"I have not scheduled interviews with anyone and don't plan to until we get the managerial question out of the way," Meyer said.

Kiwanis Club planned for city

Arlington Heights and Palatine Kiwanis are planning to sponsor a Rolling Meadows Kiwanis Club.

Rolling Meadows men interested in becoming members of Kiwanis are asked to contact Jim Swiatek, first vice president of the Palatine club, 356-8282, or William Burton, president, 359-0400.

Kiwanis membership is open to men of all ages. The club's goal is to promote the community.

An organizational meeting is scheduled later this month.

Dist. 54 to weigh tax hike, construction vote tonight

A possible tax rate increase and construction referendum will be discussed by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education at its committee-of-the-whole meeting at 8 p.m. today at Dooley School, 622 Norwood Lane, Schaumburg.

Board members were presented with a dismal five-year financial forecast for the district at the Dec. 18 board meeting. Administrators urged the board to schedule a tax rate increase referendum for Feb. 14 but the board deferred action until the Jan. 15 meeting.

Administrators said inflation has increased the cost of education per pupil and the present tax rate will not cover the district's expenses. The last tax rate increase in Dist. 54 was in 1967.

The board also deferred action on an administration request to schedule for Feb. 14 a $350,000 construction referendum to complete funding of a proposed administration center. The district presently has $760,000 available for the center, but the building cost is estimated at $1 million.

The administration today will review a report on enrollment projections and classroom utilization for 1976-77. Because of the construction of two new schools and the addition of classrooms to some present schools, boundary lines for enrollment are expected to change in several areas.

Area feels Old Man Winter's bite

The Northwest suburbs faced the coldest weather of the winter season Wednesday as temperatures dropped below zero and the "bitter" cold is expected to continue through Saturday with low temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees below zero in the suburbs, the National Weather Service predicted.

"Bundle up," a spokesman for the weather service said late Wednesday. "It will be zero to five (degrees) above" Thursday.

"That sounds like a low, not a high," the spokesman added.

Despite the low temperature predictions, the mercury level will not drop to a record. In 1875, the Chicago-area temperature bottomed at 20 degrees below zero, the spokesman said.

THE COLD temperatures are part of a cold air mass that moved south-east from Canada and dumped snow throughout the Midwest.

Snow between one and two inches was reported in the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning. Heavier snowfall of up to five inches hampered morning rush hour drivers in south Cook County and northern Indiana.

The cold temperatures, which prevented melting of Wednesday's snowfall, and gusty winds contributed to traffic problems and dozens of minor auto accidents were reported throughout the suburbs.

The Chicago Motor Club offered five tips to motorists who attempt to start cars during the cold spell:

- Turn off all accessories, lights, radio, heater and windshield wipers, before attempting to start the car.
- Depress the gas pedal to the floor and let it halfway up while turning the ignition key. Hold the key in starting position for 30 seconds.

- Don't flood the engine if the car fails to start immediately. Shut off the ignition, wait 30 seconds and try again.
- If the engine floods, shut off the ignition and press the gas pedal for 60 seconds.
- Warm the engine at idle. Don't race a cold engine and avoid engine damage.

Library may cut business hours

Business has nearly doubled at the Rolling Meadows Library, but the increase may force the library to shorten hours.

The library, 3110 Martin Ln., has averaged a 41 per cent increase in circulation in the past eight months compared to the same period in 1974. But operations are being handled with the same staff and budget, Librarian Judith Drescher said.

She added circulation for the full fiscal year which ends in April will rise even higher to 60 per cent.

"We have handled the increase in transactions with the same amount of staff and no increase in budget," Mrs. Drescher said.

Library officials are in the midst of preparing for a Feb. 28 library referendum to increase the library tax rate and sell municipal bonds to build an addition to the present facility.

THE LIBRARY has been operating for the last few months on a tight budget which will leave little or no surplus funds at the end of the fiscal year. Because of the financial situation, library officials say they have been forced to curtail programs, ser-

At Tuesday's library board meeting several of the board members speculated the library may have to close earlier in the evening to save money.

The library is now open from 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and is closed Sunday.

The board briefly considered closing only the children's section early in the evening, perhaps at 6 p.m., but decided this would not save money and instead "inconvenience those persons who pick up books for children later in the evening."

Overdue bill threatens trade show

The Mid-America Trade Show will not be allowed to open Friday at Arlington Park unless the village receives the overdue exhibition fee from a ski show presented there in October.

A spokesman for the Harry A. Leonard Co., New York, operators of the ski show, said a check for more than $2,100 has been mailed. Officials say the village has not yet received it.

"The people in New York have told me they are going to pay us, but I haven't seen the money yet," Village Building Cmr. Martin Munsen said Wednesday. "Until we get the money, we won't let the trade show open."

The village placed the ban on future exhibitions at Arlington Park in December because Leonard had not paid the village's exhibition fee of 3 per cent of the gross receipts from the ski show presented Oct. 23-26. The trade show is the first show to be scheduled since the village's ultimatum.

Leonard originally refused to pay the 3 per cent fee saying the ski show was "educational, not entertainment."

The $2,100 fee is the largest ever collected by the village. In previous years, only a $17 per day fee was charged.

Library members to pay their own way

Rolling Meadows Library Board members will pay their own bills for convention registrations, business luncheons and dinners.

Board members Tuesday voted not to pay the approximate $25 registration fee at the American Library Assn. convention in Chicago for board member Jean Weber, association representative for the Rolling Meadows Library.

"Since the library is attempting to cut expenses every way we can, the board (members) in the past few months have paid our own way at conventions," board member Eunice Sample said.

Mrs. Weber was absent from the session Tuesday and three previous meetings.

Contests

High School students who are members of the Illinois Junior Academy of Science are invited to enter the Animals in Research essay contest sponsored by the academy and the Illinois Society for Medical Research.

Essays should be based on library research and not student projects. The 12 best papers at the academy's regional meetings will be presented again at the May 7-8 state meeting at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana.

At the academy's annual banquet, a $200 first-place award will be given by the Chicago Heart Assn., a $100 second-place and three $25 third-place awards will be given by the Illinois Society for Medical Research.

Dist. 54 gears up for new negotiations

by PAM BIGFORD

With the October teachers strike in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 still fresh in mind, the board of education and teachers union say they are ready to intensify their negotiations efforts to avoid another strike.

The board and the union are busy gearing up for negotiations for a master teachers contract covering the next three years. The talks, by mutual agreement, must begin before March 1.

Salary was the only issue being negotiated in last year's talks. This year teachers and the board must agree to a new three-year contract, and the far more complex issues include salary, fringe benefits and working conditions.

BOARD PRES. Dr. Edgar Feldman said the board's main goal is to settle the contract by June and to avoid "critical problems which can lead to a work stoppage."

The board members believe the more knowledgeable they are about the contract and negotiations in general, the better they will be able to avoid these problems, Feldman said.

So since December the board has been meeting in closed session about once a week to prepare for the talks.

"We have one member who is the board negotiator, but he takes his directions from the rest of the board, so we all have to be knowledgeable," Feldman said.

"What we're basically doing is familiarizing ourselves with each section of the contract in view of how it was in the past and how it might be bettered in the future," he said.

FELDMAN SAID the board is determined "to avoid a situation like last fall" when, he said, "there was a total breakdown in communications" between the union and the board and when "we got involved in personalities instead of issues."

"We want a smooth, harmonious relationship with the union and we plan to work hard at it," Feldman said. "We don't want to see disruption of school and bickering and pettiness."

The board has been taking advantage of collective bargaining conferences offered by the National School Board Assn. Board members Esther Karras and Sherry Reynolds attended a conference in Atlanta, and Ms. Reynolds attended a second one in Dallas.

"Talking with people from school districts all over the country was very beneficial," Mrs. Karras said. "We saw that our strike was not a unique situation. The same kind of problems come up in all negotiations, and we could see how other people handled them."

MRS. KARRAS SAID a particularly valuable aspect in the conferences was that both sides were represented. Teachers union spokesmen took part in panels along with board representatives.

Feldman said the board wants to have the contract signed by June and wants negotiations to begin this month. But Union Pres. Arthur Neil said January is "a bit early" for the union.

Neil said he has spent the past month interviewing teachers for the union negotiating team and expects to have the team selected by the end of the week.

Neil said he favors a small team backed up by a larger negotiations committee. He committee asks the 700 union members (out of 914 district teachers) to list their priorities concerning contract issues. The committee then helps the team tabulate the information and "put everything into perspective," he said.

Neil said he too would like to see the contract settled by June.

"Our salary proposal will be ready by our first meeting with the board," Neil said. "I'm very optimistic."

To feed or not to feed— parks ducking the issue?

by DANN GIRE

A Kwak in the Illinois Dept. of Conservation and Village Health Director James Demos are ruffling a few feathers in the Hoffman Estates Park District.

Demos, in a letter to Park Director Allen Binder, has recommended that "duck crossing" and "do not feed the ducks" signs be placed along Hassell Road near the district's Twin Lakes to warn residents about the meandering mallards.

Demos said he has received inquiries regarding "the exploded duck population at Twin Lakes" in the High Point subdivision. The letter also said biologist Thomas Kwak — really — with the state Dept. of Conservation, recommended the no-feeding signs so the ducks will have to seek food elsewhere.

THE RECOMMENDATION was at first rejected by park commissioners Tuesday but the board later agreed to study the matter at Board Pres. George Rush's urging.

"I see nothing wrong in putting up the signs," Rush said. But Comr. Thomas Barber balked at the suggestion. "They're not our ducks," he said. "Why are they our responsibility. We didn't put them there. Why should we take care of them? They're God's ducks."

The sign recommendation revives the duck crossing issue which arose in 1974 when a citizens' group asked that signs be posted so drivers could be made aware of the ducks.

Village officials refused, however, because the duck crossing signs were not consistent with state guidelines.

VILLAGE MGR. George Longmeyer said if the duck signs were put up, it could jeopardize village motor fuel tax revenues which are distributed by the state.

"Many residents have been inconvenienced by the ducks which periodically cause damage to their property," Demos' letter said. "This department has also noticed that a safety hazard exists as ducks are crossing Hassell Road to get from one pond to another."

Park district board member Shirley Gibbons said last year some 50 persons attended a park board meeting and spoke favorably of the ducks at Twin Lakes.

A park district spokesman Wednesday said that "a lot of people who used to favor them (the ducks) have changed their views."

Item price law may be early: Jones

by LUISA GINETTI

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said Wednesday the village board may be acting prematurely if it legislates to force food stores to continue itemized pricing.

"If the expressed concern of residents is for itemized pricing, we'll pass legislation for it," Jones said, "but it may be premature now if in fact none of the food stores plans to install the computerized system in the near future."

Jones' comments came following a meeting this week of the communications and public relations committee to discuss the universal product code system. The system employs a computer for checkout which prints the name of a product and its price.

Store items are marked with a 10-digit code which is read by the computer. Consumer groups have expressed concern that the coding system will replace individual pricing of items and eliminate the consumer's means of comparative shopping.

REPRESENTATIVES from Jewel and Dominick's told residents at the meeting neither store has immediate plans to install the computerized system in their Palatine stores.

More than 30 residents at the meeting voiced strong support for legislation to protect itemized pricing before the computerized systems become reality in the village.

"It's healthy to get the issue out in the open and I was surprised and pleased to hear there are no immediate plans to install the computers in Palatine," Jones said. "I think it's an emotional issue right now with most shoppers. If the prices aren't there, they won't feel comfortable."

The forum was held to air views on the matter so the village board could determine if legislation on the issue is warranted. Trustee Philip E. Stern, committee chairman, said the subject will be discussed further by the board.

"It could set a bad precedent because we could start to have preventive legislation ahead of time on many things," Jones said. "I think the board probably has better things to do with its time than wondering what may happen in the future."

days of each month. Bottles, cans and newspapers will be accepted. Volunteers man the center.

Bicentennial panel seeks members

Palatine's Bicentennial Coordination Committee is looking for members to help with the coordination of Bicentennial activities within the village.

The committee needs a publicity chairman and historian. Committee members are Norine Tempelman and Bonnie Serio, cochairpersons; and Harriet Kozicki, Darlene Bailey, Kathy Lundgren, Bill Webster, Myrae Rundle and Lorraine Schmukler.

The committee meets at 8 p.m. the second Monday of every month at the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St. The purpose of the committee is to act as a liaison between different organizations within the village to help coordinate and get people involved in Bicentennial activities.

Appliances stolen in burglary at home

About $1,500 worth of appliances was reported stolen Wednesday after a burglary at the Ron Ulkaovich home, 506 W. Baldwin Rd., Palatine.

Taken were stereo equipment, a cabinet, a pocket calculator and a digital-clock radio, police were told.

Entry was gained by breaking a window in the rear door, police said.

Oral history project under way in village

An oral history of Palatine's early days is being prepared by the Palatine Historical Society as a Bicentennial project.

Long-time residents of the village who would like to be involved in the project should contact Warren Kayler at 359-5059.

The historical society at 115 W. Johnson St. also has scheduled hours it will be open for the viewing of artifacts of Palatine's past. The new hours are from 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesday and from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday.

Volunteers also are needed to help sort and catalog items at the historical society.

Individuals or groups planning Bicentennial projects are asked to contact the Palatine Bicentennial Coordination Committee at 359-5388 or 991-2107.

Little City to get $60,000

The Variety Club of Illinois will present a check for $60,000 to Little City Foundation of Palatine at a luncheon in Chicago Jan. 16. Money for the children's charity was collected at the recent Third Annual Kup Open golf tournament.

What do you want village to look like?

Public's aid on master plan asked

by LUISA GINETTI

Palatine residents will have input into the village's updating of the master plan through a questionnaire being prepared by the village planning department.

Steven Lenet, planning and zoning administrator, said the questionnaire is being prepared with the help of Barton-Aschmann Associates Inc., planning consultants hired by the village to update the 1974 plan.

Lenet said the questionnaire will ask residents to identify problems, suggest village goals and state what sort of village they would like to see in 5 to 10 years.

THE QUESTIONNAIRE will be ready to distribute in about two weeks, Lenet said, and the planning department is hoping for a good response.

"The questionnaire will be important to the shaping of Palatine's future because we will develop plans and action programs based on the responses we get," Lenet said.

Among the topics to be included in the questionnaire are community character, future land use in relation to the tax base, the amount of services to be provided by the village and transportation, he said.

These topics also were discussed among village officials this week in a meeting with Barton-Aschmann representatives and the plan commission. Lenet said the purpose of the meeting was to gather comments from non-administration personnel who will be directly charged with updating the master plan.

ADMINISTRATION personnel will provide separate input to the planners, Lenet said.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said he felt the session was a good brainstorming meeting on goals and objectives for the community.

"We discussed what is best for Palatine, either single family or a mix of residential and industry," Jones said. "Palatine has remained basically a bedroom community, but many have said there is a need for a balanced community. We are basically concerned with striving to maintain the village's character, and I think Palatine does have a character."

Lenet said Barton-Aschmann will report back to the board in several months with recommendations for future goals.

The $15,000 updating of the master plan is being financed from a county grant under the 1975 Community Development Program. The village's share of the cost is $3,500.

The updating will include defining community goals and objectives in planning, identifying every parcel in the village and recommending changes in the village's zoning ordinances.

Ol' Man Winter puts bite on suburbs

The Northwest suburbs faced the coldest weather of the winter season Wednesday as temperatures dropped below zero and the "bitter" cold is expected to continue through Saturday with low temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees below zero in the suburbs, the National Weather Service predicted.

"Bundle up," a spokesman for the weather service said late Wednesday. "It will be zero to five (degrees) above" Thursday.

"That sounds like a low, not a high," the spokesman added.

Despite the low temperature predictions, the mercury level will not drop to a record. In 1875, the Chicago-area temperature bottomed at 20 degrees below zero, the spokesman said.

THE COLD temperatures are part of a cold air mass that moved southeast from Canada and dumped snow throughout the Midwest.

Snow between one and two inches was reported in the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning. Heavier snowfall of up to five inches hampered morning rush hour drivers in south Cook County and northern Indiana.

The cold temperatures, which prevented melting of Wednesday's snowfall, and gusty winds contributed to traffic problems and dozens of minor auto accidents were reported throughout the suburbs.

The Chicago Motor Club offered five

tips to motorists who attempt to start cars during the cold spell:

- Turn off all accessories, lights, radio, heater and windshield wipers, before attempting to start the car.

- Depress the gas pedal to the floor and let it halfway up while turning the ignition key. Hold the key in starting position for 30 seconds.

- Don't flood the engine if the car fails to start immediately. Shut off the ignition, wait 30 seconds and try again.

- If the engine floods, shut off the ignition and press the gas pedal for 60 seconds.

- Warm the engine at idle. Don't race a cold engine and avoid engine damage.

Minor liquor law needs no change

No changes will be necessary in a Palatine ordinance dealing with minors eating in liquor-serving restaurants.

An oversight in reading the ordinance led officials to believe the law prohibited persons under 19 from eating unaccompanied by a parent in a restaurant which holds a liquor license to serve beer and wine. In fact, the ordinance says persons under 19 are allowed into such establishments if the main business is serving food.

State statutes prohibit the serving of liquor to persons under 19.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said the ordinance was written two years ago when the drinking age for beer and wine was lowered from 21 to 19.

$25 inspection fee urged for elevators

The Palatine health, safety and welfare committee will recommend that the village board approve a $25 fee for elevator inspections.

The village currently contracts with an elevator inspection company to perform the service because no village employee is qualified for the job. The company charges $17.50 per inspection, which until now has been paid by the village.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said the fee would cover the cost of the inspection plus administrative costs for billing.

Mailings on trash service asked

The committee voted to direct the administration to send letters asking residents who still receive backdoor garbage pickup if they want to keep the service.

The letter will explain the difference between curbside and backdoor pickup, including the price differentials and the amount of garbage which can be picked up. Curbside service costs $3 per month for unlimited pickup and backdoor service costs $6.40 per month with a limit of two cans.

The committee deferred discussion of increasing the differential between the two services until the village's contract with Browning-Ferris Co. expires in 1977.

Residents who have backdoor service also will be asked to display an insignia in their window to notify garbage collectors to pickup refuse at the rear of the house.

An estimated 150 of the village's 3,000 homes received back door service.

Taxi code amendment to be viewed

Harwig asked the committee to consider amending the village's taxicab licensing ordinance to include requiring a certificate of public convenience from each operator.

The certificate would require companies to have cabs available 24 hours a day in order to operate in the village. As the ordinance now stands, companies can operate any hours they choose.

Committee members said they did not wish to regulate the number of companies operating in the village but agreed to review the matter.

A snowy walk along a deserted tree-lined street.

Overdue bill threatens trade show

The Mid-America Trade Show will not be allowed to open Friday at Arlington Park unless the village receives the overdue exhibition fee from a ski show presented there in October.

A spokesman for the Harry A. Leonard Co., New York, operators of the ski show, said a check for more than $2,100 has been mailed. Officials say the village has not yet received it.

"The people in New York have told me they are going to pay us, but I haven't seen the money yet," Village Building Cmr. Martin Munson said Wednesday. "Until we get the money, we won't let the trade show open."

The village placed the ban on future exhibitions at Arlington Park in December because Leonard had not paid the village's exhibition fee of 3 percent of the gross receipts from the ski show presented Oct. 23-26. The trade show is the first show to be scheduled since the village's ultimatum.

Leonard originally refused to pay the 3 percent fee saying the ski show was "educational, not entertainment."

The $2,100 fee is the largest ever collected by the village. In previous years, only a $17 per day fee was charged.

Dist. 57 students score high on tests

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Scores on student achievement tests are up this year in Mount Prospect Dist. 57.

In a report to the Dist. 57 Board of Education Monday, the administration presented the results of the Iowa Test of Basic Skills given to students last October. The tests are usually given to third, fifth and seventh graders, but for the first time in several years the tests were given to students in fourth and sixth grades as well.

Third, fifth and seventh graders generally scored as well or better than last year's group, and there is reason to believe fourth and sixth graders also improved, although there are no test results from last year for comparison.

THE TESTS ARE DESIGNED to measure growth in five areas: Vocabulary, reading, language skills, work study skills and mathematics. Students receive a score in each category along with an overall score.

The score is given as a percentile on a scale of 100. A score of 86 means that the student received a higher score than 86 per cent of the students he was compared with nationally. Students in the Northwest suburban area traditionally rank well above the 50th percentile, which is the national average.

The primary use of the test scores in Dist. 57 is to monitor the success of district programs, at each grade level. The district also uses the scores of individual students to gauge their progress over a period of years.

An "expectancy range" is used by the district to determine whether students are achieving according to their ability. The range in percentiles is based on the average student's Intelligence Quotient (IQ) at each grade level. The scores of more than 95 per cent of the students tested are expected to fall within this range.

Results: 83-93 on scales of 100

THE EXPECTANCY range for third graders this year fell between the 60th and 69th percentiles, and at fourth grade it ranged from the 64th to 73rd percentile. Scores showed that students exceeded the range in each of the six test categories.

The range at the fifth grade level fell between the 72nd and 79th percentiles. Students exceeded the range in all categories except mathematics; in which they fell within the range with a score of 78. The score is an improvement over last year, when students fell below the expectancy range in math.

The sixth grade expectancy range was 74 to 80. Students exceeded the range in each category except math, in which they fell far below the range with a score of 66. Assistant Supt. Dwight Hall said the math program deserves and will receive some careful study.

Seventh graders exceeded their expectancy range of from 74 to 80 in all areas except reading where they fell below the range with a score of 69. The scores in the remaining five areas are higher than last year, but reading remains a cause for concern, said Hall.

THE TOTAL PICTURE shows students fared better than last year, Hall said. Of the 30 scores this year — six scores at five grade levels — 27 exceeded the expectancy range, one fell within the range and one fell below. Of the 18 scores last year, six at three grade levels, eight exceeded the range, eight fell within the range and two fell below.

Principals and their staffs will be examining the scores this month, and at the beginning of the second semester parents may contact their school to examine their children's scores.

Supt. Earl Sutter cautioned the board Monday on the use of test scores.

The tests themselves have come under criticism by educators in recent years, he said. There is no such thing as a perfect test, he continued, and tests often do not measure such factors as student attitude.

HE EXPLAINED TEST results are sometimes inconsistent because they are administered by local school personnel and scored nationally. The tests often do not reflect community goals in education, and often are not used for the purposes for which they were designed; test scores too often are "used as weapons," he said.

"The tests can and should be used to measure how well students learn so that effectiveness of school programs may be monitored, Sutter said.

The tests also can be used to monitor the progress of an individual student, but Sutter cautioned that a succession of test scores must be considered instead of single scores. A child's score often varies from year to year, and is no cause for alarm, he said.

Area feels Old Man Winter's bite

The Northwest suburbs faced the coldest weather of the winter season Wednesday as temperatures dropped below zero and the "bitter" cold is expected to continue through Saturday with low temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees below zero in the suburbs, the National Weather Service predicted. "Bundle up," a spokesman for the weather service said late Wednesday. "It will be zero to five (degrees) above" Thursday.

"That sounds like a low, not a high," the spokesman added.

Despite the low temperature predictions, the mercury level will not drop to a record. In 1875, the Chicago-area temperature bottomed at 20 degrees below zero, the spokesman said. THE COLD temperatures are part of a cold air mass that moved southeast from Canada and dumped snow throughout the Midwest.

Snow between one and two inches was reported in the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning. Heavier snowfall of up to five inches hampered morning rush hour drivers in south Cook County and northern Indiana.

The cold temperatures, which prevented melting of Wednesday's snowfall, and gusty winds contributed to traffic problems and dozens of minor auto accidents were reported throughout the suburbs.

The Chicago Motor Club offered five tips to motorists who attempt to start cars during the cold spell:

- Turn off all accessories, lights, radio, heater and windshield wipers, before attempting to start the car.
- Depress the gas pedal to the floor and let it halfway up while turning the ignition key. Hold the key in starting position for 30 seconds.
- Don't flood the engine if the car fails to start immediately. Shut off the ignition, wait 30 seconds and try again.
- If the engine floods, shut off the ignition and press the gas pedal for 60 seconds.

Wille store closes; tradition ends

by LYNN ASINOF

Wille Hardware, 100 W. Northwest Hwy., has closed its doors, ending a 100-year tradition in Mount Prospect.

The company has been declared bankrupt following more than a year of financial troubles, and a court-appointed trustee is now overseeing liquidation of the assets of the firm's two stores. The second store is located in Hoffman Estates.

The Wille family has operated businesses from the site for nearly 100 years, starting with William Wille's cheese factory established in 1880.

THE FIRST indication of financial difficulties came in February when the firm filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws. At that time, the firm's assets were reported to be $2.3 million, with liabilities exceeding assets by about $100,000.

Attorney General Munitz said reorganization never took place because the company continued to lose money.

"The losses continued," he said. "There is no point in reorganizing a company that is losing money."

Last February, Munitz blamed financial problems on the opening of a second Wille Hardware store at the Hoffman Plaza Shopping Center, Hoffman Estates, in April 1974. "The store was opened in the worst economic times since the '30's," he said.

ROBERT BENNETT, chairman of Mount Prospect's downtown commission, said he is disappointed about the bankruptcy. He said his commission had hoped the store would be "a key factor in the downtown situation."

C. O. Schlaver, executive director of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce, also expressed regret over the store's closing. "It's too bad for the business community, but I hope that things can be worked out," he said.

The hardware store grew out of a feed, coal, salt, brick, sand and tile business established by Albert and Louis Wille in 1902. The two started a lumber firm a few years later.

Albert's four sons took over the operation of the business until the bankruptcy. The stores carried hardware, lumber, sporting goods and housewares.

Wedgewood wins battle; village nixes eatery zone bid

Homeowners in the Wedgewood Terrace subdivision across from Randhurst Shopping Center have won a battle against encroaching commercial development.

For a proposed Poppin' Fresh Pies restaurant at 306-14 W. Rand Rd., saying such a commercial use would open the door to business development.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said the previous village board had committed itself to residential use of the Wedgewood Terrace triangle when it approved a special assessment for sewer and water improvements in the area.

"I THOUGHT we had once and for all confirmed that it was single-family when the water and sewer came in," Teichert said.

About 25 property owners from the area came to protest the proposed zoning, saying it would only lead to more commercial zoning all along Rand Road. The Wedgewood Terrace triangle is bordered by Rand and Elmhurst roads and Euclid Avenue. It was annexed to the village a few years ago.

Jim Herbst of the Pillsbury Co., which operates the restaurant, said property owners along this stretch of Rand Road all are planning to sell their property for commercial development.

"This is just a natural progression of the way the area should go," Herbst said, predicting commercial development along the entire strip. He said failure to rezone for commercial use will lead to absentee landlords and deterioration of the property.

Adult ed classes in Dist. 214 open for registration

Registration is under way for spring semester classes in High School Dist. 214's continuing education program. Classes open to all district residents begin the week of Jan. 26 in the district's high school buildings. Brochures describing the spring course offerings are being sent to Dist. 214 residents this week.

Registration may be completed by mail or in person at the Dist. 214 continuing education office in the administration center, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect. Registrations are accepted daily from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until Jan. 24, from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. Jan. 19-23 and Saturday

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Tuesday's Herald that a citizens' committee to study financial options in River Trails District 26 should be formed by Jan. 21. The committee should be formed by Jan. 20, the date of the next board meeting.

Jan. 19, 17 and 24 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Students who wish to register after Jan. 24 should contact the continuing education office to find out whether the course is still available.

Several new classes as well as the usual courses, are being offered this spring.

For the person who enjoys handwork, Creative Stitchery will be offered. A course in sewing alterations can save the smart shopper the expense of a professional tailor.

Commodities: Advanced Analysis, will be offered for those with some background in the subject, and advanced Dictation and Transcription class will be offered for those who wish to sharpen their business skills.

Communication II is designed to help people in personal relationships with others. Transactional Analysis II will cover principles of trusting self, personal abilities, and personal capabilities.

And, for those who believe in preservation, a course in antiques and one in home maintenance and repair will be offered.

For further information about continuing education classes, call the district office, 253-1700.

River Road students feted at restaurant

Youths' birthdays made brighter

Birthdays are special days for students at River Road School, thanks to a little help from their friends. River Road students who live at Maryville Academy, Des Plaines, a home for wards of the state, have been invited for birthday dinners on the house by manager Guy Padula of Chicken Unlimited, 2037 Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect. As long as the students are accompanied by a teacher, they are served their choice from the menu, plus an apple puff dessert topped by a birthday candle.

Panel to consider boundary change

A proposed boundary agreement between Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights will be reviewed tonight by the village board's public health and safety committee.

The boundary agreement, if approved, will establish Douglas Avenue as the eventual dividing line between the two villages south of Central Road and north of Golf Road.

The agreement, however, will not include the 42-acre Magnus Farm property on Central Road. Officials from both villages have agreed that the property owner should be free to go to either village when he decides to develop the property.

The Chicken Unlimited birthdays began in November with the help of Idyll Nipper. Miss Nipper, a long-time community resident and the woman for whom the new River Road school will be named, asked Principal James Retzlaff if there were any projects she might work on for the school's students.

RETZLAFF ASKED if she could find a local restaurant owner who might donate birthday lunches. River Road teachers had been buying birthday lunches for their students for several years.

Miss Nipper began with restaurants in River Trails Dist. 26, and found a willing benefactor in Padula.

"I like the idea of doing something on a one-to-one basis rather than contributing to clubs and charities," Padula said as he served up chicken dinners Tuesday to River Road birthday celebrants Debbie Niehoff, 13, and Steven Athanas, 10.

"They're kind of big-eyed when the apple puff comes out. It's kind of nice," Padula said.

Debbie and Steve were too busy eating to comment. But Steve stopped chewing long enough to assert that fried chicken was his favorite meal.

To feed or not to feed— parks ducking the issue?

by DANN GIRE

A Kwak in the Illinois Dept. of Conservation and Village Health Director James Demos are ruffling a few feathers in the Hoffman Estates Park District.

Demos, in a letter to Park Director Allen Binder, has recommended that "duck crossing" and "do not feed the ducks" signs be placed along Hassell Road near the district's Twin Lakes to warn residents about the meandering mallards.

Demos said he has received inquiries regarding "the exploded duck population at Twin Lakes" in the High Point subdivision. The letter also said biologist Thomas Kwak — really — with the state Dept. of Conservation, recommended the no-feeding signs so the ducks will have to seek food elsewhere.

THE RECOMMENDATION was at first rejected by park commissioners Tuesday but the board later agreed to study the matter at Board Pres. George Rush's urging.

"I see nothing wrong in putting up the signs," Rush said. But Comr. Thomas Barber balked at the suggestion.

"They're not our ducks," he said. "Why are they our responsibility. We didn't put them there. Why should we take care of them? They're God's ducks."

The sign recommendation revives the duck crossing issue which arose in 1974 when a citizens' group asked that signs be posted so drivers could be made aware of the ducks.

Village officials refused, however, because the duck crossing signs were not consistent with state guidelines.

VILLAGE MGR. George Longmeyer said if the duck signs were put up, it could jeopardize village motor fuel tax revenues which are distributed by the state.

"Many residents have been inconvenienced by the ducks which periodically cause damage to their property," Demos' letter said. "This department has also noticed that a safety hazard exists as ducks are crossing Hassell Road to get from one pond to another."

Park district board member Shirley Gibbons said last year some 50 persons attended a park board meeting and spoke favorably of the ducks at Twin Lakes.

A park district spokesman Wednesday said that "a lot of people who used to favor them (the ducks) have changed their views."

Dist. 59 taxes go up to pay off loan

Residents in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will have tax rate increases ranging from 6 to 10.1 cents per $100 assessed valuation each year for the next four years to repay $1,575,000 borrowed by the district this year.

The Dist. 59 board approved borrowing up to $1.75 million this year because of an anticipated $1.4 million deficit in the education and building funds. The board approved issuing teachers' orders in September, which is a method of borrowing money through the bond and interest fund to pay teachers' salaries.

The bonds sold to pay for the teachers' orders will be paid back during a four-year period beginning December 1976.

THE TAX RATE increase will cost the average homeowner with property assessed at $10,000, $6 the first year, $8 the second year, $10.10 the third year and $8.70 the fourth year.

Taxpayers will see the increase in the tax rate in the fall of 1977, said Arthur Perry, Dist. 59 financial analyst and consultant. He said residents will have a tax rate increase of about 6 cents per $100 assessed valuation in 1977 and an increase of about 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation the following year.

The last two years of the bond payoff, residents can expect tax increases of about 10.1 cents and 8.7 cents per $100 assessed valuation, he said.

The district will be paying $270,000 in interest on the $1,575,000 bonds. The board also considered a five-year payoff plan which would have cost the district $380,100 in interest.

The 6 to 10.1 cents tax rate increase will be in addition to a 25 cent per $100 assessed valuation increase approved by the voters in September for the education fund. District officials have not determined how much of the 25-cent increase will be used.

Wedgewood wins battle; village nixes eatery zone bid

from Rand Road backed Herbst, saying their land was not suitable for houses. "It is definitely not residential," said Lorraine Gunther, 450 W. Rand Rd. "If it is not going to be cleaned up or fixed up, they should let this gentleman put up what he wants to put up."

Teichert, however, said he sees no reason why the area cannot be developed with houses once residents are assured of zoning stability.

"I would think myself the property could be buildable if there were stability," he said. The mayor said homes along Golf Road are an example of successful residential development on a major highway.
